Where He Put His Arm.

He stood outside the gate awhile,
And said, "Good night," with love-sick smile.

"Good night," she said. "Good night," once more

He muttered as he'd done before;
And then, lured by some subtle charm,
He came inside and put his arm—

She wore a hat of jaunty shape,
Tied up with soft cringing crepe,
A truant ribbon from its peak
Strayed down and kissed her dimpled cheek.

The moon was full, the hour was late
As they stood there beside the gate.

She said she thought there was no harm,
And so he fondly placed his arm,
Where well he knew 'twould do most good

And with lips glued they stood and stood,
And slipped and sipped love's nectared sweets,

Which only flow when lips thus meet;
And both with bliss would have been choked

Had not his only "gallas broke."
—Henry Blount in Wilson Mirror.

Four or five tobacco curers from Granville county came in on the train yesterday evening and have gone in the country today to get places.

THE JENNYSS-WILKINSON AFFAIR.

We clip the following from the News and Observer furnished it in a special from Asheville under date of July 13.:

The coroner's inquest over the body of Mrs. Jennyss, who was killed from ambush near Murphy, resulted in the holding of Will Wilkinson, who was with the woman when she was shot, and R. L. Jennyss, her husband.

Habeas corpus proceedings are likely to be instituted in behalf of Wilkinson.

CANTON, N. C., July 13.

Will Wilkinson, member of W. B. Wilkinson & Co., Asheville, a prominent lumber firm, has for some time been paying attention to Mrs. R. L. Jennyss, wife of an attorney who is chairman of the board of county commissioners of Cherokee county. Recently the husband and Wilkinson narrowly avoided trouble on her account, and Wilkinson promised not to meet her again. However, he went to Murphy from Asheville Tuesday, and next morning went to Jennyss' home, 9 miles, knowing that Mr. Jennyss was engaged for the day and night in town. He spent the day and part of the night with Mrs. Jennyss, and about 2 o'clock a. m., she started to drive him to Murphy to catch the early train. Meanwhile Mr. Jennyss had decided to go home, and started in a rig at ten o'clock p. m. When near home he discharged the hack and approached the house as Wilkinson and his own wife drove off.

He ran after the couple a mile or so and heading them off on a curve in road, he fired five shots at Wilkinson, missing him, but one ball took effect in his wife's breast, killing her.

Wilkinson drove ahead with the woman, and came up with the hack in another mile, where he forced the driver to take the Jennyss rig back, while he took the hack on toward Murphy, leaving the dead woman in charge of a man who lived by the road where he overtook the hack.

Wilkinson came on past Murphy and boarded the Asheville train, riding in concealment until the county line was passed, when he entered the coach openly. But on arriving at Bryson City he was arrested and put in jail until the next train on which he was removed to Murphy jail.

Jennyss ran on after the cart after the shooting until he came upon the form of his unfaithful wife, but returned home in a short time.

Mr. Jennyss said that he greatly regretted the affair, and was only sorry that it was not Wilkinson in place of his wife, who was dead, and that but for the fact that he had to run over a quarter of a mile to head them off, and had to steady his right arm, as he was so nervous and wrought up, he would have got him, as Wilkinson was on the side of the buggy next to him. Wilkinson had his left arm around Mrs. Jennyss, who was driving when the shooting occurred.

Public sentiment seems to be greatly in Mr. Jennyss' favor. On account of the peculiar circumstances and the prominence of the parties, the matter has created a furore of excitement in all the country around.

You need not hold up sending in watermelons, peaches, apples, plums, tomatoes, &c., &c., &c., because the editor is away. We will have no conscientious scruples about appropriating them for ourselves, and reporting to him that they were duly received.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

John D. Arnold, of Charlotte, N. C., shot David Rives with a Winchester rifle in front of the Central Hotel on Monday night. The shooting is a mystery as no assignable cause has been discovered as yet.

Milliken is indignant at the reports in reference to his entering the room of Miss Gertrude Phillips, daughter of Judge Phillips of Washington, D. C.. His brother has this to say in reference to the matter:

"Mr. B. H. Milliken left town on the advice of his brother on Saturday, July 6th, with the understanding that no criminal proceedings would be had against him. Since he had learned of the indictment and the charges against him, he is surprised and indignant and will return to Washington to meet the accusation. A full statement of the case will be given to the press later."

