EDITORIAL NOTES.

Look out for a meeting of the Arrington Committee. Phillips is in Raleigh. Campbell is expected daily, and Bryan is said to be weakening and may get there.

It is said that Fitzhugh Lee never found out that he was opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of silver until after he had been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue in his district.

The "Old Liberty Bell" is again coming into prominent notice. An effort is being made to take it to Atlanta and an injunction has been asked for by the citizens of Philadelphia to prevent the local authorities from removing it from Independence Hall.

The two afternoon papers of Raleigh, the Press and Visitor have consolidated and now appear as the Press-Visitor. Mr. Greek O. Andrews is editor and manager, and Mr. T. J. Pence city editor. It is the newsiest afternoon paper in the State.

Probably nothing is attracting more serious attention in Raleigh at present than the handsome and robust physiognomy of Walter R. Henry sitting in the window of the Caucasian office waiting for the proof of that wonderful seven column production of his which is to give his reasons for leaving the Democratic party and flopping over to the Populists, and which is to be printed in the above paper this week. We are certain it is a sight worthy to be seen. Think of it! Walter R. Henry a picture adorning the window of Marion Butler's paper.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Last week two gentlemen from near Vanceboro came up to Greenville on their buggy bringing it full of tobacco. They drove in the Eastern warehouse, where sales was going on and had their tobacco put on the floor. After sale Mr. Spain, the cashier, handed them a check for even thirty nine dollars and ninety-five cents.

Mr. B. E. Parham says that if every day in the week except Saturday, the warehouses should be as crowded as they were Friday with tobacco that he could continue to buy just as much as he did on that day, that his orders for tobacco are unlimited and that he would like to have that much to buy every day. If the reader will just recall that there are half dozen others with equally as heavy orders, and of this number the American Tobacco Company, whose demand for tobacco is limitless, and quite a number of other less extensive but equally as good buyers for their grades, it will be seen at a glance how much tobacco can be handled in Greenville and how near impossible it is to glut the market. The warehousemen and buyers too would prefer to have it divided up and not bring it all in on certain days. Yet Greenville is capable of taking care of all that comes in. Our buyers are in first-class condition and there is plenty of money here to pay for it all, and don't you forget it.

TOBACCO FARMERS READ THIS.

For the last three years there have not been warehouses enough in Greenville, so that when all of them were full, that there would be any danger of blocking the sales, that is, not being able to sell all the warehouses in one day. Now that there are four warehouses, and this early in the season, already, we have had one block sale, it becomes the duty of tobacco people, farmers and all to devise some means by which a block could be prevented and to do this the best way is for the farmer to come in the over night as a good many of them, especially those living a long distance so that they can be unloaded early in the morning, before there is a rush, and let the house having the first sale commence at 9 o'clock promptly. By doing this on days of the largest breaks, two houses at least can sell before noon and the other two in the afternoon. This will prevent blocking the sales at any time, it will save farmers selling on last sales the trouble of coming back the second day after their checks, it will give more general satisfaction all around and keep everything cleared up as we go. Farmers certainly must learn to make a more early start this year than ever before, or else you will be kept here late in the evening. Those living a long distance can come in the night before and have their stock taken care of and themselves provided for. Each house will be glad to take care of its customers and give them as good entertainment as if they were at home.

As Others See Us.

There was sold in Greenville market Friday, 100,000 lbs leaf tobacco and 25,000 pounds carried over for Saturday sales. Ten years ago there was not a warehouse in Greenville and little tobacco was made in that section. The small crop made was sold principally in Henderson. Now the whole country is dotted with tobacco fields, the weed being finest grown in State, and it is selling at good prices. Greenville has four large warehouses, a number of prize houses and expects to handle 5,000,000 pounds of leaf this season. The improvement wrought by the changed method of farming is wonderful.—Salisbury Herald.

Her Achievement in California as a Practical Florist.

The River of Heliotrope in the Town of San Buenaventura - Mrs. Theodosia Shepherd - A Petunia Expert.

Upon the old mission town of San Buenaventura there has dropped down a charming little bit of Altruria, says the San Francisco Examiner.
On the main business street - indeed, but a stone's throw from the bustle of the shops - a river of heliotrope, in effect, breaks at your feet. For the width of a block the luxuriant mass of greenery and flowers climbs a low stone wall and tumbles to the pavement several feet below. All the air is full of fragrance, and the prodigality of blossoms tempts many trespassing fingers; and if the passersby looks longingly and hesitates, he is sure to be informed that "the flowers are planted that they may be freely picked."
The schoolboys gather bouquets "for teacher," and, returning, gather flowers again "for mother."
Fragrance for all the river of heliotrope furnishes, and grows only richer by its generosity, so that it is haunted by humming birds, beloved of bees.
Beyond the heliotrope and behind the ranks of tall white lilies that flank it lives Mrs. Theodosia Shepherd, the guardian of the flowers. She is a most unpretentious and industrious little lady, tending her flowers, first of all, for love of them.
Coming to California an invalid, upward of twenty years ago, Mrs. Shepherd played with her flowers at first for health and pleasure. The delight of watching flowers grow and multiply in a half-tropical land grew. Mrs. Shepherd had been able to beat a path for women. In her busy life, devoted first of all to providing love and sympathy for husband and children, there has been room for much besides the cultivation of her flowers and the sending of bulbs and seeds to lands near at hand and beyond seas. She has taken an active part in clubs and societies of all sorts for culture and progress.
Mrs. Shepherd goes on earnestly preaching that there is a field and a livelihood in the culture of flowers for many women, if they will but engage in it with earnestness and patience. A neighbor in Ventura-by-the-Sea who was, like Mrs. Shepherd herself, disbarred from devoting herself to indoor pursuits from ill health, took up the hybridizing of some of the common garden flowers, under the instruction of the more experienced workwoman, and has made so thorough a success of it that she has acquired an almost world wide reputation as a "petunia expert." This enterprising little worker sold all her seed the second year to a prominent eastern seedsman, who gave the flowers the name of the "Giants of California."

