LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

The first new tobacco sold on the up country tobacco markets was sold in Winston last week at 5 cents a pound average.

Mr. T. J. Gentry, of Roxboro, N. C., came in Tuesday evening. He expects to deal in the weed on this market the coming season.

Kinston expects to have its first sale Thursday, 15th. The opening break will continue through Friday and Saturday, provided they get tobacco enough to keep them at it that long.

Tarboro will open the tobacco market there again Sept. 4th. We understand that the warehouses have been rented by good men and they expect to do considerable business there the coming year.

We were shown a letter last Saturday by Mr. G. M. Tucker from J. O. W. Gravely, of Rocky Mount, in which the writer says that Mr. Chauncy, the owner of the loop parent, was in Rocky Mount a few days ago and expected to come to Greenville, but owing to circumstances was prevented. He says further that he, Gravely, at one time expected to take the agency for the loop in Eastern Carolina, but since he has found that he would be antagonizing the interest of our good farmers he has abandoned that idea. Good! We are informed that Mr. Bill Wilkinson, from near Farmville, has the agency for Pitt county. Mr. Gravely says that Mr. Chauncy will hardly visit Greenville during the coming year.

Yesterday Mr. A. L. Blow told the writer that right now there was inquiry being made about our town and county from three western men. One in Nebraska, one in California and one in Kentucky. The Californian wanted to exchange a $10,000 farm for a Pitt county farm. He did not say what business the other two wanted to engage in, but said they were making inquiries about the country through the Greenville board of trade, letters directed to the board of trade. There is no better man to call the citizens together and organize a board of trade than Mr. Blow. He sees the necessity of it and knows what effect it will have toward developing the town. We call on Mr. Blow to start the ball to rolling.

GENERAL NEWS.

In Baltimore a mother and three children, all girls, were terribly burned by a gasoline explosion. Two of the children cannot recover.

Hawthorne, N. J., has a lady bicyclist who wears cardinal red bloomers. She is the sensation of the village, and her husband recently tried to get an injunction from a court restraining her from wearing such a costume. He failed and his wife continues to keep Hawthorne stirred up.

At last the extreme limit in the apparel of the New Woman seems to have been reached. According to a Detroit newspaper, several bicycling girls of Coldwater, Michigan, have already outgrown the bloomer stage, and now ride on the streets and suburbs of that great city clad in complete masculine costumes—knickerbockers, golf stockings and short jackets.

FRANK WILSON,

The King Clothier.

More Room Needed.

The depot here is too small for the immense quantity of freight that is handled, and often the wareroom is so full there is no room for more. The tobacco men are getting up a petition to the railroad authorities to enlarge the warehouse sufficient to meet the requirements.

Cleaning Up.

Today the Chief of Police has been issuing orders to the people of the town generally to have their premises cleaned and limed within 24 hours. This is a step in the right direction and there has been a hustling around on the part of the people to comply with the order.

A telegram was received here yesterday from Raleigh announcing the escape of Jno. C. Davis from the insane asylum in that city, and asking that he be arrested should he return to Wilmington, the scene of his operations some years ago, when he swindled many widows and orphans out of all they had.—Wil. Star.

Yes, sir this has been a hot day.

Clean your premises quick if not already done.

WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

The reports of correspondents of the Weekly Weather Crop Bulletin, issued by the North Carolina State Weather Service for the week ending Saturday, August 3, 1895, are generally favorable, except from the eastern portion of the State. The temperature has been below normal the entire week, the deficiency averaging from two to four degrees; the days have been warm, but nights quite cool, at least retarding growth if not otherwise injuring crops. The precipitation has been very deficient, especially in the Western and Central Districts, where droughty conditions are beginning to prevail over large sections. The average rain fall for the week in the Western District was only 0.10 inch; in the Central about 0.25, in the Eastern nearly 1.00. The east is not suffering for rain. The lack of rain is at present affecting chiefly vegetables and smaller crops, but if continued much longer will lessen yield of corn.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

There has been more rain in this than in other districts; hence reports are generally favorable. The days have been quite warm, with abundant sunshine, but several cool nights occurred, which were not favorable. Plentiful rains occurred July 30th and Sunday August 4th; still it is a little dry in some places. Cotton has a fine healthy weed, but has not yet done much fruiting. Where matured it is bolting well. Curing tobacco progressing with good results. Corn is good, and earing finely as a general rule. Some complaints of firing on upland. In early corn, on high uplands, many barren stalks are seen. Turnips being planted. Peaches are small. Concord grapes ready to cut, but have been somewhat damaged by blight.

PREMONITION IN ANIMALS.

We all know that there are many things withheld from the wise and prudent which are revealed unto babes; and may it not be true, likewise, that things invisible by human eyes are sometimes seen by brutes, and that knowledge of impending events, withheld from human beings, is given to the lower order of creation? The fact that Baalam's ass saw the angel of the Lord though its rider could not, establishes the first of these theories in at least one case, and here is information which would seem to establish the second: It is related that "during the earthquake at Laibach some persons kept their wits about them sufficiently to observe the extraordinary behavior of animals. Several minutes before the first shock an owl began to cry out as if for help, in an unearthly voice; sparrows and other birds fluttered aimlessly about and horses long before the shock occurred began to tremble violently, some falling on their knees. Dogs howled the whole night through, and when a shock was near their yelping was piercing and unnatural." That is an interesting statement. Was the knowledge of the coming of the earthquake revealed directly to the intellects of the animals or were there physical or atmospheric conditions, imperceptible to men but which the brutes felt, which warned them of an unusual and terrifying manifestation in nature? This is getting pretty far into the field of speculation, with little prospect of any satisfactory conclusion being reached, but it is sometimes interesting to speculate for speculation's own sake.—Charlotte Observer.