There was a severe hail storm in the vicinity of Hartford, Conn, on last Saturday afternoon and great damage to growing crops was done. In Glastonburg county 300 acres of tobacco was ruined. It was calculated that the weight of the hail stones on a four acre field was sixty-four tons. The hail was gathered from a section 7 by 16 feet and weighed and found that the fall was 200 pounds to the square rod or 3,000 pounds to the acre. The hail fell in streaks. Wherever it fell in quantity, tobacco was ruined and grapes, cucumbers, tomatoes and other vine plants were stripped. The grape crop is badly damaged. On the east side of the river, the tobacco crop from north of East Windsor hill to South Glastonburg is ruined except a few acres of small plants recently set out.

What is the matter with Stewart brothers, State Printers? It seems as if they were elected to correct the laws of the last Legislature as well as to print them. If not, they have assumed the responsibility of doing so. Another evidence of this fact is shown by the following from yesterday's News and Observer:

Mr. J. C. Ellington, State Librarian, after comparing the certified list of magistrates now on file in the office of the Secretary of State, states that in the list as printed by the State Printers, M. I. and J. C. Stewart, the most apparent changes are shown.

In 269 cases the names of magistrates have been changed, or printed incorrectly.

Eighty-five names of magistrates that are not shown on the certified list in the office of the Secretary of State have been added to the list.

The terms of office of magistrates have been changed in eighty-nine cases.

Six names of magistrates on the certified list have been dropped by the State Printers, and do not appear on their printed list.

In an appendix to the volume these changes will be found under the head of "errata."

Can it be possible that the Stewarts, whose work the Fusionists pronounce so excellent, have a proof-reader who makes 449 serious errors in a single list?

And if these changes were simple errors, how does it happen that eighty-five names not on the certified list were added by the Printers to the State?

Where did those eighty-five names come from?

Were these printers elected, and are they authorized to remedy the mistakes of incompetent clerks and ignorant members?

The certified list filed with the Secretary of State is final and cannot be legally changed.

Why did the Stewarts change it in four hundred and forty nine particulars?

If it was through ignorance and error, are they capable of being printers to the State?

If it was through intention, is there not some means by which the State can stop the attempted falsifying of its records?

An Ingenious Device.

A resident of Auburn, Me., has invented an ingenious device for feeding his horses, and he does it with one of the ordinary little alarm clocks. The horse gets its feed grain when the alarm goes off. For instance, if he wants the horse to have its morning feed of grain at five o'clock and he himself does not care to turn out until six o'clock, he sets his alarm for five o'clock, and when morning comes the horse gets its breakfast an hour before his owner's eyes are open. It is so arranged that the alarm pulls the slide, letting the grain run through a sluice to the manger.

FREEZING QUICKSAND.

Novel Engineering Experiment in Progress in New York.

A Difficult Problem Which Gotham's New Driveway Has Presented to the Contractors—How It Is Being Solved—Watched with Interest.

Some of the work on the Speedway, as contractors who are doing it have already found out, is going to cost much more than the preliminary estimates of the park department engineers, says the New York Herald. The city will, of course, will have to pay for it finally, but meanwhile as the costs roll up engineers are very greatly interested in a process to which the added expense will be due. It is no more or less than freezing quicksand. The work is going on at a point in the construction of the Speedway immediately south of High Bridge, where there is now a huge hole in the ground along the Harlem river, which will be even longer and deeper before the work of securing a foundation for the Speedway retaining wall is completed.

The work is of a character to peculiarly interest engineers. Though somewhat similar steps have been adopted once or twice in the history of engineering science before, never have the same intricate problems been presented as now. The success of this experiment will be watched, therefore, with interest. Its cost will probably be in the neighborhood of thirty-five thousand dollars.

James D. Leary has the contract for constructing the section of Speedway upon which this unusual effort is to be made, and, curiously enough, the difficulty was encountered in the final fifty feet of his contract, which extends only from One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street to High Bridge. The work necessitates sinking a retaining wall to a rock foundation along the river side of the Speedway, and engineers' soundings at this particular point located this rock eighteen feet below the surface. Whether their sounding rods struck a detached stone here or not is not certain, but it has developed that hard bottom is probably twenty feet lower than supposed at the outset.

After sinking their sheeting to what was presumed to be the required depth it was found to be too short, and then a bed of quicksand developed, and no headway could be made. In this emergency the expedient of freezing this bank of quicksand and water so that it would not overflow the excavation for the wall's foundation had to be adopted.

