IN THE STATE.

Record of Matters of General Interest.

A German sailor was drowned at Southport Wednesday.

Mr. I. M. Meekins, a Wake Forest student, won the medal in the oratorical contest before the Teachers Assembly at Morehead

The Local Preacher's Conference will convene August 14-18 at Rutherford College, Connelly Springs Depot. The conference owns a tabernacle building at that place that accommodates several thousand people.

How it is in Concord.

We trust that the riders of bicycles in Concord will be careful in riding on the sidewalks, so as to cause no complaint from pedestrians. It should be remembered that there is an ordinance which makes it punishable by fine or imprisonment to go by a lady or a child except at a low rate of speed. This ordinance should be strictly enforced.

Let bicycles riders in all cases when passing anyone take the extreme outside of the street. When coming up on any one from behind ring your bell, unless it is a lady. At night never go without your lamp. In fact, exercise common sense and show regard for the rights of others, and all will be well. We do not believe the town commissioners will legislate the bicycles off the pavements if the bicyclists will behave themselves.—Concord Times.

The law-makers of Greenville might take an idea from the above

The days are now slowly growing shorter.

SCISSORINKTUMS.

Bright Squibs and Queer Items Clipped Promiscuously.

A fire in Minneapolis resulted in the loss of six persons, crushed by falling walls. A wholesale crockery establishment was burned at a loss of $90,000.

Mrs. Wm. Nobles, of Cochran, Ga., had fusses with her husband and paid a negro $10 to kill him. The finding of the hidden corpse led to the arrest of the guilty parties.

The school authorities of Switzerland have made a rule that whenever the thermometer gets above a certain point the schools are to be dismissed, as good work cannot be done when it is too hot.

A. C. Love, formerly assistant post master at Colvert, Tex., stole $2,500 postoffice money and escaped, studied medicine, and made off to Central America. The postal authorities have caught him at Panama.

One of the things the late Legislature did was to cut down the appropriation to the Soldiers' Home. This is the way the old heroes, who fought for the Confederacy, were treated by the Douglasites.—Lenoir Topic.

"Please, Your Honor."

The judge of another court, when taking his seat on the bench, saw some one in the public gallery, wearing a standing collar and four-in-hand, with a cap on the head.

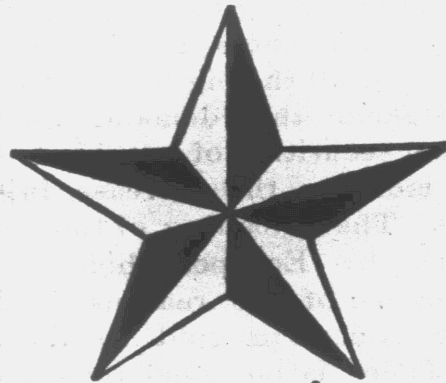

"Take off that hat up there!" cried the judge, severely. There was no movement.

"Take off that hat, sir!" came the order in the sternest tones from the bench.

Then came the reply in a weak voice from the gallery: "Please your honor, it's a lady."

The judge stared a moment and then exclaimed: "Woman is it? Then why does she dress like that?"

There was no explanation and the business of the court went on.—New York Sun.

You need a good live newspaper of your own without having to worry the life out of your neighbor by borrowing his. Come up and subscribe on your own hook. Don't keep on reading a paper you do not pay for.—Monroe Journal.

In tearing down an old house on the Morrison place near Jackson Springs, a few days since, K. M. McCaskill found 27 Spanish silver dollars, wrapped in a handkerchief and secreted between the walls. Some of them bore the date 1717. The handkerchief was so old that when the boards were removed the money rolled out, says the Carthage Blade.

The Legislature made an appropriation of $1,000 to the State Colored Normal School. It develops that there are seven of these schools in the State and the Attorney General has given it his opinion that the money should be equally divided among the seven. The man who framed the bill did not have sense enough to express his desire. It was intended to divide the amount proportionately among certain schools, as there were special bills passed aiding several normal schools. The one at Fayetteville got $1,500.—Raleigh Press.

On Thursday San Francisco had the largest fire ever known there. There were 300 houses burned and the loss amounted to $1,500,000. A number of lives were lost.

An excursion from Raleigh to Wilmington, Wednesday, carried 1800 people. There were from 500 to 600 left on account of the scarcity of room. There were 16 coaches.