Few Killed by Lightning.

Statistics show that the average annual loss of life by lightning in the United States is 224 persons, and this out of a population of nearly 70,000,000. This means that about one person out of 312,000 is killed every year in the United States by lightning. And yet some people act during a little thunder storm as if one person out of every baker's dozen were killed every year.

THE NITRATE KING.

An Englishman Makes a Fortune in South America.

How Col. North Became a Multi-Millionaire—Wealth Taken Out of Chilean Guano Deposits—A Fortunate Land Deal.

In the course of an interview with a representative of the St. James' Budget, Col. North gave a short summary of the circumstances that led to his settling in Chili. "I was chief of the mechanical construction department in the firm of Fowler Brothers, of Leeds," said the colonel, "and went to Peru to put up some machinery for them. But when I had done this, after looking over the country a bit and being struck with the enormous value of its resources, I determined to remain there at my own expense.

"The great difficulty there was the inadequacy of the water supply. I was in the province of Tarapaca, where there is little or no rain. The spangs flow underground, and the water is brackish and not fit to drink. I had an interview with a member of the government, a very intelligent man, and he obtained for me certain privileges in exchange for my services in supplying that region of country with drinkable water. These privileges were the foundation of my fortune.

"The water was obtained by the simplest means in the world, often employed in Europe with success. Simply the evaporation and condensing of the water. That was all; only no one had thought of applying it there. With the money thus obtained I built a number of tank ships and carried water from Arica, where there is a plentiful supply of excellent water, to Iquique, whence it was distributed through the country.

"Then came the war between Chili and Peru. All kinds of property in Peru fell in value, but especially the land certificates the government had issued to meet the expenses of the war. I knew the value of those certificates better than anyone, for I had made extensive surveys and had seen the now famous nitrate beds. I felt quite sure, you see, that if in the war Chili came out victorious, which seemed almost certain, she would respect the title of bona fide purchasers from the Peruvian government of land that had passed under her flag.

"When the Chilians needed transports they, in spite of my protests, seized vessels of mine lying at the docks of Iquique and Pisagua. To indemnify me they promised me £40,000 as compensation in case of their success, pledging to me for that amount the guano deposits in the islands. Chili was the victor, and the guano deposits realized for me not £40,000, but £160,000.

000. My land, too, increased enormously in value as soon as Chili guaranteed the title to it.

"And the Nitrate railway? I joined some friends in purchasing the controlling interest in it. I have managed it fairly successfully, I think. A dividend of 25 per cent. is a pretty good result."

Col. North makes two distinct impressions on the observer. First, that of enormous prosperity, and, secondly, one of great reserve power; a curious character to study, and the type of man who carries English aims and methods into every known (or unknown) country of the globe.

CHANGED THEIR MINDS.

Supreme Court Justices Overruled by Their Wives.

It was a matter of some surprise that Justice Shiras, of the United States supreme court, should have changed his mind some time ago upon a matter of law, but it is not many months since the whole court changed their mind on such a matter, and that in the course of a few days, says the New York Sun.

The case before the court was one arising out of a customs decision at this port, and the counsel arguing against the decision of the custom-house was a New York lawyer, then for the first time before the supreme court. The case turned mainly upon the question whether an article of importation should or should not be classed as a sauce. The custom house had called it a sauce, and taxed it accordingly. The government maintained this contention, and, of course, the New York lawyer sought to show that the article should not be classed as a sauce.

When the supreme court came to consult upon the case their unanimous opinion was favorable to the contention of the government, and one of the justices was instructed to prepare a decision in favor of the custom house. The justice, on returning home, told his wife of the case, and indicated the ground of the decision; whereupon the lady told him in plain words that the justices of the supreme court did not know what they were talking about, and had agreed upon an unjust decision. The lady was entirely clear that the article in dispute could not properly be called a sauce and openly ridiculed the court.

The perplexed justice, instead of preparing the decision in accordance with the instructions of his brethren, did nothing in the matter, but at the next opportunity unfolded to the other justices his wife's view of the matter and asked them to seek domestic counsel on the case and report at the next consultation of the court. When that consultation came round the justices, having taken feminine counsel, all reported against their original view that the article involved in the case should be classed as a sauce, and accordingly the justice originally charged with the task of preparing a decision in favor of the government was now instructed to prepare one in favor of the New York lawyer's client. It thus happened that the lawyer won his first case before the supreme court because the wives of the justices knew more than the court itself.

To an old bachelor is attributed
the discovery that "a woman keeps secret what she does not know." If men did the same thing there would be a good deal
less lying and running down
false reports of sundry kinds.
It is the man who tells what he doesn't know that always creates
the racket.

Says the Wilmington Messenger: "The people of North Carolina are too prone to look to the north for examples for light, for encouragement and indorsement.
If an article praising the south
a little bit appears in a northern paper it will be copied into nearly every southern public print. If a southern book is praised that settles it. If educational institutions take both sexes, then of course the imitative south must do likewise. And so on without end. There is a want of self-confidence, of independent thinking, of belief in our own folks. A northern word of praise is a patent of nobility. If a young man in the south happens to be invited to do something 'up north,'
then the chirping goes all around
how great he is since he is so honored. Let us rely upon ourselves more, especially in politics."
