IN THE STATE.

Records of Matters of General Interest

Last Saturday there was over 1,200 qushels of North Carolina corn at Newberne waiting for shipment.

Great swarms of locusts have made their appearance in Cabarrus county. Their cries can be heard for miles.

The Observer says that there has been between 300 and 400 new houses built in Charlotte since the first of January.

Mr. Walter H. Page, one of the leading thinkers of the country and native of this State, has resigned the editorship of the Forum.

A small colored boy named Zeb Jones got one of his eyes cut out the other day, says the Journal, with clam shell, thrown by another colored boy. The eye was broken so that it ran out.

Mrs. W. M. Rawls, of Onslow county, is the mother of 15 children, 12 of whom are living, and she has 86 grand-children, 72 of whom are living, 16 great grand children, 12 of whom are living. Her age is 72 years.

The quartermaster general is issuing $5,000 worth of clothing to the State Guard, just received from the government on requisition from the various companies in the State Guard. There are now thirty companies, with application from thirty others.

At Ocracoke.

"Uncle John" Cherry came up from Ocracoke to-day to get the excursion party ready to take down to-morrow. He says there is a nice crowd at the hotel and Messrs Bell & Harris are sustaining their reputation for keeping a good house. All wants of their guests are supplied.

Fishing continues fine. Col. Williamson, of Asheville, was out Monday and at four casts of his line caught eight trout—two at each haul—and if he had had more hooks on his line there is no telling how many he would have caught. Tuesday he caught a 30lb drum that took him 20 minutes to land, and Wednesday he caught another weighing 27½ lbs that took him 90 minutes to land. He is the happiest man on the island and the champion catcher of big fish.

A large crowd will go down Saturday from Wilson, Tarboro and Greenville.

Between Temptations.

This scribe is just now posing midway between two great temptations. The State Press Convention meets at Greensboro next week, and these annual gatherings with the beethren of the Fourth Estate are occasions we look forward to with much pleasure. The prospects of two jolly days with them is more than we can forego without some interference out of the ordinary.

On the other hand some friends with whom we have been taking an annual outing at Ocracoke have hied themselves there and are writing that they have been looking for us on every boat, that fish are biting like "crowds at the patent medicine fake on court day," and that this pleasant old resort is surpassing any of its former seasons.

It is hard to decide between the two, but as the Press boys don't get together but once a year we have concluded to "go west" next week, and if our friends at Ocracoke will just hold on we will try to mingle in the ocean with them and help them pull fish early in August.

Fit for Summer.

That's what you are if you buy your Summer—

Neckwear, Collars, Cuffs, Shoes

Come to me and I'll make you cool, neat and stylish for the season. My TIES are the acme of neatness and comfort. In this line we have an assortment worth looking at.

FRANK WILSON THE KING CLOTHIER.

Sawed The House In Halves.

An interesting and unique little squabble between two colored families is reported from Raleigh. Lewis Hinton and James Johnson owned a house jointly; their families lived in different ends of the house. The wives of the two men were continually fussing, so that they were almost on the verge of fighting. There was no peace between them. To settle the difficulty the men, Hinton and Johnson, sawed the house in halves. The lot was divided off in equal proportions and one half of the house was put on one lot and the other half on the other lot. A fence divides them and there is once more peace in the Johnson and Hinton families.

Mrs. E. C. Jennings, of Chicago wants a divorce because her husband finds it cheaper to move than to pay rent, and for that reason moves so often that his wife hasn't time to get things straightened out in one house before he moves into another.

Pitt County Rifles had a drill this afternoon

A recent convert of the Salvation Army in Seattle, Wash., gave a startling proof of the genuineness of his profession of repentance by making public announcement that he was an escaped convict, having sixteen years yet to serve in the Leavenworth, Kan. penitentiary, and that he was ready to go back to jail. A few days ago a guard from the penitentiary arrived in Seattle, identified the converted convict, and took him back, really rejoicing.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

All the evidence in the Shem-we" case is now in and the argument was begun yesterday morning. There will be five speeches on each side. The State has made a very strong case against the prisoner and we do not see how the jury can bring in a verdict of not guilty and yet this is about the history of such trials. What a jury will do in such case is one of the things hard to be foretold. It will be a battle royal between the distinguished counsel on each side.

