MORE ON THE BANK QUESTION.

Editor Reflector :

In your issue of Tuesday, you say editorially that the article of "X" on Saturday was construed by some one to reflect upon the present bank in Greenville. I assure those who thus construed the article, that nothing was more foreign to the mind and purpose of the writer.

The present bank has done a great deal towards aiding the business prosperity in the county, but business proportions are fast growing. The tobacco market did a great deal to prosper the town and community with one warehouse. The REFLECTOR and the people generally urged the building of more warehouses, and what is the result? It is too obvious to be discussed.

Every business is more prosperous where there is competition. No one will dispute the proposition that without convenient facilities for obtaining money upon easy terms, when necessary, business enterprises of any kind are slow to spring up or to prosper quickly.

I am sure the owners of the present bank do not claim to supply the needs of the business interest of the community. The people know better. At any rate, with two or more banking institutions in the town there would be a spirited activity that would inspire sleeping industries, that would give new life to the town and development beyond the expectation of the most sanguine. Our natural resources are phenomenal, and only require active money power, with careful business judgment, and the present bank would be one of the recipients of the many developing enterprises that would follow. It is coming, and coming surely, and if our own people do not avail themselves of the opportunity, strangers will.

Money has its power in every department of life, and the stranger who comes in the field and uses his money in business matters in a business manner, will find success awaiting him.

No competition, and but little thrift or enterprise is the result. The only purpose that "X" has in arguing this matter is the general good that will follow to the community, and would not detract from the merits of any citizen or enterprise. X.

The Greene County Homicide.

We have learned fuller particulars of the homicide in Greene county that was mentioned in Tuesday's REFLECTOR. James Hunt, of Vonce county, was there curing tobacco for John Turnage. Turnage and his brother Henry were about the barn and in a spirit of fun began throwing peaches at each other. Henry receiving a right sharp blow on the cheek became angered and threw an axe at John. This so enraged John that he rushed in his house and got a gun and fired at Henry, but the latter dodged and the load of buck shot struck Hunt in the side. Hunt died of the wounds and his remains have been taken to Vance county. John Turnage has not been seen since he did the shooting.

The tobacco boys shouted and gave him a hearty greeting when Mr. J. S. Jenkins put in his appearance on the breaks to day. In a few days he will be on regularly bucking the boys in their bidding.

FRANK WILSON,

The King Clothier.

Meets in Greenville.

The Albemarle Presbytery meets with the Presbyterian church in Greenville on September 3rd. A committee will soon wait upon our citizens to secure homes for the delegates. They will be glad if all who can entertain any of the delegates will be prepared to let them know when they call.

Hail Storm in Martin.

Mr. F. S. Purvis, of Hamilton, was here to-day and told us that a heavy wind and hail storm visited his section before day this morning. He left home at such an early hour that he could not learn the extent of the damage done. Mr. Purvis also told us that much tobacco had been made this season in his neighborhood and the farmers over there have an eye on the Greenville market. He put his name on the REFLECTOR roll so as to keep posted on what our market is doing.

The Salisbury Herald has made a big stride forward and is now giving its readers the afternoon press dispatches. We hope it will meet with success in this enterprise.

Last night's storm made the weather somewhat cooler to-day.

Weather Crop Bulletin.

The reports of correspondents of the Weekly Crop Bulletin, issued by the North Carolina State Weather Service, for the week ending Saturday, August 17th, 1895, are generally favorable. The week opened and ended very warm, with maximum temperatures above 90 degrees; the 15th and 16th were below the normal. The amount of sunshine was slightly less than usual. The drought prevailing at the beginning of the week in Central and Western Districts was broken by the general rains on the 16th and 17th, which practically assures a splendid corn crop. Too much rain occurred at a few stations.

The next week will be dryer and cooler.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

The weather this week has been generally favorable, except in south-east portion. The week opened and ended very warm, with but two days, the 15th and 16th, below the normal in temperature. General rains prevailed on the 17th. In the southern part of the district, where there has been no drought, the rain-fall this week has been rather injurious, but in all other portions it has broken the drought prevailing and been highly beneficial to all crops except tobacco. Special reports as to corn indicate that as a whole the crop in this district is not as good as in others, and is generally below the average; but as the acreage is larger than usual a big crop will be gathered. Early corn is now safe, and the late general rains will do much toward making late corn, which, however, will not be safe before from September 1st to 15th. Fodder-pulling is now in progress. Cotton is still growing and blooming; has improved, but fruit still scarce. There has been too much rain for tobacco. Rains reported Fayetteville, 3.54 inches; Wilmington, 2.86; Rocky Point 1.75; Falkland, 3.70; Mt. Olive, 4.80; Nashville, 3.10; Jasksonville, 2.75; Weldon, 1.89; Goldsboro, 5.00; Lumberton, 1.59; Newbern, 1.56.

The Oriental Situation.

The little boy was going along the road weeping most bitterly. His face was red as if he had been fighting, and he was somewhat scuffed up and dusty, but he showed no marks of bruises or prospective black eyes.

