Schools Open.

The several schools of the town opened today for the fall session and had a splendid beginning.

Prof. W. H. Ragsdale had 36 boys to greet him at the Male Academy, and the outlook is that a most prosperous session is before him.

Prof. S. D. Bagley started the Collegiate Institute with 32 and also has prospects of a good session.

Mrs. Bernard's school at Masonic Hall opened with 15 present. Thirty have engaged with her for the session but quite a number of her pupils are not to take up their studies until October.

Now let parents stand by the schools and give hearty co-operation to the teachers, and there will be good progress through the session.

FOR RENT—Good House in Forbestown. A. FORBES.

The storm Friday night causing a postponement of the moonlight excursion planned for that night the managers intended having it to-night, but could not secure the steamer.

Mr. Lichtenstein's Parents Dead.

Mr. I. Lichtenstein received sad intelligence this morning. A letter from his brother, at Schulitz, Germany, announced the death of his father on Thursday, 15th, inst. On Sunday, the 18th, the mother while talking to her son was stricken with paralysis of the heart and dropped dead at his feet.

Mr. Lichtenstein was totally unprepared for the blow and is prostrated with grief. He has the sympathy of the entire community.—Salisbury Herald.

He Saw and Went Believing.

A gentleman from another State who has been on a visit to Greenville, said to us before leaving, "I have been reading the REFLECTOR regularly, and admit that I was somewhat skeptical over your reports of the Greenville tobacco market, and thought that you must be overdrawing them. But since coming here, and seeing for myself I am ready to confess that you have not said one word too much. The market is all you claim for it—the best in the State."

If there is any one else possessing doubts about the Greenville market, let him follow the example of this gentleman, come and see for himself, and he will be convinced that there is no over-drawing in what the REFLECTOR says about it.

WANTED—A good milch cow, apply to A. FORBES.

The Albemarle Presbytery meets Tuesday night.

Two weeks to the opening of the Exposition at Atlanta.

The Sunday schools of the town are showing an increased attendance.

The Pittsboro Record has reached its eighteen year. There are few as able writers as editor H. A. London.

An advertisement—like a cigar should be so good that the first whiff or impression will cause a man to finish it.

WANTED—A good House Servant, apply to A. FORBES.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Brown was thought to be dying this morning, but the report reaches us later this afternoon that its condition was better. The many friends of the parents hope their little one may be spared to them.

Three cakes nice toilet soap and half dozen teaspoons for 25 cents looks almost like giving goods away, but that is what J. B. Cherry & Co. are doing.

Cultivate Your Child's Teacher.

The first thing to do is to visit the school which your children attend. Make a point of this, even if it means a sacrifice of something else, writes Edward W. Bok in an article on "Our Schools and Our Teachers," in the September Ladies' Home Journal. Few things can be more important than to see for yourself the surroundings of your child during school hours. Observe quietly yet keenly, but remember that any observations or comments you have to make, the teacher of the class in which your child happens to be is not the proper person to whom to make them. The principal of the school or the superintendent is the proper functionary for such purposes. The teacher is helpless; she must accept conditions as she finds them. She is an employee, pure and simple. But seek her out and win her acquaintance and confidence. Show her that you mean to cooperate with her. She knows that the best results can only be obtained when teacher and parent cooperate. Invite her to your home—not in a general way but at a definite time. Make her feel that you want her to be something more than the teacher of your child. Make a friend of her if you can; at least give her the opportunity to show that she has another side to her nature than that which she shows in her classroom. The teacher's burden is a heavy one rather than a light one.

"Pray for me," He Wrote.

Athens, Ga., Aug. 27.—William Hague Wood, once a Methodist lay preacher, recently turned infidel. He attended a revival meeting several nights last week at High Shoals and ran an opposition meeting outside the church. He made nightly addresses declaring that the preachers were fiends and were deceiving the people. Sunday his tongue was paralyzed while he was making a speech ridiculing the the Church. This frightened his hearers.

To-night Wood attended the meeting and handed up the following note to the preacher in charge: "I now believe there is a hell and that I am doomed for it. Pray for me." The sensation in the congregation was such that in less than five minutes the altar would not accommodate half the mourners. The meeting will probably last all night.

The Yankee love of making a good bargain is amusingly illustrated by an anecdote related in the Lewiston Journal: Many years ago, in Central Maine, a man started out to sell oil cloth table covers throughout the country at 50 cents a cover. After traveling all day without selling one a happy thought struck him. He would charge a dollar, and would take half the pay in cast-off shoes, the result was people imagined they were getting some return for their old shoes, and there was a general ransacking of attics, and table covers went like hot cakes. But the old shoes? Well, wherever he found a convenient hole beside the road, out of sight he pulled up his cart and dumped the lot.

An humble boy with a shining pail went singing gaily down the vale, to where a cow with a brindle tail, on the alfalfa did regale. A humble bee did gaily sail over the soft and shady vale, to where the boy with the shining pail was milking the cow with the brindle tail. The bee lit down on the cow's left ear, her feet flew up through the atmosphere, and through the leaves of an apple tree the boy soared into eternity.

First-Class Work.

Heavy Taxation.

In the United States there are to-day not more than 25,000,000 income-earning workers of all classes.

The St. Louis Republic gives us some facts and figures on this question and says that few of these workers calculate the weight which the laziness and mistakes of the nonproducing lay upon their energies.

Suppose that there are 20,000 more lawyers than the business of the country requires. They must be supported by their families or the public. At $1,000 apiece, they cost $20,000,000. An equal number of unnecessary doctors run up the cost to $40,000,000.

Improvident and shiftless persons are everywhere more or less plentiful. Their support costs a great deal more than do the State Governments. In the South alone the energies of the whites and more industrious negroes are not only interfered with but taxed to the amount of hundreds of millions for the support of the mass of negroes. This does not appear in the official levies, but can be found in innumerable small debts never paid. In food, clothing, medicines and rent furnished in small amounts, but constantly, and in depredations on property.

Curing tobacco is now one of the fine arts. You don't find a split stalk hanging top downwards a straddle of a stick any more. As the leaves ripen they are broken off one by one just as you "crap" the cabbage leaves for feeding the pigs. Not all the leaves on the same stalk are ripe at the same time. The leaves are tied in bunches of three or four with a cotton string (from bails of twine at 20 cts a pound) and eighteen or twenty bunches are hung on one stick about four feet long. Those who stand at the scaffold and do this work are called "stringers." A good stringer can string a thousand sticks a day. Those who break off the leaves are called "crappers," those who carry them in baskets or aprons to the scaffold (in a shady place when possible) are called "toters," and those who hand the leaves to the stringers are "handlers."—Gastonia Gazette.

A Word to the Boys.

If you have anything to do, do it at once. Don't sit down in the rocking chair and lose three quarters of an hour in dreading the job. Be sure that it will seem ten times harder than it did at first. Keep this motto: Be on time in small things as well as great. Habit is everything. The boy who is behind time at breakfast and school, will be sure to get "left" in the important things of life. If you have a chronic habit of dreading and putting off things make a great effort to cure yourself. Brace up! Make up your mind that you will have some backbone. Don't be a limp, jolly fish kind of person. Depend upon it, that life is very much what you make it. The first thing to decide is what are you going to make it. The next thing is to take off your coat and go to work. Make yourself useful somewhere. There are thousands of boys and young men in the world who wouldn't be missed if they were to drop out of it to-morrow. Don't be one of this sort. Be a power in your own little world, and depend upon it; then the big world will hear from you some day.