Mrs. Pattie E. B. Arrington and the printers of her paper styled, "Criminal Docket" have been presented in Wake Superior Court for libel against ex-Judge Whitaker, and in another case for libel against the late Chief Justice, W. N. H. Smith.

The language used in the paper in reference to Judge Whitaker was as follows:

"No doubt my son we all know you like anything on God's green earth called money. You have proved it in every way, but the greatest proof was when you robbed, yes, stole, thirteen hundred dollars from me, your client, by deception and false statements, and then made an order paying out twenty-two hundred and fifty dollars of my money at two o'clock at night, you getting ten per cent. of the debt, it being a case you had for some man against the Arrington estate."

The following forms the basis for the indictment for libel against the late Chief Justice. She says:

"Why does he help hold a woman's and children's home gotten by fraud? The work of that noted Chief Justice, referred to in that paper. Is that one of the honors handed down from pap to son?"

Mrs. Arrington is reported as saying that this is just what she wanted, and that when she gets in the courts she will make it lively for somebody and give the newspapers something that will make them 'fairly bristle.'

WEATHER WISE.

The following specimens of folks lore are from the late Gen. R. W. Hazen's compilation of Weather Proverbs:

If the bull leads the van in going to pasture, rain must be expected.

The cardinal point to which a cat turns and washes her face after a rain shows the direction from which the wind will blow.

When a storm threatens, if cattle go under trees it will be a shower; if they continue to feed it will probably be a continued rain.

When cows fail their milk, expect stormy and cold weather.

When cows bellow in the evening, expect snow that night.

In Texas, when cattle hasten to timber, expect a "norther."

When a cow stops and shakes her foot there is bad weather behind her.

If a dog howls when some one leaves the house it indicates rain.

When pigs go about with sticks in their mouths expect a "norther" in Texas.

If swine be restless and grunt loudly, if they squeel and jerk up their ears, there will be much wind. Hence, the proverb, "Pigs can see the wind."

Buzzards flying high indicate fair weather, but a solitary buzzard flying high indicates rain.

One crow flying alone is a sign of foul weather, but if crows fly in pairs, expect fine weather.

Owls hooting indicate rain. If they scream in foul weather it will change to fair.

Parrots whistling indicates rain. Parrots and canaries dress their feathers and are wakeful the evening before a storm.

Thousands of bushels of tomatoes are rotting on the vines in Florida, for want of canneries to preserve them, and next winter Florida people will be buying canned tomatoes from the North and paying at the rate of about $6 to $8 a bushel for them. That's a kind of thrift that isn't confined to Florida.—Wilmington Star.

A Washington dispatch to a Philadelphia paper says that "there is not a dry-dock in the country large enough to take in our battle ships, and that in consequence two of these vessels will be compelled to use the dry-dock at Halifax." If the statement is correct, the fact is hereby shown that the Navy Department has been singularly remiss in providing the means for docking vessels of the new navy at home. Dry-docks are just as necessary as battleships, as without the former the latter cannot be kept in a condition of thorough efficiency, and the Navy yards of the country are the places where these docks should be located.

Edward Atkinson rises to remark that cows have been used as mediums of exchange—money. He might have extended his remarks to cover coon skins, fish hooks, tobacco, wheat, corn, nails shells, beads, and various other articles which have been used as money by nations civilized and uncivilized, and what would all that prove, simply that money is what law or common agreement in the absence of law, makes money.—Wil. Star.

A good many of the people of Pottstown, Pa., are in trouble because a crank has predicted another flood on the strength of information furnished him by a ghost of one of the victims of the Johnstown flood.

AN OLD RIFLE.

It Could Send Eleven Bullets in Quick Succession.

When Made the Magazine Idea Had Not Even Been Thought of—Two Hartford Men with Telescopes of Their Own Make.

