A SELF MADE MAN.

WHAT PLUCK AND PERSEVERANCE WILL DO.

Beginning at the Bottom He Ascends the Ladder of Business Success.

There is scarcely a reading person throughout our land who has not read something of the great merchant of New York, who a few years ago wandered penniless through the streets of that city but is now worth his millions. While people have wondered at this, many of them have never stopped to consider that almost every business community has its self-made men, who, though their success may not have compassed such extremes as the great New Yorker, yet their achievements are equally remarkable and creditable. Every man cannot do business in the metropolis, else the smaller cities and towns would be unknown, and there are men conducting business in country towns who, had circumstance given them the advantage of such a population as New York, there is no telling what they would have accomplished.

Greenville has some men of this kind, and the purpose of this article in the REFLECTOR is to call attention to what one of them has done right here in our midst.

SAM'L. M. SCHULTZ.

In the year 1855 Sam'l M. Schultz was born in the city of Richmond, Va. When he was 8 years old his father died, and three years later young Schultz went to New York and engaged in such work as a boy of his age could perform. At the age of 15 he went to the State of Minnesota where he spent four years on a farm. Having relatives in Tarboro, Mr. Schultz, then 19 years old, came to North Carolina. He took a position with D. Lichtenstein, a wholesale grocer of Tarboro. He had occupied that position only six months when his talent and tact for business had so impressed his employer that Mr. Lichtenstein decided to open a branch store in Greenville and put Mr. Schultz in charge of it.

So in 1875 we find Mr. Schultz in Greenville with a stock of groceries and furniture. He opened in what was then the only brick store in town, and when new ones were built later his place was styled the Old Brick Store, under which name it became famous through Pitt and surrounding counties. He conducted this business successfully for Mr. Lichtenstein through seven years and then became a partner with him. Under the copartnership thus formed the business was carried on for seven years longer, when Mr. Schultz purchased the interest of his partner and became sole owner in 1889.

Early this year Mr. Schultz purchased from Mr. D. E. House the brick store in which Mr. Wiley Brown kept. He had another story added to this building which with the large basement it contains makes it practically a three-story building. This building was equipped especially for a grocery and furniture business, and Mr. Schultz moved in on July 15th. His new quarters are admirably adapted to his large business and we are satisfied he will go on meeting the success that has crowned his efforts here during the past twenty years. He carries a complete stock and does a large business both wholesale and retail. He is also our largest shipper of country produce.

When Mr. Schultz first came to Greenville in 1875 the motto of his business was "quick sales and small profits." He made such a cut in the price of groceries as to produce almost a sensation at the time, and as a result people for miles around and even from other counties flocked to his store recognizing him as the leader of low prices. He has always enjoyed the confidence of the people and is held in highest esteem in business circles. He is a man of push and enterprise and possesses a knowledge of business seldom surpassed. He is a firm believer in advertising and has always been among the REFLECTOR's best patrons.

Socially Mr. Schultz is one of our cleverest gentlemen, genial with every one, and numbers his friends by the hundreds. He is connected with the benevolent organizations of the town, and has never turned his back on any appeal for charity or assistance that came to him. He has always taken an interest in matters that would advance the town, and is a liberal contributor to our enterprises. While a thorough business man, his make-up is unmarked by selfishness in any form.

Mr. Schultz was married to Miss Bluma Abrams, of Rocky Mount, and has a bright, interesting, happy family.

Greenville is proud of Sam'l M. Schultz and the record he has made in our town.

Meeting of Physicians

There will be a meeting of the Physicians of Pitt county at the Court House in Greenville on the first Monday in September, at 12 o'clock M., for the purpose of electing a Superintendent of Health, and other business.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

We take the following from the Richmond Dispatch of Saturday:

Hon. M. W. Ransom, of North Carolina, is no longer Minister from the United States to Mexico. That office was practically declared vacant to-day by a decision rendered by Mr. Holmes Conrad, Solicitor-General of the United States and Acting Attorney General. Mr. Ransom's incumbency was declared to be contrary to the Federal Constitution, and the Acting Attorney-General sustained the action of Mr. Thomas Hopkins, Auditor of the Treasury for the State Department, in declining to pass favorably upon Mr. Ransom's vouchers for salary and expenses.