China's Trade Statistics.
China's foreign trade in 1894 amounted to 290,207,433 taels, as compared with 267,995,180 taels in 1893, and 237,687,723 in 1892, according to the recently published report of the Chinese maritime customs, the exchange value of a tael varying from 76 1/2 cents to 64 1/2 cents during the year. The imports were 162,102,911 taels, and the exports 128,104,522. A smaller quantity of opium was imported than in any of the 20 last years, but its value was higher. The chief causes of disturbance, apart from the change in the value of silver, were the serious drought in the south during the spring and the plague in Hong Kong, the war with Japan having had no effect till this year. One hundred and thirty-three million taels of the trade was with Hong Kong, 44 with Great Britain direct, 26 with the United States, 25 with the rest of Europe, except Russia, 22 with India and 18 with Japan. Wool is becoming an important staple of export, while gold in bars ranked next to tea and silk. The government's revenue from customs was 22,523,600 taels. - Philadelphia Record.

The Mule's Misfortune.
An old darky lived in the south who was a great barterer, and it was very hard to beat him on a trade. It seems he had sold a mule, guaranteeing him faultless. The purchaser shortly after came back in a great rage, and said:
"Look here, you rascal, that mule you sold me is blind in one eye; you assured me he had no faults."
"Dat's right, sah; dat mule hab no faults. If he am blind in one eye, dat am his misfortune, not h's fault." - Harper's Round Table

MANY LAWSUITS.

Citizens of the United States Are Great Litigants.

More Civil Cases Are Brought Before the Courts Here Than in Any Other Country in the World—Reasons for This.

A man of ingenious mind and apparently ample leisure has gone to the trouble of figuring out the number of lawsuits brought in each country in a year and he has reached the conclusion that the United States is a better country for attorneys and counselors than any other civilized land under the sun, says the New York Sun. He figures as lawsuits civil actions only, taking into no account proceedings of a criminal character brought by the public authorities against individuals. He has ascertained that, taking the figures for the last ten years as a fair average, there are 1,250,000 lawsuits brought in England every year, 750,000 in France, 1,400,000 in Italy, 3,300,000 in Germany and 5,500,000 in the United States.

It is not to be inferred from this that the people of one country are much more prone to litigation than are the people of another, but the explanation is to be found in the fact that the conditions of litigation vary exceedingly. Going to law in England is very expensive business, for it entails outlays in the form of costs and expenses so large that many of the courts are practically closed to persons of modest means and a long litigation unsuccessfully pursued ends often in bankruptcy. In France the number of lawsuits is kept down through the general practice of "arbitration," as many as 100,000 cases in a year, especially those arising from disputes over wages, being settled by this agency without onerous cost to either party. In Germany a great majority of cases are petty ones, involving a small amount of money and due, many of them, to customs or usages which are not sufficiently defined to be, in all cases, similarly understood by both parties to an agreement. This is especially the case in the farming districts of Germany and there are many legal disputes in the manufacturing districts, too.

The number of cases credited to the United States seems enormous, but it is probably accurate. There are, for example, eleven district courts for the disposal of civil cases in New York city. In one of these courts, by recent report, the number of actions brought in a year was shown to be 9,100. These courts have before them each year on the average 75,000 cases. The cases brought in the state courts of New York amount in a year to about 150,000, and of those brought in the federal courts New York furnishes a very large number. Taking the whole country through it is seen that the average number of cases per thousand of population is in the neighborhood of 75 to 85. The number of lawyers in the United States is materially larger than in other country in the world, and the amounts in dispute here are much greater than elsewhere.

The Jersey Mosquito.

In the town of Quantuck, N. J., which lies in a low, hot nook, surrounded by swampy land, the mosquitoes have been so thick this season that, when the breeze is gentle, they form a thick black cloud over the town. On several occasions of late this has been so noticeable that the hens have gone to roost at noon, under the impression that it was already nightfall, and without performing their daily task of egg-laying. As the poultry business is a leading one in the town, fanciers suffered for a time considerable financial loss, until the device was hit upon of sending up small dynamite cartridges among the thickest swarms of mosquitoes, by means of a kite flown by a wire, which, at the right moment, conveys a current of electricity to discharge the dynamite. After a few discharges the air is so cleared that the hens can resume operations, and the gory remains of the dead mosquitoes, falling to the ground, are plowed as fertilizers.—N. Y. Recorder.

Shoots at an Officer.

This morning Chief of Police Perkins arrested B. L. Cooper and was taking him to the guard house. When he stopped to unlock the prison door Cooper drew a pistol and fired twice at the officer, but neither shot struck him. The officer knocked Cooper down and took the pistol. Cooper was drinking.

Cooper was tried before Mayor Forbes, this afternoon, for violation of town ordinance, and fined a penny and costs. He was then taken before a Magistrate under four State warrants, two for carrying concealed weapons, one for resisting officer and one for assault with intent to kill. In three of these cases he was bound over to court in the sum of $200 each, and in the case of assault with intent to kill the bond was placed at $300 justified. Upon failure to give these bonds he was committed to jail. Court will commence the second Monday in September.