There is a wide range of work between the making of telescopes and of rifles, but, strangely enough, says the Hartford Times, both results have been accomplished by the Hartford astronomer, John Hale. Years before the war Mr. Hale left his home in Wethersfield and settled in Virginia. He was of an inventive turn of mind, and set himself to different kinds of work that required skill and thought and persistency of the most dogged character. Mr. Hale produced among other things, while he was in Virginia, an engine that could be used in running a mill which he wanted. The start was made with the raw material and a wooden lathe. The next thing which he set his heart on was a rifle that could be fired a number of times in succession. This work was also begun with raw material, and came from the maker's hands an arm capable of being fired eleven times in succession, the cylinder system instead of the magazine being used. In fact, the magazine principle as originated and developed by James P. Lee of this city had not been thought of when Mr. Hale's old arm was wrought out by hand.

The rifle was made in 1859 or thereabouts. The cylinder has eleven chambers, which were drilled in the solid steel. The nipples for the percussion caps were also drilled and bored by hand. While the rifle was in use it was never known to miss fire. The barrel is smooth bore, the caliber not being much larger than that of the old Colt revolver. This curious arm, which was put together in a primitive way, was brought north by Mr. Hale when he left his Virginia home at the outbreak of the war, and has been kept in an out of the way corner until a few days ago. It was recovered in Mr. Hale's ransacking of the old attic in his house at the north end, and has been secured by the collector, A. E. Brooks, and will be kept hereafter in the wonderful collection of arms which he has in this city.

Mr. Hale, after he came to this city, began the work with telescopes which has made him so widely known here. Like Dr. John Dwyer, who has one of the best telescopes in the city, made by his own hands, Mr. Hale has made his own instruments. Dr. Dwyer began his telescope years ago while residing on Asylum street, grinding the glass himself and making the entire instrument. The idea was thought out even when he was a medical student at Yale, and was carried into effect after he came back to Hartford. It is an interesting and noteworthy fact that two men in this city have produced instruments of such value, working out their ideas by the most patient and persistent application.

OLD MEN AWHEEL.

Hundreds of Graybeards Ride Bicycles in New York.

Not less pleasing than the sight of the young women and young men on their bicycles is the sight of the old chaps. Lots of graybeards can be seen along the uptown avenues, wheeling at a speed that must be admired. Two or three of them challenged a squad of their juniors to a race recently, and beat them badly, beat even the energetic damsels that joined in the race. They sat erect, got a good grip, and worked their thews from the finger tips to the shoulder blades, from the big toe the ilium and even, it seemed, up to the ribs. A determined old chap on a bicycle can often give points to the youngsters.

A good time for bicycling at this season of the year is the early morning, as early perhaps, as four o'clock, when the air is cool and the weather fair. One may start at that hour, or at five, after a solid sleep of eight or nine hours, and after taking a cup of coffee, or a tumbler of hot water with a crust of bread, or a hard ship cracker, or, better still, a half of one of those little round, hard and crisp crackers. It is best not to take too long a run then—well, say a half hour's run; for the business of the day must be attended to, and one should not waste his strength before beginning it. It is far better and healthier for a bicyclist to go out soon after dawn than at night when it is dark. A spectacle of five or ten thousand wheelers, men and women, on the boulevard at five or six o'clock in the morning, would be worth looking at.

Friends Were Too Friendly.

John G. Whittier was greatly loved by strangers, who not only called on him, but thriftily insisted on putting up with him all night. "Thee has no idea," said his sister, "how much time Greenleaf spends trying to lose these people in the streets. Sometimes he comes home and says: 'Well, sister, I had hard work to lose him, but I have lost him. But I can never lose a her. The women are more pertinacious than the men; don't thee find them so, Maria?'"

GREENVILLE TO OCRACOKE.

M. and the steamer Virginia Dare leaves Washington at 10 o'clock P. M., arriving at Ocracoke at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Returning the The Virginia Dare leaves Ocracoke at 4 o'clock Sunday evening, arriving at Washington at 11 o'clock Sunday night. Steamer Myers leaves Washington at 6 o'clock Monday morning arriving at Greenville at 11. Fare for the round trip from Greenville $2.00. Tickets good for season.
