

THE DAILY REFLECTOR.

Vol. 2.

GREENVILLE, N. C., SEPTEMBER 23, 1895.

No. 245

Local Trains and Boat Schedule.

Passenger and mail train going north, arrives 8:22 A. M. Going South, arrives 6:37 P. M.

North Bound Freight, arrives 9:50 A. M., leaves 10:10 A. M.

South Bound Freight, arrives 2:30 P. M., leaves 2:15 P. M.

Steamer Myers arrives from Washington Monday, Wednesday and Friday leaves for Washington Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Weather Bulletin.

Fair Tuesday, followed by local showers, cooler.

Eleven Years Ago.

This fall is very much like the one eleven years ago. Most every one will remember that when the State Exposition opened in Raleigh the first of October, 1884, the weather was very much as it has been the past week. The boys of the old Greenville Guard will not soon forget the hot march they had.

National League.

The following shows the standing of the base ball clubs with the close of Saturday's games:

	Won.	Lost.	Per ct.
Baltimore	81	42	.659
Cleveland	83	45	.648
Philadelphia	77	48	.616
Chicago	69	56	.552
Boston	68	56	.548
Brooklyn	68	58	.540
Pittsburg	66	61	.521
New York	64	60	.516
Cincinnati	61	60	.504
Washington	39	82	.322
St. Louis	37	86	.301
Louisville	33	92	.264

Baltimore has seven more games to play while Cleveland has only three. So in order to win the pennant Baltimore must not lose more than two games.

Just as we go to press we learn of the death of Mrs. Annie H. Burch, which occurred at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. She lacked only a few days of being 61 years old. The remains will be taken to Wilmington tomorrow.

Sam Jonesisms.

You folks that take front seats and come to roost before sundown—you ought to pay storage.

If I had come here for money, bless your soul, I'd left after the first collection.

Every criminal that goes unwhipt of justice is a menace to good citizenship.

Lawlessness in a town is a hot bed of anarchy.

Policemen find everything that the sentiment of the town demands they shall find.

If I was Mayor of this town, you'd have to stay at home, old buck.

No gentleman will do anything he denies his wife the privilege of doing.

Your Uncle Jones lifts the same standard for himself as he does for his wife.

Make Sam Jones Mayor, and he'd set up with you bucks. He'd make you decent or make you leave town.

The difference between Sam Jones and many preachers is that Sam Jones preaches like he thinks and they think like they preach.

I'd rather be Bob Ingersoll than a cowardly, time serving preacher.

Old church members charging 12 per cent. interest. If you were in hell you'd have the whole country under mortgage before the year's out.

When me and my wife ride the same horse, I'm going to be in front. Agent for your wife! Pay your debts and you won't have to be agent then.

Turn an old dog loose in heaven and he'd be out before break fast, chinking gold off the golden street.

Preachers, load your old fusillade with buck shot, and then pull the trigger there'll be a dead dog.

When you are in hell frying you'll feel a heap worse than you do now.

I believe if all the members of the church in Winston were to get to heaven you'd have to sleep with your breeches under your head. They'd rob you.

If you are mad, beg my pardon and I'll forgive you. I don't bear any malice.

I like bangs. I always thought they were becoming to women and mules.

WE WON'T OFFEND

Your judgment by offering you something for nothing. Good Clothing is always worth a fair price. We spare no pains to give you the best at a small profit.

FRANK WILSON,

The King Clothier.

This is scalding and scouring day in this town. Bad day for chinchies too.

Some of you think Sam Jones shoots off his mouth half cocked. It's a mistake. When his mouth goes off the hammer is pulled clear back.

If you go away yelping folks will say, there goes one of Sam Jones' hit dogs.

There's a possum up the tree. Wait about twenty minutes longer. I'm going to smoke him out.

Something to Think About.

The man who hopes to rise by his own merits should not depend on an alarm clock.

In China all the telegraph wires are laid under the ground; here a like fate awaits those who tamper with them.

In the the old times they made beer from beets. Now it not infrequently occurs that "beats" are made from beer.

The man who never sees that his wife needs anything excuses his neglect on the ground that love is blind.

He is a sensible man who makes use of the sense of other people. Only the fool feels so full that he has no use for counsel.

ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

The "Chicago of the South."

The most important event of the current year to this country, and especially to the South, and still more especially to the city of Atlanta and the State of Georgia, is the Cotton States and International Exposition which opened at Atlanta, Ga., on the 18th day of September, and closes on the 31st day of December.

