SCISSORINKTUMS.

Bright Squills and Queer Items Clipped Promiscuously.

In Norway no man is permitted to cut down a tree unless he plants three sapplings in its place.

Denver, Colorado, is a Western town, but it has some able financiers. One of them recently failed for $3500,000, with assets amounting to $250.

A G. A. R. chorus in Detroit refused to sing "Dixie" and "Bonnie Blue Flag," saying angrily that they would sing no "rebel" songs. The war is not yet fully over.

A gift of life insurance policies aggregating $500,000 was one of the features of the wedding of Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, of Philadelphia, to Miss Bradley, of Pittsburg last week. The policies were on the life of the groom and the newly-made wife is the beneficiary.

Few persons are aware, probably that John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, commenced his ministry in Savannah, Ga., and was for several years rector of Christ Episcopal Church, which stands in the centre of that city, just as it did then, with the exterior unaltered, although the interior has been remodeled and modernized.

England has a fresh political sensation in the fall of the Roseberry Cabinet. Its resignation followed the defeat of the Liberal party in Parliament. The Tories will now assume control. Lord Salisbury has been invited by the Queen to form a new Cabinet and has accepted. A dissolution of Parliament is expected soon.

Neither the doctor nor the bill collector expect you to return their calls.

IN THE STATE.

Record of Matters of General Interest.

Miss Rachel Hawkins, of Slaws Creek, found a guinea's nest with 84 eggs in it.

Dr. L. J. Carroll, a distinguished Baptist minister, died at Chapel Hill Wednesday.

A hennery has been established near Asheville with a capacity of 2,500 chicks every three weeks.

Our thanks are due for an invitation to the Seventh Annual Convention Tournament of the North Carolina State Firemen's Association at Newbern August 6th to 9th.

The Sixteenth Annual Meeting of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association will take place at Morehead City on July 10, at 10 o'clock A. M. The meeting of the State Board of Pharmacy, for the examination of candidates, will be held at the same place on July 9th at 9 o'clock A. M.

Base Ball.

The following is the score of games as played by the National League Wednesday:

At Brooklyn: Brooklyn 1, Washington 0, Thirteen innings.

At Boston: Boston 15, Philadelphia 5.

At Cincinnati: Cincinnati 13, St. Louis 5.

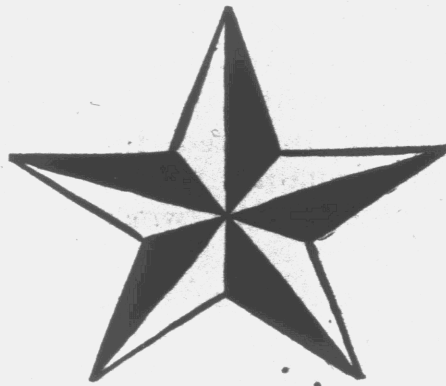

At Chicago: Chicago 6, Pittsburg 2.

At Baltimore: Baltimore 5, New York 2.

Sad News.

The sad intelligence came about noon today that Miss Helen Laughinghouse, daughter of Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse, of Grimesland, was dying, and we fear that when this is read her soul will have taken its flight from earth. It was only last week that Miss Helen came home from school at Baltimore. She was sick at the time and has gradually grown worse since reaching home.

Another telegram received by Mr. Charlie O'Hagan just before we went to press stated that Miss Helen died at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The hearts of their numerous friends here go out in deepest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Laughinghouse and their family in the sorrow that surrounds them.

WANTED

Twenty thousand eyes, bright and calculating, to look over my store, and see how I succeed in keeping down prices at every point, without depreciating values. My Mid-Summer Wears must be cleaned up for my fall stock. Prices down, down, down, but they must go.

FRANK WILSON

THE KING CLOTHIER.

Her Age.

"And what is your age, madam?" was the attorney's question.

"My own," she answered promptly.

"I mean how old are you?"

"I am not old, sir," with indignation.

"I beg your pardon, madam, I mean how many years have you passed."

"None. The years have passed me."

"How many of them have passed you?"

"All. I never heard of them stopping."

"Madam, you must answer my question. I want to know your age."

"I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side."

"I don't see why you insist upon refusing to answer my question," said the attorney.

"I'm sure I would tell how old I was if I were asked."

