LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Every indication points to five million pounds for Greenville this year. The market has already sold nearly two million pounds.

It seems to be with characteristic pride that when some of our farmers bite at the bait offered by distant warehousemen, they return home and proceed immediately to blow the said market and the said warehousemen.

If every farmer were like the one who tries first one market and then another and offers the fact that he lives near some other market, to get the men with whom he is selling his tobacco to give him just a little bit better price than he does other people, what kind of a world would we have. Such men are pigmies, while they think they are really smart.

We are frequently asked about how tobacco is holding up, &c. At this particular time tobacco is selling remarkably well. When everything is taken into consideration, the prices that have been obtained for tobacco this season are most remarkable. From the 15th of August to the present time nearly every warehouse in Greenville has had just about all the business it could do. There have been up to date 1,700,000 pounds of tobacco sold in Greenville and for that there has been paid to the farmers between $175,

000 and $200,000. During the time that this tobacco was being sold, we have had the most unprecedented hot weather that our oldest people ever remember and almost on every sale from 75 to 150 people would gather around the buyers and warehousemen, and notwithstanding the beseeching appeals made by the warehousemen to them to stand off the sale, they would stand there just the same, people a great many times who never grow a stalk of tobacco nor had any interest in the sale. So under the circumstances, we think prices have been almost phenomenal this season. When it gets cooler we look for good tobacco to go higher.

When the bill to regulate warehouse charges was before the last legislature, among other arguments it was said that the farmers in eastern North Carolina were so anxious for the law that they would hold their tobacco until the law went into effect the first day of October before they began selling their tobacco. The bill passed both houses by an overwhelming majority, and goes into effect October 1st next, but let us see if the farmers held their tobacco to get the benefit of the new law. Up to the 20th of September of this year nearly three times as much tobacco was sold in the three leading eastern Carolina markets as ever before for the same time. It really looks as it were the other way exactly. The bill is a law and whether it will benefit or damage the farmer we shall not argue, we shall conform to it, however, but our experience in selling tobacco is, when farmers have good tobacco, they don't mind paying to have it sold, but when they have poor tobacco, selling it absolutely without charge does not give satisfaction.

All the latest Novelties in dress goods, such as French Boucle, Mohair Sicilian, Jacquart Beige, French Cheviot, Jacquart Camelhair, and others to numerous to mention at Lang's.

WE WON'T OFFEND

Your judgment by offering you something for nothing. Good Clothing is always worth a fair price. We spare no pains to give you the best at a small profit.

Things are Lively.

A number of entries were made by letter and telegraph Tuesday, for the Oct. 3rd races. There is now a full race for all the different classes and the lovers of the sport may expect to see some very fine trotting and running next week. At the track early in the morning and late in the evening can be seen the courses trimming for the conflict, with Court in session, tobacco market full every day, and the numbers who come to look at the trotting and running, there is much life and activity around town and the faces of our merchants show plainly that business is good.

Give them first sale or last sale, you find the Eastern Warehouse full every time.

Just Wait.

Try and endure the hot weather a little longer. There will be plenty of time to cool off in between November and April, and many times in the intervening months you will be wishing for it to be warmer.

Ready for Use.

Forbes & Moye's prize house is now nearly completed and they have commenced using it. The prizery is well equipped, having brick ordering and grading rooms besides three floors for hanging and storing tobacco. It is connected by platform with the Planters Warehouse.

GREENVILLE, N. C., Sept. 16, '95. To THE PUBLIC:—C. J. Rogers having gone off on a business trip for a week or ten days, all business connected with The German Electric Agency will be attended to by John Dobson. EVERY AFTERNOON (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

The silver convention is in session in Raleigh today. The intention of the originators of it was evidently good, but it is pretty generally agreed now that nothing may be expected from it. It will probably pass resolutions favoring the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 without the concurrence of any other nation. This has been the sentiment of the Democratic party in North Carolina for years, and it has been so expressed. Therefore there is nothing which the convention can do which has not already been done. Mr. Butler is reported as saying that he would be willing to fight under the name of Democracy to secure the free coinage of silver. In the same interview, however, he said he meant it as a joke, and then later on when the question was repeated to him and he was pressed for an answer he reiterated his willingness to discard names to secure ends. The Democratic party will do well though not to rely upon Mr. Butler. You certainly need expect no assistance from him. He is under obligation to the Republicans.

Col. A. B. Andrews has been promoted to the place of First Vice President in the great Southern Railroad system. Col. Andrews is one of the first railroad men of the South and deserves well this promotion.

The railroads have agreed to make the rate of fare to Raleigh during Fair week one cent a mile. This will aid very much in swelling the crowd which will attend the State Fair this year. The occasion promises to be one of pleasure and profit.

WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

The reports of correspondents of the Weekly Weather Crop Bulletin, issued by the North Carolina Weather Service, for the week ending Saturday, September 21, 1896, are very unfavorable. The first two days were cool, with a few scattered showers, but the last five days were characterized by extreme heat, unusual dryness, and excessive glaring sunshine. It has unquestionably been the most abnormal week on record for September. The maximum temperature varied from 90 in the mountain section to 100 in the east, and for five days the mean temperature averaged 15 degrees per day above normal. Serious drought prevails, the deficiency in precipitation since September 1st being over 2.50 inches. All growing crops are suffering; cotton is opening prematurely and fall plowing and seeding are impossible.

A decided fall in temperature will set in on Tuesday and the coming week will be much cooler, with light showers during the middle portion. Although the fall will be only to the normal, or slightly below, it will appear decided by contrast with the excessive heat of this week.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

The first two days of the week were cool, but the temperature rose during the following five days to a very unusual point for September. There was no rain during the week. Cotton is reported to have suffered from the dry, hot weather; it is opening very rapidly and prematurely; young bolls are falling off in some places. It was too hot and dry for all growing crops, such as turnips, potatoes, peas, etc. Rice is needing rain. The harvesting of rice is in progress, with fine yield. The weather has been very good for finishing fodder, pulling in the north and for cutting hay. Peas are being picked. New cotton coming into market.

The State Auditor's report shows that the banking capital in this State was $7,130,711 July 1st last, while on the same date in 1892 it was $5,582,000. There has been an even larger increase in the capital of manufacturing establishments.

A young gentleman in this city a few days ago sent to the laundry a pair of white pants, in the pocket of which was a roll of greenbacks, amounting in all to $50. A little while later discovering his mistake, he rushed to the laundry, told his story with great excitement, and was conducted to the steam machine, through which the pants undergoing rapid repairs. They were taken out, the pockets were searched, and the greenbacks looked more like a mass of turnip salad than they did like hard earned money. But they were gradually straightened out.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Eight hundred negro laborers have gone from South Carolina to New York to work on the new Jerome Park reservoir. Thus negroes are becoming the competitors of workmen in Northern cities.

Heavy Turkish Fire.

I must draw attention to that feature of the Turkish tactics which stamped the war of 1877 with a character of its own, a feature evident in all sections in which I took part in none more than in the one under discussion. I refer to the quick fire of the Turkish infantry, of such power, duration and effect as had never before been dreamed of. General Todleben wrote later, "Such a shower of lead as that with which the Turks hail our troops has never before been employed as a mode of warfare by any European army." It was more instinct, experience, silent consent and confidence in their weapons than training or formulated rules which induced the Turkish foot soldiers to adopt this mode of fighting. I had witnessed quick fire drill in Widdin, but I venture to say that it was not until after the first battle that the officers became really conscious of the terrific power of long sustained quick fire.

Our orders were briefly as follows: "As soon as you know or suppose the enemy to be within range of your rifles cover the space presumably occupied by him or presumably to be traversed by him with quick fire, independent of distance, duration, difficulty of aim, probability of hitting and consumption of cartridges." The awful effect upon the opponent of this rule, if carried out as literally and as much en amore as it was by the Turks, is apparent in the Russian losses, and in the fact that throughout the Plevna campaign the Russian attacks, with few and unimportant exceptions, collapsed, numerical superiority notwithstanding.—W. V. Herbert.

A Time for Gratitude.

There has been no time in the history of our country when there were stronger reasons for gratitude to God than now. The land is literally loaded with the bounties of a smiling providence, and the Christian people will surely miss an opportunity if they do not set apart some special day, other than the usual thanksgiving, for general praise. Such unprecedented favor as has been bestowed upon us demands public acknowledgment.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

Told in Two Lines.

Volumes have been written about "the new woman," the woman who wants to do everything man does and nothing that woman is best fitted for doing, but Punch has described her in two lines as follows:

"Unsexed, factitious, foolish, coarse, inhuman!
She's not the New, she's but the 'Novel' woman."

There she is to the life.—Atlanta Journal.

The world is full of strange inconsistencies. There was never so much talk of hard times in North Carolina and there were never so many visitors in the mountains of the State as there were during the past summer; there were never so many excursions nor excursions so largely patronized. The colleges and high schools have opened this fall with a larger attendance than ever before and school attendance is universally accounted one of the best barometers of the prosperity of the people. Some people have money—there is no mistake about that; and when a street fakir comes along with a patent medicine for sale, or a peddler with a pack on his back, or a range man, or a fellow selling a two-dollar clock for fifteen, there are those who cough up cash who would never be suspected of having a dollar in the world.—Statesville Landmark
