LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

There will be quite a number of tobacco buyers on this market during the coming season that were never here before.

Tobacco as a general thing is looking very well all over the county but on an average it is the latest crop that we ever had since 1890. Look out farmers for the August worms.

Judging from the numbers of tobacco flues that have been carried out this summer one would conclude that there is a very large increase in tobacco acreage in this county. There is a considerable increase, it is true, but remember it has now been five years since most of our farmers put in their flues, and by this time they are pretty bad off for the wear and a good many who are buying flues this season are replacing their old ones.

Last Friday morning we went over to Bethel, spent the forenoon with Mr. Z. D. McWorter, and in the afternoon with him and Rev. Mr. Forbes walked over to Mr. M. C. S. Cherry's. We found Mr. Cherry confined to his room, the result of an attack of the L. Grippe, two or three years ago. Mr. Cherry says he has been confined almost entirely to his room since January and his health is very feeble indeed, but his mind is as bright as a newly coined silver dollar. For several terms Mr.

Cherry represented Pitt county in the lower house of the General Assembly, and in that capacity served his people well and faithfully, and won for himself the highest esteem of the people of his county. Mr. Cherry has always been a live, active and industrious man and as one of his many friends we sincerely hope that he may be able to rebuild his health, and be spared for much more usefulness to himself and his county.

Last Saturday the Tobacco Grower's met in the Court House. There was not a very large attendance but just enough for all to be comfortable. In the absence of Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse Mr. G. F. Evans, the vice-president, presided. The principal subject discussed was the country roads leading to Greenville. Some one suggested that the people of Greene county who had to bring their tobacco to market over the Adams' bridge were very anxious to have it repaired. O. L. Joyner stated that he had gone before the County Commissioners at their last meeting and was informed by them that the last Legislature moved the county line making the creek on which the Adams' bridge is built the line between Pitt and Greene counties, and they, the Pitt county Commissioners, would not repair the bridge now unless the County Commissioners of Greene, would help. Mr. W. A. Darden stated that the bridge was all right but the butment on the Greene side was in such condition that a load could not be pulled over it and that Mr. J. W. Dixon who was overseer of the road would in a few days repair that part of it. Mr. G. T. Tyson said that the right step in the right direction had never been taken, and if the Tobacco Growers' Association did nothing else except to get some good roads why its mission was a grand and noble one.

A committee was appointed to confer with the parties owning the land from a point on the Papers and Towns.

In noting the change in the Landmark from a weekly to a semi-weekly, the Marion Record kindly says:

It is gratifying to note this step forward in this most excellent paper. The people of Statesville knew a good thing when they see it, consequently they have stood by the Landmark, which has enabled it to do more for the town than any other business enterprise in that thriving little city. A town is judged by the appearance of its local paper, which is always a true index of the town from which it is published.

As if in confirmation of the argument here made, the Greenville REFLECTOR, with equal kindness says:

We heard a distinguished citizen of Statesville say that he was induced to make his home there through reading copies of the Landmark that chanced to fall into his hands, his impression being that a town sending out such a paper as the Landmark would be a good place to live in. This is just one illustration among many similar ones that have occurred. It is the home paper that talks for the town, and to see the business men standing by it shows that they have confidence in their town and believe in maintaining home enterprises.

There is sound sense in the propositions here advanced. An evil tree cannot bring forth good fruit and it is equally impossible for a dead or dying town to hold a live and first-class newspaper. If, as has been generously said by many papers and people the Landmark has attained to a degree of excellence above the average, and has been able to exert a helpful influence in behalf of its town, it is because the town, unmindful of political or personal differences, has given the paper a united and generous support, making possible a measure of usefulness which it could not have exerted otherwise. Thus, every good word said of the Landmark is a good word said for Statesville, for the paper is what the town has made it.—Statesville Landmark.

A Good Medicine for Man, Beasts and Fowls.