The new woman keeps clamoring for the right to vote and to hold office, but we have not heard a word from her yet about wanting to step up like a man and pay poll tax.

Not a few North Carolinians would be horrified at seeing our modest girls dressed in bloomers riding bicycles. Yet we are told that they are coming. The New York Sun thinks there is nothing wrong in girls wearing bloomers. Perhaps there is not, but down this way we still believe in the womanly woman.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 28, 1895.

No member of the administration takes any stock in the predictions being made in some quarters concerning the probable early run that will be made on the gold in the Treasury, now that the bond syndicate has made its last payment on account of bonds purchased. On the contrary, members of the administration consider the outlook very cheerful. The Treasury now has a little more than $100,000,000 in gold, and officials do not expect that amount to be materially reduced during this year, and their confidence has a solid foundation. Gold only goes to Europe when somebody can profit by its shipment. The season for the shipment of our agricultural products to Europe is now almost open, and those shipments always make the balance of trade in favor of the United States for a time, and if it does not bring us European gold it gives us a gold balance over there which prevents our having to send any gold over for some time. Besides, unless all the big financiers are mistaken, the demand for American securities of all kinds is once more on the increase in Europe. The unloading of those securities by European holders has been one of the reasons for sending American gold to Europe. There is no good reason for the direful predictions which have followed sensational statements as to the reason why the bond syndicate made the last payment on those bonds this week, instead of waiting until next October, as their contract allowed them to do. The matter probably closed at this time because the syndicate found it convenient to do so, and it is nonsense, in the opinion of Treasury officials, to say that the syndicate has designs upon the gold it has paid into the Treasury.

Secretary Olney is thinking very seriously of applying competitive examination methods to the U. S. Consular service. So far as their nomination to office is concerned, of course they would have to take their chances of being confirmed by the Senate after passing the examination and getting nominated. It is admitted by all travelers that the longer a consul remains in office the more useful he becomes to the country he represents, and European governments never think of removing a consul, except for cause. Secretary Olney, in addition to the examination of consuls, would like to see the service placed on a permanent basis, so that young men would take it up as a life career.

Much significance is attached by republicans to an interview with Representative Cannon, of Illinois, which was published in Washington this week. It wasn't what Mr. Cannon said that attracted attention, as his talk is not considered important, he does too much of it, but what he did not say. He occupied nearly a column discussing the Presidential possibilities of his party, mentioning Reed, who he is supposed to favor, McKinley, Allison, Morton, Cullon and even "Cush" Davis, but leaving out Mr. Benjamin Harrison, notwithstanding that gentleman's recent attempts to have himself considered the leading candidate for the nomination. As Mr. Cannon has just returned from an eastern trip his interview may be part of a plan of the Reed men to kill the Harrison boom by ignoring it.

Great interest is felt in Washington in the change of administration in England, because of the bearing it may have on the silver question in this country. Lord Salisbury, the new premier, is friendly to silver and Mr. Balfour a member of the new cabinet, has a parliamentary record as a bimetalist of the most advanced type. It is natural therefore that hopes should be indulged that England might change her policy of opposition to silver and join in a movement for international bimetalism. It is just as well, however, to remember when indulging in such hopes that in England the national finances have never figured as an issue in politics, and that, unless there is a radical upheaval of precedent, the personal opinions of Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour will not be sufficient to change the financial policy of that country. It is quite certain, however, that if the coming parliamentary elections shall result in favor of the conservative party, to which the new cabinet belongs, that a strong effort will be made by the silver men of Europe and America to get England to declare in favor of bimetalism. But all previous efforts in that line have been balked by the mighty influence of the financiers of Lombard street, who forced the adoption of the gold standard and who will fight silver to the last ditch.

The Greensboro Record says: The following is a true copy of a testimonial received from a gentleman in New York regarding the virtues of a blood medicine: "Three weeks ago I had no liver and no lights; I took two bottles of your medicine and now I have a 20 pound liver and electric lights."

Thoughts for Sunday.

If we nibble at sin we are in great danger of being caught on the devil's hook. A little indulgence always leads to more.

Be careful about your speech. The Holy Spirit is grieved by the foolish and filthy words that fall from your lips.

Be reverent in God's house. It may seem a trivial matter, but it will tell upon character. Irreverence is next to blasphemy.

