A GOOD RECORD.

Made by an Honorable Son of Pitt County.

Unpretentious and modest, true and upright, brave and heroic, are the virtues of the best citizens. We have just had the pleasure of hearing Mr. R. M. Jones recount the brave and heroic deeds of Mr. J. R. Davenport, the merchant prince of Pactolus, successful farmer and most excellent citizen. We have it from Mr. Davenport whom we sought in person, and from him without his knowing that this would be published.

He enlisted in the war at 16 years of age at the first call to arms as a private in Co. B., 33rd N. C. Regiment. He fought through the war, was in thirty three engagements, wounded six times, and on the final day when Lee surrendered at Appomattox was in command of and surrendered his company.

We are proud of such men as J. R. Davenport. He is a worthy and honored son of Pitt county and such men as he are the main stay of our country who can be relied upon. It was the merest accident that we had the opportunity of knowing these facts. A peculiar coincidence was that he was a member of the 33rd Regiment and was in thirty-three engagements.

A MISTAKE.

The Reflector Expresses the Wrong Sentiment.

The following was taken from the Daily Greenville REFLECTOR:

"A planter said on the breaks today. 'I was in Tarboro yesterday and they told me there that the Greenville market had broke all to pieces, but I see from prices here today it looks anything else but broke.' Wonder if that is the way our neighbor town is trying to establish a market."

We are at a loss to know how such a report started, and would thank the REFLECTOR to give the name of the planter referred to in this article.

There is not a market in the State towards which our people have a kinder feeling than the one at Greenville. At the opening sales here, it was a noted fact that there was no one from our sister town who came for the express purpose of dissatisfying farmers with prices, and our people were particular impressed with the fact and every indication showed that Greenville intended to carry fair in the field of competition.

Knowing all this to be true, the Southerner is sorry to learn that the REFLECTOR has been wrongly informed. The sentiment expressed by the "planter," does not accord with the feeling of our warehouse-men or buyers, and we trust the REFLECTOR will, out of justice to Tarboro, publish this in its next issue.—Tarboro Southerner.

Of course we will publish the above from the Southerner, and take pleasure in so doing. We are glad to have this expression of the feeling of the Tarboro people toward the Greenville market, and assure them of a hearty reciprocation of such feeling. That Greenville will "carry fair in the field of competition," has all along been and will be the disposition of this market. The Greenville market runs strictly on merit and envies no other market in the State, but wishes for all the fullest measure of success.

ANOTHER DISASTER.

The Short Lumber Mill at Washington Again Suffers by Fire.

We learn with regret that the Short lumber mill at Washington has suffered another serious loss by fire. On Thursday morning fire was discovered in a shed near the dry kilns, and before it could be checked the shed, six kilns, the office and some smaller buildings, together with a large quantity of lumber were destroyed. The loss is estimated between $12,000 and $15,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

This is the third disastrous fire that has taken place at the Short mill, and twice it was wrecked by explosions of boilers, Mr. E. M. Short and several employes losing their lives in the explosion that occurred on the 10th of last December. We learn that the dry kilns will be rebuilt at once.

A Good Judge.

We don't know when we have been more impressed with the dignity and splendid manner of a Judge who has presided over the courts of Pitt county, than in Judge McIver. His courteous, just and merciful decisions meet with general approval. He is clear, firm and learned, and his very face denotes the high born gentleman. His rulings indicate the best and purest virtues of an all round judicial functionary and we are glad to have such a splendid gentleman and gallant Judge to administer the laws of our State.

Deserved Promotion.

We are pleased to learn that through the personal effort of Congressman Harry Skinner, while in Washington last week, he procured the promotion of Charlie R. Sugg, who was a messenger in the Public Printing Office. Charlie says he is satisfied he would not have secured his new position if Col. Skinner had not gone with him in person to see Mr. Benedict, the Public Printer.

TELLS A JOKE.
Who is Judge Lockett, of North Carolina.

The Washington Post, of the 12th, contained the following:
"Some years ago I was prosecuting attorney down in North Carolina," said Judge W. F. Lockett, of that State at the Hotel Page. A colored citizen of bad antecedents had been indicted by the grand jury and was on trial for the larceny of some hogs. There wasn't a doubt of his guilt, for he had been taken red handed in possession of the stolen swine.
"The prisoner had no money to pay an attorney, so the court appointed a young lawyer who, up to that time, had never had a case, to defend the accused. The youngster wasn't lacking in shrewdness, so he called for a jury of colored men as he had the right to do under the law. I then went forward, introduced conclusive testimony to establish the guilt of the prisoner, and sat down without making any speech, for it was too plain a case to call for argument. But my legal opponent got up and made a fiery harangue. He wasn't an impressive looking man, nature having denied him all physical graces, and endowing him moreover with a pair of circular shaped legs that caused all the small boys in the community to jeer aloud when he appeared on the streets. But he had talented lungs, and these he exercised with a good effect for his client that day.
"The jury of his peers wasn't out over ten minutes when they came back with a verdict of 'not guilty.' Everybody was astonished and the Judge's face reddened with indignation. Then he let out and told the jury men in plain English what he thought of a set of men who would render such a travesty on justice. In conclusion he said: 'I guess I will have this jury polled,' and was about to give an order to that effect when the foreman, a great strapping fellow, a plantation hand, black as the ace of spades, rose evidently in great mental perturbation, and said:
"No, Jedge, your honah, please don't poll us—poll dat little bow-legged lawyer over dere; he de one what told us to find B. I. Jones not guilty."
Minister Ransom has returned to Mexico.

