LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Tobacco curing is now getting in full blast.

A good many Granville county curers have already come in and more are expected soon.

The South Carolina markets are making strenuous efforts this year to sell most of the crop grown in the State.

For the last month seasons and crops too have somewhat reminded one of the year 1890. May it continue so until our crops are in the house.

The Greenville tobacco market will be ready for the sale of the new crop August 1st, but we will here say to the farmers that if you have good tobacco it will pay you better to hold it for a while at least till the excessive hot weather has passed.

Several bundles of new tobacco have been exhibited on the streets here. The tobacco as a matter of course, shows up very thin and papery but it has good color. These curings are principally plant bed leaves primed off and cured.

Passing through his tobacco field, last Tuesday with Mr. J. W. Hodges, he called our attention to one row of tobacco in the middle of the field, that was at least by an actual count of the leaves one third smaller than the surrounding tobacco. He said that it was all manured just alike and that no attention would ever have been given the row had it not been for the fact that there was a difference of opinion as to the best mode of starting the cultivation of the tobacco. One contended that the turn plow should be used in throwing dirt from the tobacco while Mr. Hodges contended that the cotton king or narrow was the best implement to use the first time the tobacco was worked. So under the difference of opinion they decided to use the harrow on all except one row through the middle of the field. This row was barred off with a turn plow and worked afterwards just like the other tobacco. Mr. Hodges says it has had the same cultivation and mode of management that the other has had and yet it is one third smaller clear through the field than the other rows. These two modes of cultivating tobacco the first time are employed by very near all of our people and each one is used just about as much as the other, hence the importance of ascertaining the better method of the two. It may have been the condition of the soil that favored the harrow. At any rate we hope that our farmers will look after this matter next spring and give the two systems, as Mr. Hodges has done an impartial test.

Colt in a Well.

Mr. John A. Fleming, of this county, came very near being a horse out last week, because he had a horse in--a well. A colt two and one-half years old fell in a well 23 feet deep and was got out again without any broken bones. It was a well used to furnish water to run his engine and is larger than the average well and not rocked up, or his coltship might have fared worse. The well was covered over with plank which had become rotten. The colt stepped upon the plank and down he went head foremost. Mr. Fleming heard the noise from the house and went at once to investigate. Seeing that the colt was not drowned or his neck broke efforts were made to get him out. This was done after a time by means of fastening ropes and chains around his body and drawing him up by means of a windlass. He fell back, when about half way to the top, two or three times, the rope slipping so as to cause him to lose his balance, but he appeared to be none the worse for this when he did finally reach the top again. Mr. Fleming says there was considerable water in the well and the colt kept from drowning by standing on his hind feet and putting his front ones on the side of the well. And then the water reached to his neck he barely being able to keep his head out of it.

Mr. Fleming tells us that two or three small scars about the colt's legs and one slight cut on the head are the only marks to tell of the unusual experience he went through. But he says it was the worst scared animal he ever saw.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

In the Massey-Pilot libel suit now being tried at Norfolk Mr. Massey was kept on the stand five or six days, and passed through a wonderfully rigid examination at the hands of Capt. Wise

It was flint against flint and sometimes the sparks would fly. Wednesday was a good day for the plaintiff, Ex-Governor McKinney was on the stand. He said he had measured Mr. Massey up and down and all around and does not hesitate to say that he would trust him; that he is alright, and ought to be believed; that his character was good and that he had never heard any thoughtful person say to the contrary. Governor O'Ferrall, Ex-Governor Cameron and Attorney-General Scott will next be on the stand. Counsel for Mr. Massey succeeded in positively refuting the charges made by defendants in reference to Mr. Massey writing a will so that the property went to him, and the charge that he had offered to secure a wife for some one, if paid. There is no telling when the case will be finished.

The papers at several points in Eastern North Carolina in the sections where tobacco growing has become successful note the building of warehouses, or additions to the number where some had already been built, and prize houses also. Warehouses and prizeries are both good and necessary, but if our Eastern friends want to give tobacco growing full encouragement to expand and to become a permanent, and also a profitable industry they will not confine themselves to the building of warehouses and prizeries, but will build factories for the manufacture of tobacco, so as to create a home market and more competition by bidders than can be expected when the leaf is in demand only for shipment and the bidders few in number. Growers may get good prices now in the towns where they market their leaf, and we take it for granted that they do as the area of cultivation is expanding, but they would get better prices and have more reliable markets, with fewer fluctuations, if there were home manufactories to consume the crops raised. There are perhaps fifty factories in Winston, some of them very large ones, which consume nearly all the tobacco grown within a considerable radius of that town. The factories would not only help the tobacco growers, but would bring in much money and add much to the wealth of the towns in which they were located.—Wilmington Star.

Baltimore is nearly all agog preparing for the International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union. The scheduled arrivals will begin to-morrow. The first delegates expected will be a party from lower South Carolina. A 15,000 pound bell is being placed in position at the big tent and will be used to call together the Baptists at service hours.

