Bethel Items.

BETHEL, N. C., Sept. 17th, 1895.

Rev. W. A. Forbes returned from Roper City Friday morning.

Mrs. W. A. James who has been visiting relatives here left for her home in Asheville yesterday morning.

J. H. Johnston returned home Sunday evening.

Prof. Goshaun, the mind reader, gave an exhibition here last Thursday night and performed many wonderful feats.

Many of our people attended the yearly meetings at Conetoe and Hickory Grove Sunday. There were large congregations at each place.

D. S. Harper, F. B. Knight, Jesse W. Thomas, John Mayo, M. C. S. Cherry Jr., and Mayor Moore are attending court this week.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

OAKLEY, N. C., Sept. 16th, 1895.

Mrs. I. H. Little was here Sunday.

Mrs. W. G. Stokes was here Saturday.

Walter Whichard is improving.

J. O. Williams attended church at Hickory Grove Sunday.

R. F. Gainer and wife were called to the bedside of their nephew, Sunday, Charles Fleming, who is suffering from the effects of two yellow chills.

Messrs. W. H. Griffin and John Williams, of Rocky Mount, were here last week on business.

Miss Mary Whitehurst, who has been teaching school near Wharton's is at home again to the delight of many friends.

W. J. Little and sister, Capt. J. E. Hines and wife and R. A. Peel attended the yearly meeting at Conetoe Sunday. All report a most excellent time. The Conetoe people make it pleasant for all who visit their little town.

I am now back at my Shoe Shop for regular work and can do all work promptly. Give me your orders. J. J. CORY.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Farmers are beginning to learn to bring their tobacco in the over night. A very good idea.

Goldsboro, Kinston and Nashville are the new tobacco markets that open in eastern North Carolina this year. In the opinion of all thinking tobaccoists, Greenville will be to the eastern Carolina markets what Danville is to the two bright tobacco producing States.

The war between the American Tobacco Company and the western plug manufacturers seems to be growing warmer daily. The American Company has been pushing one of its plug brands and put the price as low as eleven cents to jobbers and fifteen cents to retailers, while it is said that Sorg, the Ohio manufacturer, has contracted for thirty thousand bicycles which they will give away as premiums. While all this is going on we would drop the gentle hint to all the cigarette manufacturers that they had better begin to lay in a supply while the heavy sales are going on in the eastern markets. It will not be very long before the best cutter selections will be made out of the eastern crop.

Mr. J. B. Cobb was heard to remark a few days ago, while in Greenville, that the tobacco buyers here were the most clever, genial set of gentlemen, polite and courteous to one another, that he had seen. He is not the only prominent tobaccoist that has been heard to make that remark and we feel proud to say that the compliment is a well merited one. For sobriety, honesty and integrity we have a class of buyers that can't be excelled in the State and we challenge the tobacco markets of the world that we have five of the youngest, brightest and handsomest tobacco buyers, that buy more tobacco, pay more money for it, follow a sale closer, stick to it longer, and complain of the worry and fatigue less than any five men that can be pitted against them anywhere. We have a good many more buyers but they are all MEN. The five above referred to are, J. W. Morgan, P. H. Gorman, B. E. Parham, George Fleming and

J. W. Wiggins. The whole crowd will not average 120 pounds in weight and not one of them is thirty years old. But if they are not grown up men in avoirdupoise they have experienced and well developed business heads on their shoulders that rank them among the best business men of the country. Yes we are proud of our buyers, and it is a source of great pleasure to pay this very just tribute to them. No man knows better how to appreciate the value of a good tobacco buyer and their services than the writer, and we repeat that last week was a time that tried tobacco men's souls, and through thick and thin they stood up like men, carrying no doubt a good deal of tobacco that on ordinary occasions they would have let gone.

EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

There are now 358 patients in the insane asylum at Raleigh—the largest number since it was established. There are 154 males and 204 females. The great majority of them are country people of middle age. Wake has the largest number and Cumberland the next largest. Since December 1st last there have been 101 admissions.

