THE CALL IS ISSUED.

The following call was given out last night:

"Whereas, A great many prominent Democrats from different portions of North Carolina have signed and sent to us a recommendation for the holding of a State Convention at some early date of all persons opposed to the single gold standard, now, therefore, in obedience to this request, we hereby invite all persons who believe that the unit of value which existed prior to 1873 should be promptly restored, and who believe in the immediate free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, irrespective of this policy or action of other nations, to meet in convention at Raleigh September 25th inst., for the purpose of consultation. This invitation is intended to embrace members of all political parties regardless of their convictions on other subjects."

The following are the signers:

It is said that a large attendance is assured.—Raleigh Press and Visitor.

Ex-Senator Jarvis has consented to select the committee to make the tests for Goshaw at the entertainment to-night, therefore those who attend may rest assured that the mind reader will be practicing no deception as there will be no collusion between him and the committee.

STATE NEWS.

Record of Matters of General Interest.

Nearly all the colleges of the State report splendid openings of the fall session.

A black cat frightened a horse in Charlotte, causing the animal to run away and smash up things generally.

The Reporter estimates that corn will sell by the heap this fall at 25 to 35 cents per bushel in the Danbury section of Stokes county.

The Morganton Herald says that Mrs. Byard Grady, of Burke, while alone in her home fell in the fire and was burned to death.

The board of aldermen of Raleigh have ordered an election on the issue of $50,000 street improvement bonds.

With "Old Man Guss" and Olthus Joyner both to overlook the floor and run the sales and Oscar Hooker to draw the checks, the Eastern Warehouse can show as strong a team as any house in the State. And no house sells more tobacco or at higher prices.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

We publish in another column the call for a silver convention to be held in Raleigh on the 25th inst. While the Reflector is on the side of free coinage it believes in advocating the measure from a Democratic standpoint and working for it within party lines. We believe extending the invitation to "members of all political parties"—unless they are going to join the Democratic party—"regardless of their convictions on other subjects" savors of such a fusion that will not serve the best ends of the Democratic party.

VALUE OF NEWSPAPERS.

Opinions of Celebrated Men Regarding the Popular News Medium.

There are certain persons who affect to despise "the newspapers." But this is mere affectation. No man despises a newspaper when he wants to use it, and nine men out of ten would find life a barren waste without it. But however this may be, it is worth while to put against expression of disparaging opinions of newspapers, by whomsoever made, those of some of the master minds of the world.

Dr. Johnson said:

I never take up a newspaper without finding something I should deemed it a loss not to have seen; never without deriving from it instruction and amusement.

This is from Thomas Jefferson:

I would rather have newspapers without a government, than government without newspapers.

And this from Hallan, the great English historian and publicist:

For almost all that keeps up in us, permanently and effectually, the spirit of regard for liberty and the public good, we must look to the unshackled and independent energies of the press.

And this from Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, one of the most acute intellects that ever lived:

The newspaper is the chronicle of civilization. It is a daily and sleepless watchman that reports to you every danger which menaces the institutions of your country and its interests at home and abroad. It is a law book for the indolent, a sermon for the thoughtless, a library for the poor.

And this from Hunt:

The newspaper is the familiar of all men of all degrees, of all occupations. If it teaches, it teaches imperceptibly. It has no pompous gown or scholastic rod to abash or control, but prepares itself and is admitted freely and at once to a world wide intimacy with all kinds and conditions of people.

And this from the Right Honorable A. J. Balfour:

In my judgment all the machinery used in communicating information to the public is not of really more importance to the community at large than the power of the people to communicate by advertisement and bring the buyer and seller together and give them the machinery for communicating their wishes to one another.

Father and Child Killed.

Mr. Joseph M. Harvell and his little six-year old daughter, Annie, were crushed to death by a falling tree near Thermal City on Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. Harvell and Mr. Burling Williams were cutting down a tree. As the tree started to fall, Mr. Harvell saw two of his children standing directly under it. He sprang toward them, but the tree caught and instantly killed him, his skull being crushed to pieces. The little girl's head was also mashed and her skull crushed, but she breathed for several hours. The little boy was found unhurt in the tree top.—Rutherfordton Democrat.

The Poverty of the Pulpit.

It is not often that the secular editors (if so we may call them) get an opportunity to "talk back" to the preachers. The editor must take his medicine "like a little man." However, here at last comes a religious paper and takes up the cudgels in behalf of the much abused secular editors. The Christian Instructor has studied his subject, and knows whereof he affirms, when he says what here follows:

The poverty of the pulpit is openly confessed when such subjects as the "New Woman" or "The Wheel" are announced for the purpose of drawing the crowd. The crowd often comes. But it comes, not to be fed, but to be amused, entertained, or to satisfy its curiosity. It comes, but it is likely to go away unsaved, disgusted with the minister and his message, and, possibly, with the Master, on the supposition that He sent such a servant. When the old Gospel will not draw men to Christ, nothing else will. God made no mistake in appointing preachers of the Gospel as the means of saving men. But men make a mistake when they depend on anything else. We care not what you put up in its place, it will fall. There is that in truth that meets the want of the soul. The world knows that such was the mind of Christ. When ministers substitute claptrap, for the avowed purpose of drawing, the world at once looks upon them as acting by false pretences. They placard some popular theme, and then attempt to smuggle in the old Gospel. "In vain is the net spread in the sight of any bird." The most stupid kinds are smarter than to be caught that way. Men are usually brighter than the birds. He who would catch them must not tell them that he would inveigle them into listening to what they dislike. To gain the confidence of men is a main point, in usefulness as a public teacher.—Richmond Dispatch.

Reductions in Railroad Charges.

Advance sheets of Poor's Railroad Manual for 1895 have been issued, and are full of statistics. They show, among other things, a great decline in railroad charges for freight and passengers since 1882. In that year the freight moved aggregated 360,490,375 tons, and the earnings from freights were $485,778,341, an average of 1.236 cents a ton a mile. Last year the tonnage amounted to 675,129,747 tons, and the earnings were $700,477,409. This was an average charge of 0.851 cent a ton for each mile moved, an immense reduction. It is thus seen that the tonnage did not lack very much of having doubled within the twelve years cited; while the earnings were relatively less by a very great deal. During the same period the passenger rate per mile has declined from 2.447 cents to 2.030 cents. So it is shown that during this time of falling prices railroad prices have had to come down with all others, and it is argued, not unreasonably, that the time is not far distant when 2 cents per mile will be the standard passenger rate. Railroads, like all other financial institutions, are exceedingly conservative and will no doubt resist the reduction as long as they can. But it has been abundantly demonstrated that the lower the fares are the more the people travel, and it is questionable if a railroad was ever yet hurt by a reduction in its passenger rates.—Charlotte Observer.

The Peer of All Markets.

The total sales of tobacco on the Greenville market for last week amounted to $25,000, and the outlook is that this week will be equally as good as last. The warehouses had fair breaks on Monday, and to-day there was enough to occupy nearly the whole day in selling. Twice already this week tobacco has been brought here from other markets because prices are so much better here than elsewhere. This goes to show that Greenville is the best market for the farmers of eastern North Carolina to sell on. This market is conducted on business principles. It does not send drammers, through the country to tell the farmers falsehoods about prices, but wins confidence by selling strictly on merit.
