The following is the score of games as played by the National League Tuesday:

At Cincinnati: Cincinnati 10, St. Louis 6.

At Chicago: Chicago 10, Pittsburgh 8.

Chance for the Girls.

Mr. W. H. White has counted them up and tells us that from the REFLECTOR office to the Court House on main street there are 51 marriageable men from 21 years old and upwards. He did not state how high up the column the ages run, as John Andrews, Dr. Mack Ernul and Joe Blow, are included in the count. With this number of marriageable men on two blocks it looks like the girls ought to have a good chance.

Dan Creedon, of Australia, whipped Billy Hennessy, of Boston, in six rounds, at Boston.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

A convention of the voters of Maryland who are in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 has been called to meet in Washington, D. C., on Friday, July 12th.

Mr. T. H. Jernigan, of North Carolina, Consul-General of the United States at Shanghai, has sent another valuable and interesting report to the State Department on the trade relations of this country with the orient. It is very highly complimented.

Be Careful What You Say.

Never believe evil of any one until you are certain that the evil exists. We should never say anything about another which is unpleasant, even in a joke; for our words are often exaggerated, and if they reach the ears of the one of whom they are spoken they may do harm.

I think it a good plan to refrain from saying anything about others, unless we can speak in their favor. It does no good to tell the faults and short comings of other people; but, on the contrary, it is too apt to make us suspicious and fault-finding. None of us are perfect—no, not one. If your neighbor has faults which you have not, you have others, perhaps, which are quite as bad.

If we dwell upon the virtues instead of the vices of our associates, we shall find that it is much pleasanter for us, and certainly much better for them. We are certainly conscious of our own defects in some respects, and they are much discomfort to us; but how much worse we should feel if we knew that everybody noticed them, and even spoke of them to others. Now, instead of talking of others' faults,

I'll tell you a better plan.

And one that works quite well:

To try our own defects to cure,

Ere we of others tell.

And though we sometimes hope to be

No worse than some we know,

Our own short comings bid us let

The faults of others go.

Warrenton Record.

Railroad Statistics.

According to the report of the U. S. Railroad Statistician, the total railway mileage in the country on June 30, 1894, was 178,708.55 miles, an increase during the year of 2,247.48 miles. The increase during the previous year was 4,897.55 miles. The percentage of increase during the year 1893-94, it is stated, was less than for any preceding year for which reports have been made to the Commission.

The Statistician ventures the opinion that it is not probable that the year ending June 30, 1895, will show much improvement in that respect. In Pennsylvania the addition during the twelve months to June 30, 1894, is reported to have been 300-20 miles, in Florida 324.82 miles, in North Dakota 195-54 miles, in Ohio 184.02 miles, in Georgia 162.71 miles, in Maine 125.60 miles, in Missouri 420.51 miles, in West Virginia 117.56 miles, in Minnesota 116.49 miles, while the States of Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Vermont and Virginia and the Territory of Arizona show slight increases in mileage, due to remeasurements and abandonment of lines.

The report makes the total of railway capital June 30, 1894, $10,796,473,813, an increase of $290,238,403 over the year preceding. Of the total $4,834,075,659 was stock and $5,962,388,154 debt. Of the debt $4,593,931,754 was bonds, $450,277,380 miscellaneous obligations, $253,504,081 income bonds, $53,970,204 equipment trusts and $605,815,135 current liabilities.

The Work of the Lightning.

Two fine mules belonging to Mr. O. M. Pollock near Pollocks-ville were killed by lightning in Saturday's thunder storm. They were mules that cost $375 for the pair.

Across Nemo river not far from the city a flock of sheep under a tree were struck by the lightning in the storm previous to Saturday's and every one killed. They belonged to several neighbors who were letting them run together. There was also a house struck in the same neighborhood but no special harm done.—Newbern Journal.

His Confidence Shaken.

"Paw," said the small boy, "is fishing the one thing that most men live for?"

"Certainly not, Tommy."

"Are all girls sweet when they graduate?"

"Why there may be exceptions."

"Do they invariably write foolishness in their essays?"

"No."

"Do boys that go to college forget everything they ever learned except how to row a boat and play foot-ball?"

"Of course not."

The youngster shook his head sadly and said:

"I guess you needn't bring me home any more of these comic papers. I'm kind of losing faith in them."—Washington Star.

The Gum Swamp Parson.

The ship that carries a great many people to success is kinship.

A promise once broken can never be repaired.

The mule is a necessary adjunct to farm life, but the plowshare's the labor also.

Politics keeps the army of tramps down to its minimum size.

No matter how honest and truthful a witness is, he is regarded as a questionable character.

