SOME SHOP TALK.

If compliments and words of kindness would buy type, ink and paper and pay printers the REFLECTOR could out shine that are entirely beyond its reach just now. While words of cheer will not accomplish these things, still they are appreciated and inspire us to higher efforts, for they show there are those who take notice of what we endeavor to do and are willing to accord praise for what they see is being accomplished. A compliment that carries with it the most practical suggestion of any yet received came in a letter from another State wherein the writer, who was seeking information about establishing an enterprise here, said, "I believe in Greenville, and I heard a business man who reads the DAILY REFLECTOR say the people of Greenville ought to give you a check for $3,000 for the benefit the paper had been to the place. so you could enlarge it and go on with the good work."

Now, doesn't that have a business sound? Indeed it does, and if the suggestion happens to be a "catching" one and anybody gets a check drawing notion they can find this office open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

But levity aside, the REFLECTOR asks and expects no contributions and our purpose in publishing the above is to show that the paper is attracting attention to Greenville, and people abroad are recognizing that this town has a good thing in the REFLECTOR. However, we would like for our home people to do this much: We would like for them to give the DAILY REFLECTOR enough patronage to enable us to double its size and make some other contemplated improvements. Such a step would show the outside world that you have faith in your town and appreciate what the paper is doing for its advancement

We can make no complaint about the patronage given our weekly, that speaks for itself, but the daily ought to be larger, yet it will take more patronage to make it so. There is no question about a daily paper doing a town many times more good than a weekly paper can do. A good daily in which the business of the community is properly presented gives the town a standing and reputation that cannot be given through a weekly paper. A paper may print page after page setting forth the advantages of a town, but unless its columns show that it is backed up by the business community the best results aimed at are lost.

This is written in the hope that the business men of Greenville will view the matter in such a light as to insure us their co-operation in making the DAILY REFLECTOR such a paper as the town should have. When the town is benefitted every business and every individual in it receives a share of the benefit.

A Second Child Dead.

We are again called on to chronicle the death of a child of Mr. Thomas McGee, of Mt. Olive, little Mabel, his youngest daughter, having passed away on Saturday, 7th inst. This is the second child Mr. McGee has lost in the last two months. We deeply sympathize with the family. Little Mabel was laid by the side of her little brother on Sunday.

The young people of the town will have a dance tonight.

TO WAKE A DEAD TOWN.

Sometime since a Tennessee gentleman asked the Manufacturer's Record, of Baltimore, "how to wake up a dead town." He said his town "had many natural advantages, but from lack of energy and enterprise and because of the work of the never dying croakers, these advantages were not utilized, and, because of this, the town, like hundreds of others, was to all intents and purposes dead." The Manufacturer's Record published the letter and asked for suggestions as to how to quicken into life these dead towns that are a curse to themselves and the country. An Indiana man wrote a reply and threw out some very valuable suggestions on the subject. The REFLECTOR takes some extracts from his suggestions in the hope that they will be beneficial to Greenville; not that we have a dead town here, but there are a great many natural resources here that might be utilized to advantage, and there is room yet for much new life and enterprise among our citizens.

The Indiana writer says:

"I want to say that I never learned of a town that did 'wake up' until every inhabitant took a financial interest in some manner, usually by aiding some factory enterprise, or thorough advertising and continuous advertising, not for a week, but for years in selected advertising mediums. A good medium costs money but we get what we pay for every time. * * * Now, there are thousands of dollars of Northern capital lying in the banks and safety vaults not only in Indianapolis, but in all large cities, only waiting a favorable opportunity for investment. But those towns wanting financial aid must first show their own confidence by leading off, then the outside capital will follow. Let me tell your readers that in Indiana in seven years' time there were raised bonuses aggregating upwards of $1,000,000 in only twelve towns. What did these towns do? Why they gave this money to factories that had capital of over $20,000,000 employing upward of 20,000 hands, a weekly pay-roll of $400,000 and an annual output of products exceeding the amount of capital stock. I know a small town of 1500 souls which wanted a factory, and wanted it badly. A meeting of business men was called; fifteen were present; out of the fifteen a self-constituted committee was appointed on ways and means to get up a subscription. One man who owned 200 acres of land offered to donate forty acres valued at $10,000. His offer was accepted, the land was platted, and within three days every person able to buy a lot (except an occasional croaker, whom we have with us as well as the flea and serpent in every town,) bought of these 100 lots, and raised $10,000 in easy payments. Two years ago that town did not circulate $1000 a month, including every store; today they pay out in wages over $3000 per week for help alone, and another big plant building, while new stores and dwellings are going up on every hand. Moreover, every man, woman and child feels the beneficial effects of the distribution of money, and no one wanting work is idle. You say you can't do the same thing, and can't get the factory if you would? You can't do anything unless you try. * * * Some say they have no means. Then let a few that have means join hands and start the ball rolling; get your advertisement started; announce to the world that your town is there, and let every soul that enjoys the town's privileges be instructed to talk out in meetings, in the country, in other cities, everywhere, that your town is awake, and that it is the place to live in and invest money in, and that your people are enterprising and full of push.

A Little Boy Kills Himself.

William Miller Huff, the five year old son of John G. Huff, a prominent citizen of East Bend, Yalquin county met with a sad death last Saturday while in the room alone. The little fellow found a loaded pistol in the bureau drawer. He took it out and was playing with it when it was accidentally discharged, the ball entering the abdomen and coming out in the small part of the back. He suffered intensely until three o'clock in the afternoon when he died. After the accident he ran to his sister and told her that he had shot himself but that he did it accidentally. He then called for each member of the family, saying that he wanted to kiss them good-bye before he died.—Charlotte Observer.

WILL SHE?

When the coming woman gets here
Will she offer up her seat?
Will she offer her umbrella,
When there's rain or snow or sleet?
Will she help us in the wagon?
Will she bait our fishing hook?
Will she step into the water
That we dry may cross the brook?
Will she seize a rail and rescue
When the bully chases us?
Will she push the wheezy mower
Every eve and make no fuss?
Will she run the locomotive,
Shovel coal and handle brakes?
Will she level mount and forest?
Carry litters for the snakes?
Will she march to bloody battle,
Snap her fingers at the hurts?
Well, I guess not—she will merely Hide behind her husband's skirts.

A Shoplifter's Ruse.

A well dressed woman recently entered a Paris jeweler's shop and asked to see some valuable gold pins, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.
While she was examining them a man began playing a barrel organ before the door. The music seemed to annoy the lady, and stepping to the door she threw a piece of money
to the man and told him to go away,
which he did at once.

On returning to the counter she said that none of the pins suited her,
but that as some compensation for the trouble she had given she would buy a brooch. She accordingly chose one, paid 10 francs for it and was leaving the shop when the jeweler missed a diamond pin of great value from among those she had been examining.

He accordingly stopped his customer, who seemed highly indignant
and insisted on the jeweler's wife searching her, which was done, but no pin was found. The jeweler sent his sister to watch the woman, who was seen to enter another jeweler's shop and was pretending to make a purchase when the organ grinder
made his appearance.

As soon as he began playing she again threw him some money and ordered him to move on, but the person who was watching her perceived that with the money she had given the man a piece of jewelry.

This was at once made known to the police, who arrested both and found on the man several articles of stolen jewelry.

Costly Shoes.

When the tomb of Henry VI of Sicily, who died in 1197, was opened at Palermo, 40 years ago, it was found that on the feet of the dead
monarch were shoes whose uppers
were of cloth embroidered with gold and pearls, while the soles were
of cork.

jority of mankind would arise and

Another Big Day.

The Greenville market today had one of the best all through breaks that has yet taken place, every warehouse floor being taxed to its full capacity to handle all that was brought in. The sales started at the Eastern with a full floor at 9:30, and when they stopped for dinner that house and only about two rows at the Greenville had been sold. After dinner the tremendous lot at the Greenville was finished, then the Star, which also had a full house, then the Planters with one of its usual fine breaks closing the sales. It was a sight worth looking upon, every house being full, and every one of them getting high prices.

The Planters warehouse is still holding her own with big breaks and high prices.