That a Southern city of about 110,000 population should have the enterprise and public spirit, not to say the temerity, to undertake, almost single handed an enterprise so wide in its scope, so mammoth in its proportions and requiring such a vast outlay of money as to rightly entitle it to the designation of "International," in the face of a universal commercial depression and financial panic, and that Atlanta, Ga., which was left but little more than a heap of ashes and smouldering ruins, with its population of 10,000 scattered and homeless by Sherman's army, when it took up its famous "March to the Sea," should be that city, it is not surprising that the first suggestions of such an enterprise were received with general misgiving and that even the Southern States and cities counselled against it, and were slow to come to the assistance of a sis ercety in an undertaking which at such a time was regarded as hazardous in the extreme and too mammoth to promise even a measurable degree of accomplishment.

A visit to Piedmont Park, however, about two miles north of the center of Atlanta, will dispel every doubt of the realization of a degree of success surpassing the most sanguine expectations of the projectors of the Cotton States and International Exposition.

From the roof garden of the new and modern "Aragon Hotel," which occupies the highest hill in this hill city, a magnificent panoramic view of the city and its surroundings is afforded. All around you, spread over hills and valleys, just sufficiently pronounced to afford pleasing variety to the topography is the compact, well-built, hustling Chicago of the South, Gate City of the South, Atlanta, with its wealth of well-paved streets and avenues, laid out apparently regardless of rule or plan, which join the macadamized roads that lead through the picturesque suburbs to the rich farming lands beyond.

There is an appearance of solidity, grandeur and beauty in her public buildings, her hundred churches, her seminaries, colleges, numerous public school houses, her Henry Grady Hospital, her stores and private houses, suggestive of abundant building material near by, and looking away to the east, fourteen miles across the foothills, the famous Stone Mountain looms up, a solid mountain of granite, where immense quarries are operated now, but where, thirty-one years ago, grim-visaged war held sway and thousands were slain, and their blood trickled over the rugged, granite steps of Stone Mountain.

In looking over these lovely hills and valleys, and in the gladness of Southern verdure and yielding abundantly to the hand of the happy husbandman, it is difficult to realize that it was ever the theater of war, and that the soil was literally soaked with fraternal blood.

In such an undertaking the question of transportation is one of natural prominence, and every person in anywise interested in this exposition, every person proposing to become an exhibitor or a visitor has doubtless propounded the inquiry, whether the Southern railroads are equal to the emergency of handling the enormous travel and traffic to and from Atlanta during the period of the exposition. This question of course has long since been answered to their satisfaction by the Committee on Transportation of the Atlanta Fair; but for the benefit of many who acquired their knowledge of the railroads of the South during a period of ten or fifteen years succeeding the close of the war, perhaps it will be well to say that no comparison can be well drawn between the miserable apologies for railroads in the South during that period, with the really splendid roadbeds and equipment, and service of the present.

Atlanta is essentially a railroad city and a great railroad center, having roads, and good ones, radiating to every section of the country. But without considering any of the others, there is one system fully capable of handling expeditiously, comfortably and satisfactorily, all the travel and traffic to and from the exposition from any and every direction, and that is the great combination operated by a single management, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., under the name of the Southern Railway.

One of its lines has its northern terminus at Washington, and over it is operated a fast through service in connection with the Pennsylvania Railroad from New York, through Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington Atlanta to all parts of the South and Southwest, including New Orleans and points in Florida, and which makes the run from New York to Atlanta in 24 hours. Not only so, but its connections in other directions enable it to give the same first-class service to passengers from the West and Northwest.

So important is this great railroad system to the success of the exposition and so hearty has been its interest in the undertaking and its co-operation with the managers of the exposition, that it has been accorded exceptional privileges and will be the only road having tracks in Piedmont Park, which will enable it to land passengers from any direction, without change of cars, either in the Park or in the Union depot in Atlanta, as they may prefer.

The Southern Railway has always manifested the most generous interest in every enterprise or effort to promote the welfare of the South, and will make a most interesting exhibit in a handsome building which it has erected in the fair grounds, consisting of specimens of the mineral and other products of the South and illustrative of the marvelous improvement in railroad construction, operation and architecture in this country.

ODD RITES OF FAKIRS.

The Curious Religious Ceremonies That Are Practiced In India.

The following interesting description of an Indian fakir is from a correspondent in Lahore: "Two days ago I returned from a short trip with a friend to the sacred city of Ketas, where I had been before. This time I saw several interesting fakirs. There were the ordinary bleary eyed, ash smeared fellows, one with long brown hair hanging about his shoulders. There was one flabby, looking man, with practically nothing on but ashes, who was lolling lazily under a tree looking more or less inebriate and content, his back propped up by the tree, his head on one side, contemplating with serene expression alternately his well rounded paunch and a brother fakir, who was performing his devotions very energetically a short distance off.