"But nobody would ask you, for everybody knows you are old enough to know better than to be asking a woman her age. So there?"

And the attorney passed on to the next question.—Detroit Free Press.

Two Excursions.

There will be two excursions from Washington to Ocracoke tomorrow night. The Old Dominion Company will run one on their steamer the Virginia, and Mr. W. H. McDevitt has chartered the steamer Aurora for the other, and will take the Washington band along. Fare on either steamer is $1 for the round trip.

According to school statistics there were in the public schools of this country last year 15,530,200 pupils, an increase of 450,000 over the previous year.

Four bicyclers made the trip from Knoxville, Tenn., to Washington City, 600 miles in twelve days.

The second session of the University summer school opened with 125 teachers present. More are expected to arrive.

The bond syndicate have complied with their contract by paying in the balance of the purchase gold. Their contract still requires them to protect the treasury against gold exports until October.

The Kentucky Democratic convention met Wednesday, after voting down a free silver platform and then endorsing sound money and the administration of President Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle, nominated P. Watt Harden, the free silver candidate on the first ballot. R. P. Tyler was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor.

ADVERTISING TOWNS.

All arrangements have been made by certain parties of our town, to furnish weekly an interesting letter of a column or more in length, to four North Carolina dailies, four North Carolina weeklies, two Northern Journals of Commerce and Trade, and two Virginia dailies. This is a good movement and will receive the hearty approval of all our citizens.—Tarboro Southerner.

If the people of Tarboro would put the amount they will thus expend in their home paper and send that broadcast over the country, it is our belief that much better results will be reached than by the plan they have mapped out. There is no better index to any town than its home paper, and good articles in that have far more effect upon outsiders than write-ups in distant papers.

People looking at a community with a view of locating there obtain better impressions from the home paper than can be had from other sources. The home paper works day in and day out for the town in which it is published, while the outside paper has no interest in the town beyond the pay it receives for the write-up. Again every dollar invested in the home paper enables it to do just that much more work for the town.

We heard a distinguished citizen of Statesville say that he was induced to make his home there through reading copies of the Landmark that chanced to fall into his hands, his impression being that a town sending out such a paper as the Landmark would be a good place to live. This is just one illustration among many similar ones that have occurred. It is the home paper that talks for the town, and to see the business men standing by it shows that they have confidence in their town and believe in maintaining home enterprises.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

The Danville Tobacco Journal this week gives one of the best articles that we have seen in a trade paper on the '95 crop. The Journal admonishes caution in giving these high fly reports about the enormity of the crop, and says for the last four years the trade has been treated every year to the most flashing newspaper reports about the largest and finest crop of tobacco that ever grew out of the ground, when in fact each year has given to the trade a little meaner crop than the previous one, until the markets of the world are full of common nondescript stuff. The Journal hits the nail plum on the head in this article, and if we had more of this kind of literature we would gain more general satisfaction in the disposition of the crop. There are those who seem to think that they must puff the crop at any hazard and by this means they must hope to induce leaf men to come to their market, when in fact it produces just the opposite effect. Leaf men everywhere get the idea that all the markets are going to be full of fine tobacco and hence they don't put their men to buying the first offerings, thinking to wait until the good tobacco comes in. They wait and finally learn that there is no good tobacco. As a consequence the farmers tobacco sells lower than if the trade had been properly and truthfully informed. The leaf men get an undesirable and unsatisfactory stock, they think probably their buyers bought the good tobacco and let some one else have it, and hence dissatisfaction is given all around. We believe in conservatism in making these reports. Let the trade know just exactly what they may expect to get out of the crop, and when the offerings come in they will not be deceived and disappointed. Give the trade the facts and get more satisfaction.

The Passing of the Horse.

At a recent sale of well bred trotting horses in this State three-year-olds were sold as low as $4 apiece, and the highest prices secured for any was $75. At these prices it does not pay to raise horses and the breeders who made the sale did so to get out of a business no longer profitable.

Their case is but one of many. The horse is being rapidly superseded. Cable traction, trolleys and other mechanical devices are greatly reducing the demand for draught horse service not only in large cities but in small towns and even upon country roads in all well-populated regions.

The time cannot be far off when cable or electric railroads will begin to carry freight as well as passengers, thus doing away with drays, trucks and country wagons to a very large extent.