Is it not strange that a man worth a million dollars should be so greedy for more that he would stoop to the grossest kind of fraud just to add a few dollars to his pile? Yet such is the case. John B. Manning, who is 65 years old, a millionaire and a Wall street speculator in bank stocks and bonds, has been charged with using chemicals to remove the endorsements on the backs of bonds held by him and selling them for new bonds. The old man had better been thinking about dying.

A Unique Prayer for Rain.

Some little time ago the minister from Scarboro, Me., exchanged pulpits with the minister from Sacarappa, in the same State. When the Sacarappa, minister arrived at Scarboro he was met by a deacon, who said to him: "Mr. Jones, I do hope today in your prayer you will make an especial effort for rain. Our crops are being destroyed, and I can see nothing but desolation here." So when the minister was about making his petition, he said, "Oh, Lord! I pray Thee that thou wouldst send copious rains upon the soil of Scarboro, that it may bring forth a bountiful harvest, and that the people will be made glad, and, Oh, Lord! they will bless you for it. I desire, Oh Lord, to state that I make this petition in the name of the people of Scarboro, for, Oh, Lord, I know that Thou, in thy divine wisdom, will say it is not rain that the soil of Scarboro needs. It is more top dressing."—Boston Budget.

BURGLAR TOOL MAKERS.

They Manufacture the Finest Implements of Their Trade.

When Dutch Gus, one of the most expert and dangerous bank burglars, was captured a few years ago, the most complete set of burglars' tools ever made was found in his possession and it now lends added interest to the collection of burglars' implements on exhibition at police headquarters.

Dutch Gus said he made his tools himself and could rival any toolmaker in the country. In following up the suggestion given by him when he was put through the third degree, made famous by former Chief of Police Byrnes, the police learned that all the cracksmen of the higher class depend entirely upon themselves for tools they require in cracking safes.

The police were for many years at a loss to learn where burglars secured the tools so necessary to their trade. Although complete sets of tools were repeatedly captured when a noted safe worker was arrested, the next arrest would be followed by the discovery of an equally valuable set of tools. It was not long before Steve O'Brien, Phil Reilly, Jake Von Gerichten and Charles Heidelberg discovered, quite by accident, a small cellar shop in Bleeker street, wherein an old German toolmaker ground out the finest implements of the burglars' stock in trade.

Down in a basement near the corner of Mott street, and within a stone's throw of police headquarters, this German toolmaker conducted a small and apparently unprofitable business. Finally the headquarters detectives, whose duties took them down around headquarters at night, noticed that the old German had many customers after the tenement house dwellers had forsaken the sidewalks and sought their hard and uncomfortable couches for the night.

The detectives made a quiet investigation and reported their discoveries to former Chief of Police Byrnes, who was then making the record for the detective bureau of the New York police force which has made it famous the world over. Byrnes was not slow to realize what was going on, and although the law gave the chief of the detective bureau no right to interfere with the old man's business moral suasion was used and the trade pursued by the German toolmaker was broken up and nobody has since tried to build up a business in that particular line.

George McCluskey said, when I asked him where the burglars of the higher class secured their tools, a few days ago: "The burglars make their tools now, although formerly they were made by various toolmakers about the city. The tools in use today are far different from those which were used to crack a safe 20 years ago. Then it would almost take a truck to carry the assortment of tools, but now the bank burglar can stow away in a corner of his pocket tools enough to crack any safe in the country.

"Of course, when they require some tool of intricate design, they go to a toolmaker, but the general run of tools they are thoroughly capable of making themselves. Most of the fine work on safes now is done with the diamond drill and dynamite. A hole is drilled in the safe door, just above the combination lock, a charge of dynamite is inserted and then the combination is blown apart and the door opens. The diamond drill and dynamite can be carried in a man's pocket. Safe burglaries and vault robberies have been few and far between of late years, as most of the really clever workers are in state prison, where they are out of the way of temptation."—New York Herald.

France's Mission Among Nations.