The decision of the Acting Attorney-General was based on a question raised by Auditor Holcombe as to the legality of Mr. Ransom's appointment to the Mexican mission, in view of the existence of section 2, article 6, of the Constitution, which declares that "no Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

This provision apparently fitted the case of Mr. Ransom, for he was nominated by President Cleveland and confirmed by the Senate before his term of office as senator from North Carolina had expired, and during that term the salary of the Mexican mission had been increased $5,000 a year.

WHAT WILL THE CROP BE?

The Popular Estimate at New Orleans is 7,500,000 Bales—Planters Out of Debt Will Not Rush Their Cotton Market.

Messrs. Atwood, Violet & Co., in their cotton letter, furnish the following statistics and estimates:

"The world's visible supply of American cotton on first prox. will be about 550,000 larger than September 1st last year, and yet the excess in the crop over last year is 2,251,000, thus proving the large consumption of it. The question of supply, so far as the next crop is concerned, is now the most important factor in the cotton market (as usual, at this time), inasmuch as we are on the eve of the marketing of it, and estimates of its size are from 7,000,000 to 9,000,000. The popular estimates at New Orleans, where the people are in touch with the producer, and more familiar with crop conditions of the Gulf States and Southwest (where the greater portion of the crop is raised) are about 7,500,000 or 2,250,000 less than that of the current season. The crop of four years ago was 9,035,000, and the following year 6,700,000 and again, the crop of this year will exceed that of last year by 2,200,000, thus establishing a precedent for assuming a crop next season two and one quarter millions less than the present one. From September 1st to 28th, last year there came into sight, in round figures, 608,000 bales, and for the five weeks following, to November 2d, 2,301,000 or 2,909,000 for the first sixty-three days of the cotton season of 1894'95. The average movement in September during the last fifteen years (including this season) was 577,933, and for October, 1,541,333 against 608,000 and 2,301,000, respectively, last year. The crops during that period ranged from 5,435,000 to 9,750,000. It is fair to estimate on account of the lateness of this crop, while last year it was early, that the movement in September will not exceed 400,000 bales, or 200,000 less than last year, and for the five weeks, to November 2nd, it is reasonable to suppose the movement will not exceed 1,700,000 or 2,109,000, as the probable movement for the two months, against 2,909,000 same period last year, while the average for September and October during the last fifteen years was 2,119,000. That there should not be a further loss of 1,000,000, at least, during the remaining ten months of the season, no one who investigates the matter closely will have a reasonable doubt about, we believe. As the loss in the movement, it is beginning to be felt, will show itself decidedly by the middle of September, or earlier, it is probable the spinning world will buy more freely, in anticipation of these expectations, and that higher prices will be in order."

TOLD OF THE SENATORS.

Some Good Stories on August Legislators at Washington.

Vest Changes His Views on the Constitutional of a Proposed Law—Coke, of Texas, Does Likewise—The Texas Seed Bill.

They tell a great many stories of that honest old ex-senator, Coke, of Texas, says the Washington Star.
He was a great admirer of Vest.
One day some bill was pending which, bluntly stated, offered to appropriate public money for what seemed to Senator Coke private or special purpose. Coke was very much against it, as was Senator Vest. The Missouri senator made a speech and showed that the proposed law was unconstitutional. Coke listened to his oratory with rapt attention, and very much applauded and approved of it. Before the bill was put to a vote, however, the hoof and mouth disease broke out in Missouri among the cattle, and Gov.
Crittenden wired Senators Vest and Cockrell to gain the aid of the national government in hunting the malady to its lair and exterminating it. A measure was introduced making an appropriation to investigate the causes and report remedies for the hoof and mouth disease.
The measure made exactly the same question which Senator Coke was so much opposed to, and which Vest had so eloquently denounced but the week before. Under the stress of danger threatening Missouri live stock interests, Senator Vest felt compelled to change his position in the matter and did it most gracefully. It all afforded the good-natured senator from Texas much amusement.
"Vest," he said, as a writer for the Star was told, "that is the first time I ever knew a man to change his opinion on constitutional law on a telegram."
But Senator Coke's turn was coming. Inspired by the hoof and mouth appropriation example, the Texas seed bill was introduced. It asked an appropriation to buy farm seeds for drought sufferers in Texas. In all its principles it paralleled the hoof and mouth measure as well as the one before, against which Coke had voted and Vest had orated.
But this time Senator Coke felt obliged to bow to fate and support the Texas seed bill. Senator Voorhees offered him irritating consolation by saying:
"Never mind, Coke, suppose you do have to switch. Remember statesmanship is but the science of circumstances, and a senator, like a sailor, may be going north on one voyage and south on the next." However, Coke felt very sore over his fate; and the Texas seed bill was understood by his fellow senators to be a subject which must not be lightly mentioned in his presence.

