Superior Court.

The September term of Pitt Superior Court opened at ten o'clock this morning with Judge Jas. D. McIver presiding and Solicitor C. M. Bearnard prosecuting for the State.

The following Grand Jury was drawn and sworn.

W. R. Horne, Foreman, B. F. Cobb, Louis H. Cox, Ed. S. Harris, Calvin Jones, James H. Hardy, Jr., C. R. Johnson, W. E. Tucker, H. R. Johnson, T. J. Stancill, Daniel Fatch, J. W. Allen, Geo. W. Gardner, J. T. Nelson, W. F. Carson, L. L. Kittrell, B. E. Abrams, G. T. Whichard.

The charge of Judge McIver was not a long one, but gave a clear synopsis of the duties of the jurors and the law to which it was necessary to call their attention. W. B. Albritton was sworn as officer of the jury. W. R. Parker is Court Crier.

The following petit jury for the week was called in the box and sworn:

Howell Cobb, P. H. Kittrell, McD. Horton, Ulysses Joyner, W. L. Brown, W. A. Davenport, Elbert Forbes, R. M. Starkey, A. D. Hall, Thos. E. Little, John L. Coburn, J. S. Overton, Wiley Pierce, Lawrence Hooker.

At this point Judge McIver said he believed there was a bond case that had the right of way, but counsel for the plaintiff stated that they would waive the right of precedence, when the criminal docket was taken up.

These cool mornings are suggestive of fires. We would advise our readers to be very careful that their chimneys and stove flues are in good condition before they begin using them.

Still More Room Needed.

An idea of the business done around the depot here can be had from the amount of shipments. Agent J. R. Moore tells us that his daily shipments of tobacco now average five solid cars besides other freight. The shipment today of tobacco alone was ten cars. The railroad authorities have just added 60 feet to the length of the warehouse, but still there is not room enough to handle conveniently the immense business of this station. A look into the warehouse shows it to be crowded nearly all the time.

A Short Sermon.

There are parents who ought to make an earnest study of the second commandment, and try to picture what the future of their children will be if the parent's sins are to be visited upon them. There will be some fearful revelations in the day of judgment and the finger of many a boy will point to his father as the cause of his ruin. Parents beware! not only your example effects the lives of your children but your secret sins will be visited upon them.

Died.

Little William, aged about one year and eight months, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Brown, died Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, after a severe illness of several weeks. Our people deeply sympathize with the bereaved parents in the sorrow that darkens their home by the death of this sweet child. The funeral took place at four o'clock this afternoon in the Episcopal cemetery, services conducted by Rev G. F. Smith. Messrs. J. R. Moye, W. B. Wilson, S. T. Hooker and R. Williams were pall bearers.

I am now back at my Shoe Shop for regular work and can do all work promptly. Give me your orders. J. J. CORY.

The evening twilight of September 18 will be to the Jews throughout the world, the commencement of a new day and a new year. It will be the dawn of Rosh Hashana - the first of the year 5656, reckoned from the beginning of the world.

Good Outlook.

The tobacco market made a fine beginning to-day for another big week, there being the most tobacco here that has yet come in on a Monday. All the houses had good breaks, the floors of some of them being full. The cooler weather caused everybody to move around more briskly, and the buyers having cleared off their heavy purchases of last week started off the sales with some lively bidding. The market is strong with a still higher range of prices.

S. R. Tyson has rented the store next door to Pender's and will open a grocery business there.

Commissioners Sale,

By virtue of a decree of the Superior Court of Pitt county made at September term, 1889, in a cause therein pending entitled, Laney M. Briley et al versus Martha A. Rouse et als, I will on Tuesday, the 17th day of September, 1895, before the Court House door in Greenville, sell at public sale to the highest bidder for cash, all that certain lot or parcel of land known and designated in the plan of the town of Greenville as lot number four in the old portion of said town, bounded on the north by lot number three, on the east by lot number sixteen, on the south by second street and on the west by Cherry Hill Cemetery, containing one half an acre more or less.

ALEX L. BLOW, Commissioner, Greenville, N. C. August, 15, 1895.

WEIGHTY WORDS OF WISDOM.

To the Editor of the News & Observer.

GREENVILLE, N. C., Sept. 9

I have read with interest and approval your editorial of a recent date on the "Buzz of the Blue Bottler," and I desire to heartily commend it to some of your brethren of the press. This seems to be a day in which wild rumor is running riot and hitherto political integrity counts for naught. It is only necessary for some fellow to start some story and for another fellow to put it in a newspaper and here it goes upon its rounds of gossip and detraction; and not one of these political gossips seem to feel under the slightest obligations to ascertain what the truth of the matter is. Only a few days ago a friend sent me a clipping from some paper which purports to be a letter written from Morganton to the Caucasian in which the correspondent said that somebody else said that it was reported that I said "in the late Democratic silver conference in Washington that if I was forced to the alternative of voting for a goldbug candidate or a Populist, I would vote the Populist ticket." But for my very high regard for the man who sent me the clipping I would not think of paying any attention to such an idle, baseless rumor. Of course I said no such thing. I was very busy, as you well know, working on a plan of organization for the silver Democrats to work under. What the outcome of that conference will be I do not know, but certainly I never thought of action as is outlined in this clipping in the event of the failure of the purposes of the Washington conference. In fact, I have never understood that the Populists are the peculiar friends and champions of silver. It is true in all their platforms, both State and National, they have, I think, inserted a demand for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, but they have made much more prominent their demands of one kind or another for a system of fiat money. I am aware of the fact that some of the more thoughtful of the leaders are in favor of dropping the sub-treasury and other like fiat money demands and make their fight along the silver line, but up to this time no action of that kind has been taken by any authorized convention of which I have heard. In the early days of the party, if I remember aright, the burden of their demands and speeches was for the sub-treasury plan or something better, but all looking to a system of fiat-money; so it seems to me that one is justified in saying that the Populist party, as a party, is more of a fiat money party, than a bi-metallic party. When it becomes a bi-metallic party, pure and simple, if it ever does, it will, in my humble opinion, become a much more interesting and powerful factor in the great bi-metallic fight which now confronts us. If the Southern and Western Democrats who are now making their fight for bi-metallicism shall be compelled to fight the Populists who profess to be for silver, and the enemies of silver in and out of their own party and in this unequal contest shall be overpowered and driven from the field, then there is, I assert, no political organization in existence able to wage a successful warfare against the organized money power of this country. The man who believes that the Populist party can do it, weighed down as it is with so many impracticable questions and led, in some States, by so many political cranks, is a very credulous man.