Honest Journalism.
"I believe," said Robert Collyer "that a good newspaper is as sacred in its own way as the Bible. It has something in it of the very present word of God to man, and the very present word of man to God."
This was the great tribute of a great man to honesty in journalism. It ought to be the high aim of every newspaper man to deserve it.
What is an honest newspaper?
It is one that, within its proper sphere as a public instrument, tells the truth without fear or favor.
It is one that has ever as its guide the best and truest interests of the community, that is faithful to its constituents, that uses every legitimate means to guard and foster the welfare of the people and aid in their social and political elevation, that upholds the just law of the land, that does not become the ready weapon of trusts and corporate aggrandizement.
It is not one that invades the sanctity of home for the gratification of the scandal monger or the satisfaction of petty spite.
It is not one that is ever ready to sell its powerful columns to those who defy the law, oppress the people, who corrupt legislators and who build great fortunes on the fallen rights of citizens.
Newspapers are not published merely for the health or amusement of their editors. They are published for financial gain. The editor is, or ought to be, the servant of the public, and he is entitled to a just reward for his services. And he gets it by honest effort.
But the editor whose greed for wealth causes him to open his columns to every powerful and oppressive schemer is dishonest and ought to be branded as such. The merchant who cheats his customer has his Nemesis. The editor who betrays his people ought to have a place in the same category.—Washington Post.
Baxter Shemwell and Dr. Lee Payne appeared last week at Davidson court and submitted for an affray with deadly weapons. This was the shooting affair in the morning, and for which they were bound over to court just before the killing of old Dr. Payne. The case was suspended on the payment of the costs, the judge remarking that the whole case had been investigated fully and Shemwell acquitted and that Payne had suffered in the loss of his father, therefore he would suspend judgement. The bitter feeling between the families has broken out again. Dr. Lee Payne, it is said, has asked the foreman of the jury twice which tried Shemwell, how much money he got for rendering his verdict.—Charlotte Observer.

"Get Away from the Crowd."
The following from Robert Burdett has been a source of help to some. I give it, thinking, perhaps, some other young man may get some good from it.
"Get away from the crowd a little while every day, my dear boy. Stand one side and let the world run by, while you get acquainted with yourself, find out all you can about yourself. Ascertain, from original sources, if you are really the manner of man people say you are; and if you are always honest, if you always tell the square, perfect truth in business deals, if your life is as good and upright at eleven o'clock at night as it is at noon, if you are as good temperance man on a fishing excursion as you are at a Sunday-school picnic, if you are as good a boy when you go to Chicago as you are at home, if, in short, you are really the sort of man your father hopes you are, and your sweetheart believes you are. Get on intimate terms with yourself, my boy, and believe me, every time you come out from one of these interviews you will be a stronger, better, purer man. Don't forget this, Tel-emachus, and it will do you good."
Business Ways In Early Days.
In the early days of California there were neither courts nor juries in the land. The word of a Californian was the only bond required. Even the wary Yankee traders who frequented the coast when foreign commerce was finally allowed trusted them freely from one season to the next. An incident illustrating this trait is told by the Aguirre family. Don Jose Aguirre, who owned a trading vessel, once had as supercargo a young man who was a stranger to Californian customs.
While the ship, with cargo, lay in San Pedro harbor, the master being absent, Augustin Machado, a ranchero of considerable wealth in land and herds, but who could neither read nor write, went on board to do some purchasing, his carts awaiting him on shore. When he had made his choice and was about having the goods conveyed to land, the supercargo asked him for either payment or guarantee.
Machado did not at first understand that he was being distrusted. No such demand had ever before been made of any ranchero, where the buyer offered no money, he being credited without hesitation. When at length it dawned upon the Californian, he drew a hair from his beard, and, gravely handing it to the young man, said, with dignity: "Deliver this to Senor Aguirre and tell him it is a hair from the beard of Augustin Machado. You will find it a sufficient guarantee."
The supercargo, crestfallen, placed the hair in the leaves of his account book and allowed the goods to be removed. Upon Aguirre's return he was deeply chagrined at the insult that had been offered to his friend.—Overland Monthly.
Gottschalk, the pianist, claimed to be able to play from memory over 3,000 compositions. They comprised music of every school.

The Philadelphia Record attributes a large number of bicycle accidents to the lack of familiarity on the part of riders with the well-known "rules of the road." It thinks a great many cyclists are ignorant even of the rule to always keep to the right. These accidents are more probably due to the selfishness or ignorance of drivers. It is very noticeable that many drivers will not yield an inch of road to wheelmen. Perhaps they think a wheel can slip around anything anywhere at any time, or fly over if necessary. But a wheel will not run very easily in gutters or through the bushes along the sides of roads. They are entitled to half the road just as much as any vehicle.—Charlotte Observer.

THE GARDEN GATE.

The garden gate is broad and low,
And, swinging back, discloses
A wealth of bloom, a sweeter sweet,
A paradise of roses.

At morn upon my way to town
I linger there a minute,
To greet the mistress of this bower,
The fairest flower within it.

She pins a rose upon my coat,
"To make the town seem brighter,"
Her smiles, her kiss, her parting words
All make my toil seem lighter.

And when at dusk I leave the town,
With all its dust and noises,
My spirit, like an uncaged bird,
Mid country fragrance poises.

I sing along the budding lane
That leads where my true love waits,
Ah, there 'mongst the bloom of roses,
She's leaning upon the gates.
