Our line embraces Bion F. Reynolds fine makes for Men. Ziegler Bros. and E. P. Reed & Co.'s for Ladies and Children. Also a full line of cheap and medium SHOES at old prices although the manufacturers have made an advance of 25 per cent.

LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

On a good season now farmers can begin stripping out their tobacco.

Wilson tobaccoists say that nearly half of the tobacco crop has been marketed in that section. If that is the case then Greenville will lead Wilson this year by a good majority.

Tobacco is selling as well as we ever saw it at this season of the year. Good cutters, smokers and strips are remarkably high, while wrappers, well, we haven't had any yet and don't know how they would sell.

We were mistaken in our statement Friday that no warehouseman here had shipped tobacco to Wilson. We asked one member of each house not thinking it necessary to see them all. On Saturday one of the warehousemen said to us that he wanted us to say that after trying all the markets to see how they were, hearing so much of the high prices of Wilson he shipped three packages there just to see how it sold, and on the three packages he lost just even ninety three dollars. This evidence is on record and if anyone wants more light on the subject if he will apply to us we will cite him to the parties who did the shipping and selling.

Small Crowd for First Monday.

We heard Chairman Dawson, of the Board of County Commissioners, say Monday that there was the smallest crowd here he ever saw on a first Monday in October. There were very few people that had business before the Commissioners and not many were here.

It is rumored that Mr. B. R. Lacy, state commissioner of labor statistics, will resign his position on the first of next January. His term of office will not expire until 1897.

MISSED! YESTERDAY night from his home, where he has not been for twenty years, a small white boy, about the age of Chang the Chinaman giant, and as great a mystery as the comet. His name is Willie Green. He was hungry looking, knock-kneed, and straight as a bow; he was barefooted with his old man's arctics on; had on no clothing except an empty shaving mug, which he carried across his broken back; it contained two railroad tunnels and twenty bungholes. He had a low cut ulster shaved up the back; was cross-eyed at the edge of his neck. His ears were chopped off even with his age. His chin was glued on to the hip pocket of his vest. He was a Republican in politics, but always voted the Democratic ticket. When last seen he was on his way here from Parmele shoving the clouds over the city to keep off the wet, with the intention of raising enough money to buy one of those lovely SUIT of CLOTHES and a PAIR of FINE SHOES at

MARRIED.—At the residence of James A. Mayo, in Bethel, the bride's father, Wednesday Oct. 2nd, 1895, at 7 o'clock P. M., Robt. Jones, of Edgecombe, was married to Miss Mollie Mayo, D. C. Moore, Esq., officiating. A reception was held after the marriage.

DID YOU BUY YOUR HUSBAND

His last Suit of Clothes? Most ladies do buy their husband's Clothes. Its right that they should. A man don't know what looks well on him and besides he don't know a good piece of goods from a common piece. His wife does and its to his interest to let her buy his Clothes. He saves money by it and is more becomingly dressed. Speaking of Clothes I have a very nice line for Men I bought at a bankrupt sale which I will sell at a very low price—about one-half its real value. I have Suits from $2 up. Don't fail to see me before buying. I have also a nice line of Dress Goods and Notions that I am selling cheaper than any man in town. When in need of SHOES remember my stock is complete and will sell them cheap.

Beat the Blackmailer.

An attempt to blackmail a well-known Newark lawyer a short time ago was frustrated by his firmness and promptness of action, and punished in a novel way.

A fine looking and somewhat notorious woman, who keeps a saloon in an adjoining village, called at his office and demanded $500. He promptly refused to give her a cent, and she threatened to go and call upon his wife.

"Go along at once," he said, not believing that she would carry out her threat. But after thinking, after she had gone, that she might do so, he called up his home on the office telephone. He has two big, stout and faithful German girls employed as servants, and when one of them responded to the call he gave her a description of the adventuress and told her to be on the lookout for her.

"When she comes," he said, "you let her in and take her to the reception room. Don't cail my wife, but get Lena, and then both of you pitch in and give her a licking. Take broomsticks or anything else to her, and after you have pounded her throw her out. If my wife asks anything about it, tell her that it is by my orders. Give it to her good."

The two girls were eager for the fray when the visitor arrived half an hour later. They conducted her to the reception room, made sure that the description tallied and then waded into the woman. She is the heroine of many fights, with her husband and with other men, but the two German girls were too heavy for her. She made a stiff fight in the little room, but emerged in five minutes with both eyes nearly closed and with innumerable bruises on her arms and body.

How the lawyer explained the matter to his wife is entirely a private matter. The two girls could tell her nothing when she came down stairs and saw them throwing the visitor out, except that it was done "by order of the boss."—New York World.

Mercenary Excess Rebuked.

A little negro gamin passing along Bay street yesterday morning saw a stump of a cigar fall on the sidewalk in front of the store of Ellis & Hussey. He made a second-base slide for it, and when he had it safely corralled beneath him, he rolled his eyes around the points of the compass to see if another gamin had also seen the fall.

"Dat war in Cuba is making Havanasskace, an' you can't take no chances," he remarked, as he brushed off the ash and blew away the sand and dust from the coveted snipe. Going into the store, he said to Charley Ellis:

"Boss, gimme a match, please, sah."