MR. EDITOR:—I notice in this week's Democrat that Dr. Dodge, of Hamilton, Ill., gives a recipe for hog cholera; and, while I do not doubt its efficacy, the following is much cheaper, and equally potent: Take enough Dog fennel blossoms (known in some sections as "wild chamomile") to make a strong tea, and give them—say one cup full—(in slop or otherwise), two or three times a week during the cholera season. It is equally potent as a preventative of chicken cholera, by putting the blooms in their water trough.

It is also an excellent remedy for man, with lung trouble. Take an ordinary handfull of the blossoms, put them in one quart of good rye whiskey, and take a table spoonfull three times a day. "Ah," says some one, "I thought you were opposed to the use of whiskey." So I am, bitterly opposed to the use of it as a beverage, and never use it in any shape or form, but I have very little patience with this Puritanical-foolery, which condemns the use of it, strictly as a medicine.

W. P. WILLIAMS.

Davidson College, June 28, '95.
P. S. As said "fennel" is now in full bloom, every farmer should save enough of it for use in fall and winter.—W. in Charlotte Democrat.

Philosophical.

Some of the newspapers and politicians will probably protest that it should have been a boy but we are glad that it is a girl. The Democratic party cannot have too many daughters and the American nation is all the better off for every American girl baby born into the world. We congratulate the President and Mrs. Cleveland. Boys are well enough in their way, but girls make a better average, taking one consideration with another. They are always better looking, they behave better, they have more sense, do not fool with politics and they mould the civilization of the country. Our best wishes for the little stranger at Gray Gables is that she shall be like her mother.—Charleston News and Courier.

HOW H. R. H. DRESSES.

The Wonderful Outfit of the Prince of Wales Described.

He Spends a Great Deal of Money with His Tailors But Much of It is for Uniforms, of Which He Has Many.

In a chatty article on the prince of Wales and his clothes, a writer in Cassell's Saturday Journal says: As a matter of fact the "First Gentleman in Europe" does spend a great deal of money with his tailors. It should be remembered, nevertheless, that much of this is for uniforms. The prince is popularly supposed to possess seventy military uniforms, and this is about accurate.

When we remember that a cavalry outfit may cost £150 as a low estimate, and that subalterns entering a line regiment rarely begin with a lower disbursement than £50 or £60, the amount that the prince's uniforms has cost him is easily to be gauged.

The prince, of course, possesses, for the most part, colonel's uniforms, but as a field marshal he is compelled often to renew the terribly expensive outfit suited to that rank, and it is in this fine tunic that he appears at most military ceremonies and at royal weddings, or other great occasions of state. In addition, he possesses many naval uniforms and the dress of a large number of German, Russian and Austrian regiments.

Putting aside the question of uniforms, upon which his royal highness cannot spend less than three or four hundred pounds a year, we come to his ordinary dress. It is admitted universally that very few men in town manage things with more taste or have a quicker eye for good cloth. There are youths, no doubt, whose tailors' bills are far larger than the prince's, for he is by no means extravagant, although exceedingly particular about his clothes.

Nor does he, says the writer, pay absurdly fancy prices, as many people suppose, being charged the usual rate of a west end house. This means that a frock coat may cost him twelve guineas, which most people would regard as very "fancy" indeed; a dress suit somewhere about fifteen, trousers four guineas, and an ordinary "ditto" suit from eight to ten guineas.

When in town the frock coat is invariably worn by the prince. No doubt during the London season he consumes a large number of these articles—perhaps two a month, of which one will be a light gray.

And it is a habit of his never to wear a coat two seasons running, even if it has been used only two or three times by him. As he is in town perhaps six months in the year, his total of "frocks" may be set down roughly at twelve.

In dress suits he is supposed to be particularly extravagant, but this is not really the case. Any man about town has five or six dress suits a year. The prince may have a dozen, but the story told in a contemporary recently that he had one a week is pure nonsense.

When the prince is going to Newmarket he often wears a "ditto" suit with light covert over it. In "ditto" suits, perhaps, his total would astonish the humble man who pays his tailor £30 a year and considers that heavy.