Don't spend your time trying to defend the Bible. The old book would have been better off if it had not been defended so much.

David's greatest trouble was with the members of his own family. After all, domestic troubles are the greatest afflictions of life, while domestic felicity is the greatest happiness.

Religion has much to do with emotion, but it will not do to be guided by feeling. That man is perfectly safe who is fixed in his mind to serve God, whether he feels like it or not.

The extra goods in the sleeves of our good sisters, if devoted to the Lord, would solve the problem of money for the missionary treasury. But this money will be as hard to turn into the treasury as the tobacco and cigar money of the men.—Christian Advocate.

Good Rat Tale.

We have just caught on to a good one, concerning the rat business. Our old friend and townsman Bill Smith who now lives in Elk township, bought a lot of corn a few weeks ago. The lot when put up last fall amounted to sixty bushels. Bill risked the chances on $20 for the pile. And we are informed by reliable parties that in removing the corn there were 386 rats killed, making 3 1/2 bushels of rats. The amount of corn realized after being shelled out was exactly 9 pecks. It seems that there were more rats than corn.—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

Since the Attorney General has given it as his opinion that the acceptance of one office vacates the office already held, it is now in order for every man who holds two offices in the State to select which he shall resign before he is forced to give up to give up the one he held first.

WHY IS IT?

Some Inquisitive Friend Asks Questions We Can't Answer.

In these century-end days, when everybody seems to be wholly absorbed in making his or her neighbor live up to the higher ideals, it seems fitting to call attention to some matters, which, though they lack the importance of equal suffrage or cycling as a proper recreation for women, are nevertheless disturbing factors in the problem of the perfected life. For instance:

Why will men carry half-smoked, burning cigars into "L" trains and cable cars and why don't conductors stop it?

Why will women always ask the elevator boy to wait and then remember that they don't want to use it at all?

Why will a man bore his friends with stories of his wife and babies instead of going home to them?

Why will a woman always wait until she gets just in front of a ticket window before she tries to find her pocketbook?

Why will a man take fifteen minutes to tell you a story and then admit that he "can't tell it?"

Why will women ape men and then scorn any man who acts as they do? —N. Y. Recorder.

Where He Had Been.

Trivet—I hear that you have been spending some time at a health resort.

Dicer—Well, I'm just out of the hospital.—N. Y. World.

Romance and Reality.

A young student of sociology, who belongs to one of the oldest and most exclusive families of New York, and has spent most of his life in the circles of the Four Hundred, is making a queer collection of data which, he says, he intends to publish. It is a study of the blasted lives of the old, wrinkled beggar women who are so often met with in the streets. He never sees one but he accosts her and asks her: "Were you ever happy when you were young?" If he finds that his query develops an interesting story he tips a good silver piece into the trembling hand. That sets the old woman's tongue loose, and tales of youthful romance and ruin are unfolded that might make matter for novels more intense and powerful than the average.—N. Y. Recorder.

Wear and Tear.

Briggs—It's a great thing to be rich. Look at Bonder, for instance. He hires a young lady to read all the stories in the magazines for him, and when she gets a good one she lets him know. The only trouble is that he has to change girls so often.

Griggs—What becomes of the old ones?

Briggs—They usually go hopelessly insane.—N. Y. Herald.

Good Play—Good House,

The young people had a good audience in the Opera House, Friday evening, to witness the play "Imogene" for the benefit of Hope Fire Company. The play was well rendered and the audience highly pleased. About $85 was realized and turned over to the company. This helps the company's fund quite handsomely.

Let the Train Go Through.

As long as the railroad is giving such poor connection in fact almost no connection at all—by their present freight train schedule to enable people to go through to Morehead without having to lay over a day in Kinston, could not they arrange to let the South bound passenger train run through to Morehead Saturday evenings and return Monday mornings? This would give opportunity for a delightful trip and be appreciated by the seaside seekers.

Seven for June.

During this week three couples were brave enough to scrape up the price of admission and applied to the Register of Deeds for license to the state of matrimony. These were George Harris and Emma E. Braxton, white, and Allen Langley and Mary Pugh, Bert Brown and Ary Kilpatrick. With one of the colored couples it was a case of necessity with the groom to get married or stay in jail, so he gave a mortgage to raise enough funds to secure the license.

The number of license issued for the month of June was only seven, four for white and three for colored couples.