But his heart was broken.

"What's the matter, sonny? Did you get licked?"

"No, sir! I licked him, and I licked him good. I bunged up both eyes, and I blooded his nose and broke his two front teeth, and I kicked the stockings off him, I did."

"Didn't he get in on you?"

"He did not. He run. I chased him all the way. He was bigger'n me, too, and I took all of his marbles away from him and his peg top and his knife that had two blades and part of another one."

"Well, what are you crying about, then?"

"Because they was three bigger boys that stood by and saw me lick him, and then they held me up and took everything away from me, they did, consarn their pictures!"

"What's your name, little boy?"

"Japan, sir."

There Was a Bond.

There was a man leaning up against a lamp post on Jefferson avenue, near Second street, seemingly gazing afar and having a lot of thoughts on his mind, when he was approached by a second man who had stood for half an hour almost opposite him with his back to a building.

"Say!" said the second man, "I've been watching you for some time."

"Yes, and I've been looking at you," was the reply.

"I believe there's some sort of bond between us."

"Yes, mebbe."

"Are you a stranger in town?"

"Yes."

"So'm I. Out of a job?"

"Yes."

"So'm I. Got any money?"

"Not a red."

"Neither have I. Want something to drink and eat, of course?"

"Of course."

"So do I. Got a bed for to-night?"

"Noap."

"Neither have I. Shake hands. Does me good to meet you. I thought there was a bond between us. Let's walk around and be congenial and strengthen the bond and strike somebody for a dime and go whacks!"—Detroit Free Press.

LINEN FOR LINERS.

No Laundries on Board the Great Transatlantic Steamers.

There are no laundries on board ship; they take up too much room. So the chief steward lays in thousands of pillow-slips, sheets and towels.

These come on board, says the Philadelphia Record, tied up in bales of a dozen each, and are stored in the linen locker, a cubbyhole of a place on the main deck. The ventilator pipes from the engine room run through it and keep it hot.

There is no danger of linen getting mildewed there. The linen which has been used is thrown into another room, provided with the same atmosphere, and is so kept thoroughly dry.

Where there are clean napkins every day frequent changes of state-room linen and an everlasting replenishing of towel racks, the demands upon the locker are very extensive.

A liner like the New York puts to sea with about nine thousand serviettes, ten thousand towels, six or seven thousand sheets, eight thousand pillow-slips and about one thousand tablecloths. Most of these find their way to the soiled linen locker in the course of the voyage. When the vessel arrives they are carted off to a laundry.

AN ANCIENT TIMEPIECE.

A Missourian Possesses a Watch of Historic Interest.

Judge Frederick W. Moore, of the superior court, is the possessor of an heirloom in the shape of a watch that no amount of money would buy. And, besides its value as a heirloom, it has a historic interest.

The timepiece is of the open-face bull's-eye pattern. As with all old-style watches of the pattern mentioned, the outer case must be removed before it can be wound. The outer case of this watch is of hammered gold, and all the work on it was done by hand. While this is apparent from the workmanship, it is further proved by the date on the inside, as follows: "Daniel De St. Leu, Servant to Her Majesty, London." Her majesty then was the queen of George III., the then reigning king of England.

The authentic history of this valuable timepiece is this: In the years preceding 1754, William Augustus, duke of Cumberland, the second son of George II., was the commander of the British armies. In the Scottish campaigns and in the campaigns against the Prussians and the Russians, and when he was at the head of the British, Hanoverian and Danish forces of fifty thousand men, Dr. Frederick William Schwartz, a Hanoverian, was on his staff as surgeon. At the close of the campaign against the Prussians and the Russians the duke had three watches made like the one that Judge Moore has, and of which it is one.

The watches were presented to three officers of the duke's staff by him as a mark of his esteem. One went to Dr. Schwartz, as a Hanoverian; one to a British officer, and one to a Danish officer. The presentations were made in 1755. After the doctor's services had ended in 1857, and the duke had returned to London, it was expected he would succeed to the throne, but the birth of a son to his elder brother cut him out.—St. Louis Republic.

Death of an Esteemed Lady.

Mr. Andrew Joyner received intelligence to-day of the death of his oldest sister, Mrs. Bessie Malone, which occurred at Fletcher, near Asheville, on Sunday morning, August 18th. Mrs. Malone had been in feeble health for several years and lived in Columbia, S. C., for the past year. Two weeks ago she paid a visit to her sister, Mrs. Hattie Phelps, whose husband is minister in charge of the Episcopal church at Fletcher. She never rallied from the trip. Her husband and children and Rev. E. N. Joyner, of Columbia, S. C., her aunt Mrs. Addie Hughes and Rev. Isaac Hughes, of Fayetteville, were able to be with her at the last. Mrs. Malone was universally beloved as a young woman in Pitt county and has been a devoted wife and mother. There are many in her old neighborhood around Farmville and in the county who will drop a tear over the memory and at the death of Bessie Joyner.