The true mission of France among the nations is high enough if she would but see it. She should lead the world in the arts of peace. We remember Renan expressing it once in conversation in those rooms of his in the College de France. "Strange," he said, "how we French wish to shine in wars and foreign adventures, while, in truth, we love the ideals of peace. Our true work is in the advancement of the arts and letters and science. If I were asked to tell the difference between Frenchmen and other nations, I should say it consisted chiefly in this—that with us to be impolite and unlettered is a reproach; that we, more than other people, cherish a human ideal." Surely, too, this is what Heine meant when he spoke of the French as the chosen people and of Germany as Philistia.—Saturday Review.

Color as a Shield.

More than 25 years ago Mr. Alfred Russell Wallace predicted that it would be found that brilliantly colored and conspicuous caterpillars were not among the favorite food of birds, although dull looking caterpillars are devoured by them with great avidity. Various observations and experiments since then have tended to confirm Mr. Wallace's conclusion.

His idea was that the bright colors of certain caterpillars are the result of natural selection, the caterpillars which originally possessed such colors having also possessed some peculiarity, such as the secretion of acrid juices, which rendered them distasteful to birds. As the conspicuously marked caterpillars were thus let alone by their enemies they tended to increase at the expense of their less brilliantly colored relatives.

Experiments have shown that birds actually do avoid the bright colored caterpillars as a rule. And this seems almost to have become a second nature, for a jackdaw, which had been raised in captivity and had had no experience in judging the edible qualities of caterpillars, was observed to regard the brilliant caterpillar of the figure of eight moth with suspicion and aversion, although it eagerly devoured dull, plain caterpillars placed within its reach. When it was driven by hunger to attack the other, it finally refused to eat it, giving plain evidence that there was something distasteful about the prey.

Thus, according to the theory, nature has provided a warning, expressed by color, which serves a double purpose, since it both protects the caterpillar possessing it from attack and also saves the bird which sees it from the disagreeable consequence of seizing prey that is not suited to its taste.—Youth's Companion.

Dogs and Matrimony.

Wonderful tales have been told of the marvelous instinctive intelligence of dogs, but the idea of consulting a canine oracle when a man is contemplating matrimony is a new one. A French writer, however, says that before committing himself a man should note carefully how she whom he loves conducts herself toward her parents and friends, and, above all, how she treats ordinary domestic animals. "Beware of a person whom children and dogs dislike," he says. "Dogs may be our inferiors, but their instincts rarely deceive them, and a pronounced antipathy on their part may well be considered as a danger signal. No compassion should be felt for him who marries a girl whom dogs snarl at and dislike, for he has had fair warning of domestic storms."—New York Advertiser.

Men and Theories.

Man is a theory making, theory loving animal, and, as a result, there are about a thousand theories in this world to every solid fact. But still it happens that the facts have the best of it, because no fact can confound another. They live together in eternal peace, whereas theories are full of but a cut and dog existence and the portility among them is increased to a complete.—"In Science and Art," John Phillips.

Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Association.

The applicants for membership in the Pitt county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Association of North Carolina, met in convention in Greenville on the 17th inst. for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization.

The meeting was called to order by D. E. Boney, and after a brief explanation of the plan submitted the question of going into a permanent organization which unanimously carried, resulting in the election of the following officers for the ensuing year. President, R. R. Cotten, Secretary and Treasurer, J. L. Little, and supervisors of the several townships were elected as follows: Betnel, W. I. Little, Beaver Dam G. T. Tyson, Belvoir, J. R. Rives, Carolina, A. B. Congleton, Falkland, R. Williams, Greenville, Wm. House, Farmville, J. Williams, Swift Creek, N. R. Cory, Pactivas D. H. James, Chicod, J. J. Laughinghouse.

This plan of insurance has been in operation for a period of twenty years, and the average cost as per the statistics show that it does not cost in excess of $2.00 per thousand per annum.

This Association is chartered by the North Carolina Legislature (session of 1893) and is in every way sound and solvent. For 5 cents on the $100 worth of property insured you can get a policy contract good for thirty years and is subject to no additional cost except for prorata assessments in the event of losses being sustained in your county Association. There are no salaried officers or corporations to enrich and every dollar you spend will go toward helping some neighbor in distress.