Stewart & McDermott are doing this work, and they have introduced several new ideas into it. The plan is to freeze the bank whence the flow of mud and sand comes, so that a solid wall will be formed, next which the excavation will be sunk to the required depth—probably thirty-five feet or more. To accomplish this a row of four-inch pipes about three feet apart, capped at the bottom, have been sunk perpendicularly to a depth of forty feet. Into each a smaller pipe, open at the bottom, has been inserted to within an inch and a half of the bottom. By means of a huge condenser cold air is forced through the small pipes into the larger and returned for further service into the condenser. It has been possible thus to use air cooled by expansion to about fifty degrees below zero, and the effect of this intense cold upon the flowing mud and quicksand has been to solidify it. With a coffer dam to exclude the water of the Harlem the excavation is now being slowly sunk to rock. Some time will be required to complete this intricate work, but it is expected to prove a success in the end.

A Girl in Gray.

A certain auburn-haired girl appeared at an evening party not long ago in a simple gown which made her look like a picture. It was of sheer gray organdie made over mouse-gray satin, the outer skirt being very full and edged with fluttering ruffles. The blouse was composed of gray satin ribbon, three inches wide, alternating with creamy white lace, with a beautifully finished edge which lapped over the selvedge of the ribbon. About the neck was worn a dog collar of silver. The sleeves were immensely gigo, the tightly fitting lower arm buttoned with silver ornaments to match the collar. Gray silk stockings and gray suede slippers, with a bit of silver embroidery and gray suede gloves completed the picture, which any red-haired girl may duplicate for very little.—N. Y. Advertiser.

The Presbyterians.

The "Presbyterian church in the United States" claims a membership of 179,721, and holds church property valued at $8,812,162. The number of societies in this denomination is 2,391, which hold services in 2,288 churches, seating 690,843 people, and occupies also 143 halls, with a seating capacity of 19,895.

A Fireless Locomotive.

A fireless locomotive was recently used on the Aix-la-Chapelle-Julich railroad. The motive power is derived from soda. The invention is based on the principle that solutions of caustic soda, which have high boiling points, liberate heat while absorbing steam. These engines eject neither smoke nor steam, and work noiselessly. Compared with coal-burning locomotives, the soda engines have a capacity equal to the former, while they are worked with greater ease and simplicity.

HE WAS ALL RIGHT.

The Old Man Had Not Known the Whole Truth.

"My daughter, be not deceived."

As the aged father laid his hand caressingly on the head of the beautiful girl who knelt at his feet there was a suggestion of deep seriousness in his voice.

"This young man who has asked you to marry him," he said, "has all the outward blandishments that attract a young girl, but if I mistake not he is lacking in those deep and solid traits which alone are the best materials that husbands are made of. You tell me he has an artist's nature, which, beautiful and attractive in itself, I fear—"

"But, father—"

"Here me out," continued the old man. "Which, I fear, will never put money in his purse. You tell me that he is learned and has history upon the tips of his fingers, but is this the knowledge that will surround you with the comforts of life?
You speak of him as poetical in his ideas, with some literary ability.
Ah, my daughter, will his taste for literature put bread in your mouth?
I grant you the young fellow is attractive, and that he is persevering, as you tell me, speaks in his favor; but believe me the best love is the most practical, my dear. It is a love that counts the dollars, and looks out for the material well being. Has this young man shown any capacity in this direction?"

The beautiful creature at his side looked up triumphantly into the old man's face.

"Yes, indeed, father," she joyfully replied; "I have not told you before, but he has one of the best collections of Napoleon relics on record."

And then the shrewd old financier, his form trembling with deep emotion, gathered her in his arms as he exclaimed:

"My daughter, will you forgive me? I could not have picked out a better man myself."—Truth.

Found Dead in Bed.

"T. W. Hughes, Newbern, N. C.," was placed on the Benbow register Saturday.

The gentleman, who appeared to be something over 30 years of age, said he had no baggage, but would pay in advance, which he did.

He seemed to be all right and was down in the office yesterday morning about 11 o'clock.

His presence after this seems not to have been noticed; this morning one of the servants entered his room about 7:30 and found him dead. A telegram was at once sent to Newbern and an answer was received to prepare the body for burial and ship by first express to that place. This was signed by F. W. Hughes.

It is learned here that he was well connected but left home when about 18, and has been roaming over the country, having been at home only once since and then to attend his father's funeral.

Mr. J. A. Odell this afternoon received a telegram to look after his remains and see that he was properly prepared for burial.—Greensboro Record.