The front of the choir gallery has been covered in equal parts with the four colors of Baptist Union, viz: green, for Southern section; blue, west of the Mississippi River, gold, east of the Mississippi and red for Canada. A festoon of these colors is trained from the top of the large pole to the sides of the rostrum.

The Twelve Largest Cities.

The twelve largest cities in the world, in the order of their declared population, are as follows: London, Eng., (including suburbs), 5,100,613; Paris, 3,344,550; Osaka, Japan, 1,633,144; New York City, 1,513,501; Canton, China, 1,500,000; Aitchi, Japan, 1,390,702; Berlin, Prussia, 1,315,297; Tokoi, Japan, 1,288,907; Vienna, Austria, 1,103,857; Chicago, 1,099,133; Philadelphia, 1,046,252; Siam, China, 1,000,000. There are three other cities of China that are said to have 1,000,000 inhabitants, but it must be remembered that the populations of the Oriental cities are mere estimates.

Silver's Only Hope

Senator Harris and the other Democratic speakers at the Memphis Convention were right in declaring that the only hope of success of the free silver movement is through the Democratic party and therefore all Democrats who sincerely favor free silver should struggle for it in and through their old party.

A Great Problem of the Times.

One of the problems of the times is to obtain under-men who will take pains with their employer's business as with their own, and not expect a larger income than the head of the firm; and when one is found he is promoted so quickly that the problem is always active.—Biblical Recorder.

Boys, don't be idlers. If you have no regular employment take up some study and read good healthy books, but do not loaf about the streets in the company of idle, shiftless and vicious companions. There are more boys ruined by evil associates than through inherited criminality. Bad company tends to blunt the finer feelings, corrupt the morals, and invariably brings the innocent to look upon wrong with indifference. When a boy gets to this stage he is at the critical point of his life.—Exchange.

An exchange gives the following recipe for making scandal, which some folks know too well how to do already: Take one grain of falsehood, a handful of runabout, same quantity of limber tongue, six sprigs of backbite and a spoonful of "don't tell it." Add a few drops of envy and a little discontent and jealousy, strain it through a bag of misconstruction, cork it in a meddlerome bottle, hang it on a skein of street yarn and shake it well before taking.

THE UNEXPECTED.

A Cat in a Basket and Her Three Kittens.

A stout old lady with a red face and a big market basket on her arm boarded a crowded Girard avenue car yesterday afternoon, and taking the only vacant seat, deposited her basket in front of her. In a few minutes strange sounds began emerging from the basket and the stout old lady showed visible signs of embarrassment. The racket continued, and finally she tried to quiet the cat—for such it was—by speaking to it. Her efforts were futile, though, and an old gentleman sitting next to her thought she had better take off the lid and see what was the trouble; maybe it was caught in some manner. Gallantly dropping on one knee the old gentleman raised the lid slightly and peeped inside. He took one look. His face grew red and silently replacing the lid he walked to the platform and jumped off without waiting for the car to stop.

This peculiar action aroused the curiosity of the rest of the passengers, while the owner of the basket appeared to be greatly mystified. By this time the noise had ceased, but fully determined to investigate herself the old lady tore the lid of the basket completely off. Horrors! Instead of one cat there were four, three being sleek little kittens, all scrambling around with their eyes shut. The passengers were all crowding around now to get a look at the new family. But the stout old lady did not seem to relish her position and signaled the conductor to stop at the next crossing.—Philadelphia Record.

Unable to Oblige.

"Excuse me, sir," said the man in the row behind, "but would you mind asking your wife to remove her hat? I assure you that I cannot see a thing on the stage."

"I'd like to oblige you, sir, but it is impossible," said the man addressed. "We live out of town and we must get home to-night."

"What has that got to do with it?"
"What has that got to do with it? Why, our train goes twenty minutes after the end of the performance, and it takes her an hour to put that hat on."—Harper's Bazar.

HE WANTED TO KNOW.

A Puzzling Question for Even a Sporting Editor.

"Is this the place where they answer questions?" asked the rough-looking man as he entered the little back room in a newspaper office.

"There's a man on the staff who makes a bluff at doing it," said the sporting editor, "but he isn't in now."

"Oh, well, maybe you'll do," said the stranger.

"We don't answer verbal queries," protested the sporting editor. "Write your question out and send it in."

"It isn't much of a question, and I thought perhaps you—"

"Oh, I don't know where the reference books are," interrupted the newspaper man.

"They wouldn't do you any good anyway," said the stranger. "This isn't a book question; it's an up-to-date modern one. It's timely, you understand?"

"Well, then, fire ahead. I may know something about it."

"It's about the new woman—"

"Stop there!" cried the sporting editor. "That's clear out of the sporting department."

"No, it isn't," protested the stranger. "The bloomer girl belongs to that department along with bicycles, doesn't she?"

"Maybe she does," replied the sporting editor. "I hadn't thought of that. Go ahead."

"Well, you see, I'm a street car conductor."

"Yes."
 "And I want to know if the bloomer girl will get off the car backward like the—"

But the sporting editor had thrown up both hands as an intimation that the problem was clear beyond him.