"This other was a very lean man and tall. When I first noticed him, he was seated in abstraction, Buddhawise, which is something like a tailor sits, only that the feet are brought out on to the opposite thighs, soles uppermost. He was apparently contemplating his fire tongs, which were stuck in the ground before him. Surrounding him were a number of little fires. After a time he took up his conch shell and blew a blast, resembling exactly the braying of a more than usually melancholy donkey. Then he rinsed his hands and the conch with water and stood up. He raised his hands outstretched above his head, and, placing the calf of his right leg across the thigh of his left, stood so, on one leg, in prayer for some time.

"He looked leaner than ever like this. His body was rubbed well with gray ash, and his rusty colored coarse hair was brought up in a bunch above his head and tied firmly with cord so that the ends stood up like a ragged brush, tipped slightly to one side. He reminded me of a Christy minstrel.

"When the one legged prayer was done, he dropped down again and took another turn at the conch and water. Then he rose, stepped outside the fiery circle and began to walk deliberately, with long strides, round and round it. Suddenly he threw himself down opposite one of the fires, and then raising himself slowly on hands and toes, lowered himself as slowly to the ground again two or three times, touching it alternately with his nose and topknot. He repeated this at every fire with slight variations, sometimes drawing his left knee right up under him, so that the leg folded like a two foot rule when he touched the ground with his topknot. This concluded the prayers, when he had another go at the conch and water, after which he wrapped himself in a shawl and went to bathe in the sacred tank, in which men, women and children all do the same.

"There are usually large quantities of fish here, but when I inquired why there were so few on this occasion I was told that so many people had bathed there during the festival a few days before that the fish had died—through the impurity of the water I suppose. Yet, as I stood, I saw a woman bathing in one place, a man in another, two children in a third, while a girl drew water for drinking purposes from it in a fourth!"—London Queen.

Men's Facial Characteristics.

Artists who draw funny pictures of public men or who make caricatures are happy when they can find some peculiar development of feature as a distinguishing mark. What a joy and treasure they found in Theodore Roosevelt! If the president of the police board did not have the big white front teeth, they would be lost. All that is needed in a comic picture of Roosevelt is a row of big teeth. Everybody recognizes it at once. Croker's strong point is his coal black beard, close cropped and stiff as wires. Hill's nose and little side patches of whiskers make up the man. The back of his neck stands for President Cleveland every time, and "Grand father's Hat," detected anywhere, is good for ex-President Harrison.

A perfect sphere on a big hulk of a body is taken for Tom Reed every time, and anything that resembles Napoleon is believed to be McKinley. No one could mistake Conkling's sharp nose, nor did any one ever go astray on the heavy puffs and wattles under the eyes of Mr. Blaine. No man has more features strongly marked than Chauncey Depew. He has a peculiar eye, a wonderful nose, a remarkable mouth, small and thin lipped, a terrible amount of jaw, the strongest of chins. It is impossible to miss him. Hair standing out every way for Sunday, as the expression goes, means anarchist. Smooth hair, plastered down to the scalp, means dude. Long lip means Irishman. Thick lip means negro. And so forth and so on.—New York Press.

The Worm Has "Caught On."

The early bird came back to his home with a sorrowful look in his beak and an empty feeling in his little stomach.

"What's the matter?" his better half asked.

"I got no worm. It is evident to me that the worm has tumbled to the fact that the early bird gathers the worm, etc."—Syracuse Post.

Is a newspaper circulation boom of ten cents for three months, or free if you cannot pay, journalism? Is any newspaper which sends out ten papers for every one legitimately paid for, a newspaper filling "long felt wants," or is it published for personal glory and aggrandizement?—Southport Leader.

The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, in session at Atlantic City, added another section to article 16, providing that no saloon keepers, bartenders or professional gamblers shall be eligible for membership in the order. There was a spirited debate, but it passed by 167 to 32, the requisite number being 135. This question has come up at every Grand Lodge session for several years past.

There was a time when business men could do without advertising, but it has gone to return no more. Those were the days of stage coaches and tallow candles. Now everything is done in a rush and the man who does not move in a hurry gets left. This is a reading age. People expect the newspaper to keep them informed upon everything. They want information in their homes before they buy. Hence the superiority of newspaper advertising over all other forms. Put this in your pipe and smoke it. The most successful merchants are the most persistent advertisers.

Some people are like preserves; they need lots of sugar to keep them from getting in a ferment.
