LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

During the next eight weeks the columns of the Tobacco Department will be open for the discussion of any matter pertaining to the tobacco interests of Greenville and surrounding country.

We especially invite the warehousemen of Greenville to lend us a helping hand in getting up tobacco news that will be of interest to the tobacco reading public. Let us all get together and see if we can't make the tobacco editions attractive, instructive and advantageous.

The Tobacco Board of Trade and the warehousemen got together the other evening and raised half the amount required to advertise and illustrate the tobacco market. As yet we have only asked a few merchants to contribute and without a single exception everyone has promised to aid us. Those that have not been called upon yet need not get uneasy, we shall see them all by and by.

Mr. J. Bryan Grimes, of Grimesland, came up Friday and sold about three thousand pounds of tobacco at the Eastern. Mr. Grimes says this was his first visit to the Greenville tobacco market this season and his first words to us when he drove up were "why you seem to have quite a little city up here." Mr. Grimes has frequently before sold tobacco on the Greenville market, but he like numbers of others that have not been around the tobacco warehouses lately was utterly astonished at the progress this part of the town has made in the last four years.

If the business men of Greenville will now go to work and take advantage of the opportunities in sight to make Greenville a manufacturing town it will not be the close of 1900 before we will have a city of more than five thousand people. Manufacturing interests

MISSED! YESTERDAY night from his home, where he has not been for twenty years, a small white boy, about the age of Chang the Chinaman giant, and as great a mystery as the comet. His name is Willie Green. He was hungry looking, knock-kneed, and straight as a bow; he was barefooted with his old man's arctics on; had on no clothing except an empty shaving mug, which he carried across his broken back; it contained two railroad tunnels and twenty bungholes. He had a low cut ulster shaved up the back; was cross eyed at the edge of his neck. His ears were chopped off even with his age. His chin was glued on to the hip pocket of his vest. He was a Republican in politics, but always voted the Democratic ticket. When last seen he was on his way here from Parmele shoving the clouds over the city to keep off the wet, with the intention of raising enough money to buy one of those lovely SUIT of CLOTHES and a PAIR of FINE SHOES at

of various kinds could under good business management be carried on most successfully here. A canning factory to work up the surplus fruits and vegetables that are grown here in abundance could be made to pay profitable dividends. Our cotton interests would justify a cotton factory. Our tobacco interest would warrant the successful operation of tobacco factories and raw material of various kinds is here in abundance and only needs the touch of business men to turn them into staple products.

The Texas Legislature just took four hours to settle the question of prize fighting in that State. So Corbett & Co., will have to try their skill elsewhere. The fight will now come off in Mexico, several cities are already bidding for it and the authorities assure them that there will be no interference.

Tom Watson is again defeated in the tenth Congressional district in Georgia. Last year when Mr. Black was elected Tom cried fraud! fraud! So Mr. Black resigned and proposed to Tom that they would try it over again. The election Wednesday was the quietest ever known in this district and Mr. Watson was beaten by a majority of 1642. Watson lost votes this time in nearly every county in the district and especially in his own county. Wonder what his cry will be next!

Tillman, it is said, is ruling with a high hand in South Carolina. He proposes that the Convention which is now in session shall change the law so that he and his party may be able to disfranchise any man who does not wish to vote for them. It is proposed to make both an educational and property qualification necessary to the right of suffrage, but beyond this it is proposed to go and give the registrar the right to say whether a man is disfranchised. This will be reform with a vim. The law is apparently aimed at the negro but if the clause giving absolute power to the registrars should become a law it can be used just as well to disfranchise the whites.

Twelve Sets of Twins.

Some years ago a storekeeper in Weedsport, N. Y., was astonished at a most singular sight in the street in front of the store. A large wagon drawn by a horse and an ox had halted there, and clustered about the vehicle were 24 children—all boys. In the wagon was the mother, and by the animal stood the father, who explained to the astonished storekeeper that they were on their way from Connecticut to Indiana, and were having a family moving.

"Is this your family?" asked the merchant.

"Yes," answered the man, "twenty four boys, twelve sets of twins, and we have no children dead. At night what can't get into the wagon, bunk under it on the ground. We are all here, stranger."

The merchant was so pleased at the sight that he formed the boys into line and presented each with a straw hat.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Talk of Putting Fourth-Class Postmasters Under Civil Service.

President Cleveland has in contemplation an order placing all the fourth-class post-offices under the protection of the civil service law. There were on July 1 of the present year 70,064 postmasters in the United States, of which number 66,560 were in the fourth-class list, and will be protected by the proposed extension of the civil service rules. The peculiar character of the service will make it necessary to devise special rules for the appointment of these postmasters, and the President, the officials of the Postoffice Department and the Civil Service Commissioners have had the matter under consideration for some time.

One peculiarity of the Hoosac tunnel, four and a half miles long near North Adams, Mass., is that no telegraphic message can be sent through it. They all get lost although the attempt has been frequently made and with all kinds of wires. Electricians are puzzled over it, as they have failed to discover mineral or any signs of mineral anywhere about.

THE ANSWER.

Meet me tonight where the pampas plumes
Wave over the bridge by the rushing stream,
And the scent of the honeysuckle blooms
Is adrift on the air in the moonlight's gleam.

Where the orange blossoms wait for the bride,
And the roses swoon by the lilacs white,
Where the palms are rustling the date beside,
And the lemons are gold in the silver light.

We will follow the path to the garden gate,
By the cypress wall where the pepper bends.
The eucalyptus will say, "It is late,
But love is coming to you, sweet friends."

And down the walk in the moonlight glow,
As it filters its arrowy glints to me,
We will talk of the love of the long ago,
By the murmuring waves of the sunset sea.