I do not belong to that hopeful class of persons who believe that the silver movement is sure to sweep the country in 1896, and hence I am not in the movement for personal gain. If I had been looking to self interest I would have done like many other Southern Democrats have done, abandon what I taught and believed to be the interest of the people and join the so-called sound money crusade. I have stood by my convictions, and I do not think a defeat, if it must come in 1896, will change me. Those who heard me at Goldsboro a year ago, will recall the fact that I stated then, we were, in my opinion, entering upon a contest between the great body of the people on the one hand, and the allied money power on the other which would be long and fierce. Concentrated power never voluntarily surrenders its grip upon popular right. The Democratic party was ten years engaged in its heroic, patriotic efforts to reduce tariff taxation. I do not suppose that twenty per cent. of the people were really interested in maintaining a high protective tariff, but that twenty per cent was concentrated and organized. Nor do I suppose that twenty per cent. of the people are really interested in maintaining the single gold standard but that twenty per cent is concentrated and organized. After a long struggle the people became informed and organized on the tariff question and in 1892 the movement to reduce tariff taxation swept the country and now we hear it said in my section that the country has not been ruined as was predicted by those who fought the movement. So the movement to restore silver to its money functions as it existed prior to 1873 will go on whether it succeeds in 1896 or not till it finally triumphs, and then it will likewise be sure that the country has not been ruined by it as some now predict. Bi-metallicism is the cause of the people. Yea more, it is the cause of humanity and it must ultimately succeed. It may be after I am dead and gone but I want it said of me that I fought on the side of humanity and the people.

A few days ago a close friend of mine was chiding me for being for silver and as a final thrust he said: "Jarvis how can you advocate anything which Butler advocates?" I replied I deal with public questions from principle and not from prejudice. Long before Mr. Butler became a factor in North Carolina politics I, in common with nearly every Democrat in the State, applauded Ransom, Vance and Carlisle when by speech or vote they denounced the great wrong of 1873 in striking down silver as well as when they sought to undo the wrong by restoring it to limited or unlimited coinage. On the 21st of February, 1878, Mr. Carlisle in a speech in the House of Representatives, said:

"According to my view of the subject the conspiracy which seems to have been formed here and in Europe to destroy by legislation and otherwise from three-sevenths to one half the metallic money of the world is the most gigantic crime of this or any other age. The consummation of such a scheme would ultimately entail more misery upon the human race than all the wars, pestilence and famines that ever occurred in the history of the world." Mr. Butler has never used such language as this in his denunciation of the conspiracy to destroy silver as money because he can't and yet there are men and papers in North Carolina, who applauded Carlisle when he uttered these burning words, but who are now ready to denounce me because I will not flee away when Mr. Butler approaches, from what Mr. Carlisle taught me was my post of duty to the people. I care not what any Populist may do, I shall continue, as best I know how, to help in giving back to the world that metallic money, the loss of which Mr. Carlisle declared would entail such dire calamities upon humanity. Hence, I expect to be at the silver conference, called to meet in the city of Raleigh on the 25th of this month, if I can possibly get there. The 25th falls in the second week of Pitt court and I may not be able to leave but I shall try to arrange to do so.

When the papers get through vexing themselves over my Morganton speech, I think I will make another at some convenient point, and I will speak on this subject:

"There are two things needful to the enduring prosperity of the South—bi-metallicism and good government, State and municipal—neither of which is the Republican party able to furnish."

By the way, the newspapers which seem to take a delight in criticizing me would fill their columns with something more interesting to their readers if they only knew how little I cared for their criticism. Newspaper criticism is no new thing to me. If one will look back to the files of some papers fifteen or sixteen years ago, when I was engaged with my collaborators in selling and completing the Western North Carolina Railroad and in setting the State debt and other great public matters with which we had to deal and then believe all he finds therein written he must conclude I was a very bad man; and yet the fact remains that at the end of my term of office I left my party in absolute control of my department of the State government without a jar or discord in its ranks and the Legislature without regard to party or color passed a resolution without a dissenting vote saying 'well done good and faithful servant.' In all the trying ordeals through which I then had to pass I did as I shall do this year and next and the balance of my life, deal with every public question and discharge of public duty as I honestly and conscientiously believe will best promote the public good.

I am very truly yours,
THOS. J. JARVIS.

Trees Shrink and Expand.

Perhaps it is more interesting than strictly useful to know that the diameter of trees not only varies from summer to winter, but from day to day. They are larger from noon until twilight next morning than from twilight to noon; they are smaller in winter than in summer. Low temperatures, as well as high, promote evaporation. The trees evaporate from their branches in winter, and so the colder the weather the more they shrink.