The bicycle is taking the place of the saddle-horse with all but the rich who like horseback exercise and can indulge in it as a luxury.

The recent exhibitions of horseless carriages in France indicate that our victorias, broughams and cabs will presently be driven without horses, and when all these improvements are perfected it is not unlucky that we shall come at last to the Chinese custom of excluding horses entirely from the streets of cities.

Even on farms the steam plough, the steam thresher and the like are reducing the need of horses to a minimum.—New York World.

CREDITS.

When a borrower in Wall street obtains a loan he takes it in the form of a check on the lender's bank, which he deposits in his own bank to his own account, drawing against it checks as his needs require. The persons who receive these checks deposit them in their banks in turn, and thus the entire sum is split up and passed from hand to hand without the use, except on special occasions, of a dollar of actual circulating medium. It is true that the borrower has the right to exact legal tender money for either the check he takes or for the checks he draws himself, but this right is exercised rarely. The bank credit is so completely equivalent to money that it is treated as money by everybody.

This explains, too, what often puzzles the uninitiated, how the banks of this city, with only $80,000,000 of specie and legal tenders in their vaults, can report deposits to the amount of over $568,000,000, and how, in like manner, the total deposits of all the banks in the United States footed up, according to the latest report of the Comptroller of the Currency, $4,620,000,000 although their entire stock of specie and paper money was but $689,000,000. The credits given to borrowers are counted as money of equal value with specie and notes, and, ordinarily, they serve equally well the needs of the community. It is only in panics such as that of 1893, when confidence in the solvency of the bank fails, and depositors, all at the same time, begin to clamor for actual money, instead of certified checks, that the difference becomes apparent. At other periods people hardly ever reflect, when they take their checks in payment of debts or for property sold, that these checks entitle them to actual money. They deposit them in their banks and are satisfied with the entry of the amount on their passbooks.—New York Sun.

The statement comes out from Raleigh that next month the Caucasian and the Progressive Farmer will begin to issue 40,000 copies weekly. This shows you how they propose to circulate their doctrine during the summer. The policy of the Democrats seems to be to sit down idly with folded hands allow the Democrat editors to work in season and out of season and make no effort whatever to support their journals or extend their circulation. The most active workers generally accomplish the best results and the above statement should be a sufficient hint to Democrats to become more active along this line.—Durham Sun.

The Peddler Simply Spoke of the Woman Across the Way.

"I beg your pardon, madam, but I haven't asked you to buy any of my tablecloths as yet," said the peddler in tones of humbleness as the housewife paused to catch her breath, according to the New York World.

"Then what did you stop here for, you—"

"Why, I was constrained by a sense of respect which I bear for all humanity to stop and offer my wares to you. If you will hear me just a moment I shall make my unenviable position clear to you. You know the lady over the creek—the one in the white house with the green shutters yonder?"

"Of course I know her, the old gossipmonger—"

"Now, just hold on till I tell you how the thing stands."

"Has she been lying to you about me?"

"Well, I dare say that she said nothing about you that any honest-minded person would believe. It was simply—"

"What did she say? Tell me what she said. Oh, I'd like to—"

"Well, she simply said that you didn't use tablecloths, and she wanted to bet me a week's board that I couldn't sell you one."

"What's that? Is that what she said? She said I didn't use them, eh? Oh, the hussy!"

"Now, it's not that I care anything about it," explained the peddler as he opened his pack, "yet I know decent and well-bred people when I see them, and I was determined (although it has thrown me somewhat out of my way) to see for myself."

The housewife gritted her teeth in silence and took her purse from her pocket.

"Now these are five dollars a pair," continued the peddler in kindly tones. "Or you may have the entire twenty pairs (all that I have left) for seventy-five dollars."

As he passed empty-handed out of the garden gate a moment later he saw over his shoulders the form of a woman standing on the porch. She was mute and livid and her eyes were cast at the house with the green shutters.

Helen Keller.

Helen Keller, the deaf, dumb and blind girl, who is the modern Laura Bridgeman, and is being educated in a private school in New York, writes and composes fluently upon the typewriter. The keys of the machine have the letters in bas relief upon the buttons. Miss Keller, who is about fourteen years of age, has marked ability, and has received recently two hundred and fifty dollars for a short sketch of her impressions of life from the editor of a young people's magazine.