Meet me tonight and your heart shall thrill
In the rapturous calm with a tender spell.
You ask my soul for its answer still,
I will give it tonight if you meet me, Will.

The way has been long and I missed you so,
I need you so, as I hope and wait.
But will it be "yes" or will it be no "no?"
I will tell you tonight by the garden gate.

We will look at the rocks, at the sandy sweep,
How it glistens and moves at the waves' caress,
At the bridge of moonbeams over the deep,
Will I tell you "no," will I tell you "yes?"

Four eyes will shine as they bend to mine,
And your voice, as the waters, will plead with me,
But you never can know till I tell you so,
What the quivering cry of my soul will be,
Till together we stand by the sunset sea.

—Emma P. Seabury in Housekeeper.

Colorado Moose.

A curious physical formation which has separated animal life from the possible approach of man is one of the Flat Top mountains in Garfield county. This mountain stands up like a gigantic cube. On one side is perceptible the place where the connecting link with its broad and level summit was centuries ago. Marks of a hog back, which once ran out and down to the other mountains, can be plainly seen.
From vantage points some miles away fieldglasses will disclose on a clear day moving animals on the great mesa. Those who have been there pronounce them as beyond doubt species of the moose, bearing the flat, broad horns and having the shuffling actions of these animals, now unknown to the game seekers in this section of the United States.
The animals on the top of this mesa are extremely shy of hunters, and two or three schemes have been tried to capture them, but always failed.

Several parties of Indian hunters who make the Book plateau their hunting grounds have attempted to climb the rugged steep that leads to the top, and one Indian who succeeded in scaling it for 40 or 50 feet was killed by falling from his perch.
The Indians describe the animals as strongly resembling the moose, although of larger frame and antlers.
A party of scientific tourists who saw the animals from a distance with the aid of a glass could give no logical reason for the presence of the remarkable tenants between land and sky. A thin stream of water trickles down one side of the plateau and gives evidence that the animals have water as well as food. How they shelter themselves from the storms of winter, which in the White river country are unusually severe, or intense heat of the summer, to which their elevated home must expose them, one can only conjecture.

—Denver Field and Farm.

The Most Crowded Spot on Earth.

The most crowded spot on the earth's surface is that portion of the city of Valetta, island of Malta, known as the "Manderaggio." In the whole of Valetta the proportion is 75,000 human beings to the square mile, but in the Manderaggio there is one locality in which there are 2,574 persons living on a plot of ground less than two acres and a half in extent. This would give no less than 636,000 persons to the square mile, or 1,017.6 to the acre.
In Liverpool, the most crowded city in Britain, the most densely populated portions have only 116.4 to the acre.—St. Louis Republic.

A Ready Answer.

The editor of the Public Men of Today Series when a little boy at Uppingham was detected at a Greek Testament lesson with a Bible on his knee, from which, of course, he was cribbing. His class master stalked up to him. "What have you there, my boy?" The boy, seeing that no escape was possible, brazened it out with, "A book, sir, of which no one need be ashamed."

A good drink for persons troubled ing a pint of boiling water on two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar and adding sugar to suit the taste. If this agrees with the system, drink

The Story of a Rose.

Only a rose!
It lay between the faded pages of an old book.

A man, beholding it, looked down the distance and the dark, dreaming of the past years.

A woman paused, and bending over it pressed with quivering lips its crumbling petals.

Only a rose!
Then as the evening shadows gloomed over it a voice cried, startling the silence:

"Mamma, who's been in the parlor a-foolin with this book? They've gone and lost the place where I was readin at."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Only 50 Cents a Bale.

Agent J. J. Cherry, of the O. D. Steamship Company, has received instructions to make a still further reduction in the price of cotton over his line, and the rate is now only 50 cents a bale from Greenville to Norfolk. The rate heretofore has been $1.15 between the two points, and now our people can ship cotton for less than half what they have been paying. This is good news for the shippers and they will avail themselves of the low rates the Old Dominion line is giving them.

Off on a Hunt.

There was a jolly crowd that went down to Ayden, Friday night to engage in a big hunt. The party consisted of G. P. Fleming, Ola Forbes, R. Hyman, Earnest Forbes, Alf. Forbes, R. W. Crenshaw, R. M. Moye and Lit Maddux. They found it “a night most opportune to catch the possum and the coon,” and they brought back with them one possum and six coons. The boys say they never had a bigger time. The best fun of the trip was had at the expense of Lit Maddux. He was strutting along pretty lively in advance of the crowd when he suddenly dropped out of sight and raised a cry for help from down “in a hole.” The boys gathered around and found him floundering about in a 10 feet marl hole. Maddux was just “out of sight” and the only way they could locate him was by the light of his cigar which he never lost in the fall. He was fished out and though pretty wet continued the hunt.

Why Vermont is Not Democratic.

A young preacher, the pastor of the Congregational church at Hartford, Vermont, is about to loose his salary because he voted for Mr. Cleveland in 1892. He was not then living at Hartford, and only a few days ago the richest member of his church asked him if he voted for Cleveland, upon being answered in the affirmative, the rich member, a manufacturer, refused to pay anything toward his salary and induced his relatives to take the same position, saying that no Democrat is fit to be pastor of a church. This old Puritan carries his intolerance still further. His daughter was engaged to marry a professor in Dartmouth College but when he found that the professor was a Democrat the daughter was forced to break the engagement.

Is it any wonder that there has been no increase in the noble little band of Democrats in Vermont under such proscription? A young man could stand the loss of salary, but to lose his sweetheart for his political convictions is expecting rather to much of the youth even in that icy clime. —Raleigh News and Observer.