Big feet are more desirable than the big head, for they can be placed out of the public's sight.

The soda fount is a sample of fizz-ical science.—Atlanta Constitution.

Left It to the Lord.

There is a band of colored women in Durham who claim that they live by faith—they leave everything to the Lord. Some of them do washing. A Durham lady employed one. When asked what she would charge, the colored woman said she would leave it with the Lord. When the wash came in it was $1.50. The next week the same question was asked and the same answer given. When the second wash came in it was $2.00. "Look here," said the lady, "don't you leave it to the Lord any more. He is charging me too much."—Durham Sun.

A newspaper reports a farmer as chiding certain townsmen on being far behind him in knowledge of the financial problem. It is not a joke. These last three years the people in the country have been studying political issues, particularly "the financial question," while the townsman has been content to leave it to his party leaders. Of late, however, the wave has broken over the cities, and now when the farmer comes to town, he finds merchants ready to dispute or agree with him intelligently. Probably for the first time in the history of the country, the people all over the land are pretty well informed on a single political issue, (for it cannot be said that they are informed on the question as problem of political economy). It is hard to find a farmer who cannot sustain himself in good company in advocacy of free coinage of silver, and one cannot be found who has no opinion of his own on the course his party ought to pursue, which latter is something entirely new, greatly to the consternation of party leaders. It is a good sign when people become informed and show that they are thinking independently.—Biblical Recorder.

To drink or not drink, that is the question. Scientists say drinking water is so impregnated with bacteria as to be unfit for use. Prohibitionists denounce wine and beer. It is urged that tea produces insanity, and coffee dyspepsia and insomnia; while it is declared poison lurks even in innocent lemonade. But the world will keep on using all of these beverages.

Even the bravest grow faint-hearted at times and are tempted to look back despite the fate of Lot's wife. The head of a big firm who had seen his business built up by advertising, and knew that his success was directly attributable to it, needed to be told occasionally that advertising paid.

A Georgia judge warned his people in regard to coming into court intoxicated, and used these words: "I wish, to put everybody on notice, that if they come into this courtroom while I am sitting on this bench drunk, they had better look out."

IS WITHOUT PRECEDENT.
The Refusal of a Barber to Cut a Customer's Hair.

It was one of those hot May days that precede a cold wave, and the fat barber who had just finished shaving a lean customer perspired profusely.
"Better have a little powder on your face, hadn't you?" he feebly suggested, mopping his own face as he spoke. "It's a warm day."
"Yes," answered the man in the chair. "Put it on."
The powder was applied, and the operator ran his fingers through the customer's hair in the usual way, preparatory to combing and brushing it.
"It does look pretty long, that's a fact," said the customer, regarding himself critically in the glass. "I guess you may cut it."
"Good heavens!" gasped the barber. "Can't you come just as well to-morrow?"—Chicago Tribune.

Praise from the English.

Here's praise from an unexpected source. An English periodical says: "The American cuisine undoubtedly surpasses our own in tastiness and variety. Before every meal blue points are served on crushed ice. To every person at table are placed six or seven little finger-shaped white china dishes containing distracting bonnes bouches, such as olives, pistachio nuts, crisped walnuts, anchovies, dressed tomatoes, gherkins, etc. As you talk you nibble pleasantries between the courses. The American women drink much less wine than we do at meals, though they are not above calling aloud for whisky cocktails at promiscuous hours of the day. The service at table is simply exquisite. Such dainty china! Such flowers! and oh! the roses. Why do they have so much longer, greener stems than our own and smell so far more potently sweet?"

Some Hope.

"Young man," said the sage, "I hear you are about to be married?"
"You are right," said the young man.
"Well, young man, the day will come when your wife will make the discovery that you do not know everything on earth. It will be a great shock to her feelings and your supremacy. Still, there is hope for you. You, while cheerfully admitting that you do not know it all, may be able to persuade her that the reason for that state of things is that there is so much in the world that is not worth knowing."—Indianapolis Journal.

Breaks All Records.

A French conscript has broken the record by claiming exemption on the ground that he is, at the age of twenty, the father of four living children.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

From now until the crop begins coming in, and later if necessary, we shall endeavor to give the tobacco farmers some good reading matter. In each weekly issue we hope to be able to give our readers an original article direct from the pen of some of our best farmers on some topic pertaining to tobacco culture. Besides we shall endeavor to post ourselves thoroughly as to the growing crop and the future outlook for prices. In other words from now until Sept. 1st we shall endeavor to make the tobacco department alone worth more than the subscription price of the paper. We expect to place the REFLECTOR on the desk of nearly every leaf dealer in North Carolina and Virginia and it is through this that we hope to attract more attention to this section than ever before.