It is certain that he never wears one of these suits more than two or three times, and his stock of them is tremendous. Of shooting suits for the autumn he has an immense variety, using a different style of dress for battue work to that adopted for ordinary work with the dogs. Here alone for a country dress he can scarcely spend less than a hundred pounds a year.

In the matter of hats, it is a well-known fact that the prince has three a fortnight, also buying a large number of bowler and square black hats for country use.

At Sandringham there is a hat-room with a man whose chief duty it is to keep the prince's "tiles" in a high condition of polish. In the same palace a number of vast wardrobes contain the bulk of the uniforms and clothes which are not in regular use.

Those large scarfs which are now worn with a frock coat often cost half a guinea. There are scores of up-to-date youths who have fifty pairs of gloves per annum; three dozen shirts would be regarded as an absolute minimum. So far as the prince is concerned, he never wears a pair of gloves twice, and in this, and in the matter of boots, he is unquestionably the best dressed man in the kingdom.

Waifs of Wisdom.

The man who can give a new way to pay old debts is now in demand.

The "people" consists principally of politicians and statesmen out of jobs.

A man never argued himself into heaven yet, but there are lots of them trying to do it.

It don't take much money to control the man who is always talking about somebody else's being bought.

Free silver talk does not make meat nor gold standard make bread.

A "non partisan" is the man who wants his own side to get there.

Climax Capped.

Our liver is not out of order, as we are doing well, thank you, at least paying our own way in the world, but we have been considerably annoyed recently by the inconsistency of some people; the climax was capped a day or so ago by a business man who approached us with "you ought to rip these people up the back who go away from home to buy goods." And this same man believes in exclusive fence sign advertising, and uses rubber stamps for commercial stationery.—Durham Sun.

Chauncey Depew says that there are only five persons who are likely to be considered as presidential candidates by the next Republican National Convention. These he names as follows: Harrison, McKinley, Reed, Allison and Morton, but he added that the nominee would probably come from New York. And thus he expressed the opinion that Morton would be the winner.

Murdered His Wife.

On Friday in Pamlico county a colored man named Gabe Thomas and his wife were out fishing. They quarrelled over the tackle and Thomas struck his wife on the head with an axe, killing her. He attempted to cover up his crime by throwing her body in the river. But "murder will out." His crime was discovered, he was arrested at Stonewall Saturday, and is now in prison.

They Keep Going.

Ocracoke is still to the front. Two hundred and twenty went down Saturday night. Fishing is better than ever. One young lady went out last Friday and caught forty eight trout. Another party caught one hundred and four. Dr. Pitt caught a drum that weighed 37½ pounds beating Col. Williamson's catch by 7½ pounds. He also caught a sheep head that tipped the scales at 10 pounds. Hotel fare is getting better as the season advances. Those who wish to enjoy a little recreation and pleasure cannot fail to get both if they will go to this delightful place. Excursion again next Saturday leaving here at 10 o'clock.

A Feast.

To-day the REFLECTOR was generously remembered by Riverside Nurseries with a basket of tomatoes and plums, as fine as we ever saw. The tomatoes were huge in size, seven of them weighing exactly seven pounds. The plums were of the "Abundance" variety, some of them measuring fully 1½ inches in diameter. They know how to grow things up at Riverside and make the best that can be found.

Shemwell Acquitted.

At the opening of Court in Lexington this morning the jury in the case of the State against Shemwell for the murder of Dr. Payne brought in a verdict of not guilty.

We had expected from the evidence as reported in the papers that not even a jury could stifle their consciences so as to bring in a verdict of less guilty than murder in the second degree, and only this from the fact, which they might infer, that he committed the deed in a passion, not having cooled off from the previous troubles.

Just such verdicts as this do more to encourage lynching than all of the spirit of lawlessness which exists even in the most depraved.

We might have thought differently about this trial had we been present and heard and seen all, but from the evidence as reported we believe the universal sentiment is that Shemwell ought to be punished and that not very lightly. The law ought to be more rigidly enforced in these grave offenses. Until it is done we may expect people to take the law into their own hands in aggravated cases.