One afternoon Senator Voorhees had just introduced an old white-haired, benevolent-looking gentleman to Senator Vest. They were in the senate cloakroom at the time.
The white-haired philanthropist had just finished a campaign in Indiana for a seat in the house, and he had been egregiously beaten. Senator Vest was consoling him and expressing regret that his light was not to shine at the south end of the capitol in the next congress.
"However, I do not regret it," said the white-haired Samaritan.
"I was glad to run, even if I was defeated. My slaughter may do the party good. The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." It was just then that Senator Coke went by. His quick ear caught the word "seed," and his face flushed. However, he passed on to his seat in the senate. But his wrath began to rise, and in ten minutes he was back in the cloakroom again looking for an explanation. Voorhees and his white-haired friend were gone, but Vest was sitting there all alone, contented as a toad under a cabbage leaf. Coke addressed him.
"Senator Vest," said he, "who was that white-haired old idiot I saw talking with you and Senator Voorhees?"
Senator Vest was somewhat surprised, but furnished the information.
"I have merely returned to say to him, sir," went on Senator Coke, severely, "what I now say to you, sir; and that is, that some of you gentlemen are making yourselves far too merry about that Texas seed bill, sir. I want to urge on you the necessity of getting through your laugh on that subject, sir. It was no doubt a good joke, but it has run long enough, sir. I don't care to hear any more about it, sir."
"I did not try," explained Senator Vest, when afterward he told the story to Senator Voorhees, "to make any explanation. I simply offered an abject apology and promised to offend no more."

—The Aroostook, in Maine, was named from an Indian word, meaning "good men."

A SORRY BULLHEAD.
Interfered with a Water Motor and Came to a Bad End.
One little bull-head species of the catfish escaped from Lake McKusick some time since, and, no doubt, is sorry for it; we are, anyway. He came down the mains of the water company and floated up the pipes leading to our motor, where he stopped; so did our motor, presses, etc. He didn't use good judgment, as he went into the motor tail first, just fitting so that he stopped the machine. Had he gone at it head first, the opening was such that he wouldn't have stopped the machine and called into active service the waterworks man and a machinist.

He would have kept going around in such a lively manner that, in the course of time, his mother-in-law wouldn't have recognized him. Bob Butler thinks he had him on his hook once out in McKusick's lake, when he was a boy—Bob, not the fish—judging from his antiquated appearance. Friday is without question the proper day for fish, but catching them in a water motor is mighty unprofitable business. We never did like fish, and we hate 'em worse than ever now.—Stillwater Gazette.

Butter kept in refrigerators at J. L. Starkey & Co's.

Arrived—Gov. Carr's and Sweet Mountain Butter at S. M. Schultz

A letter was received at Liberty, in Randolph county, a few days ago, with the following address on the envelope—a gentleman who saw it after it had reached its destination, took it down and gave it to us:

"Roll me on at rapid rate To Liberty, North Carolina State, Then lay me down and let me be Till Miss Ada Kivett calls for me."

Miss Ada is a captivating young lady of Liberty and the letter was no doubt from her sweetheart.

Falkland Items.

FALKLAND, N. C., Aug. 19th '95.

Mrs. B. B. King and children, of Goldsboro, are visiting the family of Capt. Jno. King.

Mr. Floyd Bynum and sister, of Wilson, returned home Thursday after spending a few days around Falkland.

Miss Lottie Britt, of Tarboro, is visiting Miss Lydia Newton.

Mr. Redding Corbett, of Edgecombe is visiting his father, Mr. Ivy Corbett.

Our farmers are very busy cutting and curing tobacco.

We Played a Small Game.

Little game
Quite hot,
Allee same
Jack Pot.
Went around 3 trips—
Jolly sound $ chips!
I played,
Bet a V;
He stayed—(Had three) Hands showed,
Cards talked;
He rode—
I walked!