"Matches, are not here to give away but to sell," said Mr. Ellis assuming a look of intense severity.

"Dey is, eh?"

"That's what they are."

"Well, how much is dey per box?"

"One cent."

The gamin tilted the stump in one corner of his mouth, held to the band of his pantaloons with one hand, ran the other hand in his pocket, and pulled forth a copper.

"Gimme a box," and he laid down the cent.

He got the box, struck a match, lit the stump so well that it poured forth volumes of smoke, and then handing the box back to Mr. Ellis, assumed a look of intense severity, and said:

"Put dat box on de sheff, and de nex' time a gemmen come in hyar and ax you fer a match you gin him one outen my box."—Florida Times Union.

TO A MISPRIZED MINSTREL.

Poets have sung the cricket's praise,
The virtuous ant her share is getting,
The dragon fly has lived in lays,
And bards with beetles are coquetting.
The butterflies their laureate claim, Watts makes of bees melodious minute,
The very moth is known to fame,
But the mosquito isn't in it.

Shy minstrel of the summer night, Despairing of a fancy finer,
Your unrecorded praise I write To your accompanying minor.
Companion of my darkest hour,
When bird and butterfly forsake me
And bees are housed in hive or flower, Eow cheerily you overtake me!

You sing as Patti never sang, Never a curtain call declining,
As soft as Philadelphia slang
And tender as a maid's repining;
You whisper to my ear apart,
Then hover o'er a hand inviting,
And when I'd clasp you to my heart
I find you on my nose alighting.

When, at the dying of the day,
I muse upon each hapless action,
You come to drive my care away
And give me liveliest distraction;
When unresponsive, dull and cold,
Upon my listless temper stealing,
Your gauzy wings you gently fold
And show me that I still have feeling.

I know that you are termed a bore,
But while my blood your veins is filling How can I clamor for your gore Or to attack my kin be willing?
With mine your birth may not be matched,
But I ignore your social station;
To me you are so much attached
I love you like a poor relation.

Let others sing the summer girl,
At once so artful and so artless,
But as I watch your dizzy whirl
I think you not one-half so heartless.
Come, then, and to my spirit speak,
Nor heed how callow cads may lash you!
Light boldly on my waiting cheek
And linger there until I mash you!
—Edward A. Church in Boston Budget.

The Poets and Thunder.

Byron, in the third canto of "Childe Harold," describes a thunderstorm in Switzerland which occurred at midnight on June 13, 1816.
He notices the awful stillness which precedes it:

All heaven and earth are still, though not in sleep,
But breathless,
until
From peak to peak, the rattling crags among, Leaps the live thunder! Not from one lone cloud,
But every mountain now hath found a tongue,
And Jura answers, through her misty shroud, Back to the joyous Alps, who call to her aloud!

The description is too long to quote, and, indeed, too well known, but Sir Walter Scott's criticism on it may not be so well known. He says:

"This is one of the most beautiful passages of the poem. The 'fierce and far delight' of a thunderstorm is here described in verse almost as vivid as its lightnings. The live thunder 'leaping among the rattling crags,' the voice of mountains, as if shouting to each other, the plashing of the big rain, the gleaming of the wide lake, lighted like a phosphoric sea, present a picture of sublime terror, yet of enjoyment, often attempted, but never so well, certainly never better, brought out in poetry."—Notes and Queries.

The fact that God has prohibited despair gives misfortune the right to hope all things and leaves hope free to dare all things.—Mme. Swetchine.

Rules of the Road.

It is the long established custom in this country that vehicles meeting on any street or highway shall turn to the right. Some suppose that this is only the unwritten law of the road, but as a matter of fact it is on the statute books. A special section defines that carriages, wagons, carts, sleighs, sleds, bicycles, tricycles and all other vehicles are included. A person driving is properly required to have the left wheels of his vehicle at the right of the center of the street. In a word, the statute is an authoritative adoption of Uncle David Gray's motto of "Fair play and half the road." While bicycles are included as enjoying this privilege and horsemen are required to extend to them the same courtesy they would another vehicle drawn by horses the same restriction is put upon wheelmen and wheelwomen. They, too, must turn to the right, and if they fail to do so and a collision occurs they have no one but themselves to hold legally accountable. A good natured observance of the law on the part of all concerned will result in absolute safety and freedom from accident.—Utica Press.

A Remarkable Man.

In the delivery department of a Sixth avenue dry goods store is a man with a remarkable memory.
He has charge of all the goods which are returned by the drivers because of mistakes in addresses.
He never forgets a name or address and often corrects mistakes in the records of the department. He knows the character and appearance of every block in the city and can describe any house upon hearing its number. He ascribes his remarkable knowledge of the city to the fact that he passed many years in driving a delivery wagon.—New York Sun.

An Ape's Superstition.

Chief Utan, the auburn haired orang outang at the zoo, is very superstitious, and his convictions with regard to straws are not limited to the mere fact that they tell how the wind blows. The chief believes that chewing a straw with certain supernatural qualities will bring his dinner hour around before 1 o'clock, the regular time, and he daily tries to put this theory into practice. From among the heaps of straw in his cage he selects with great care the longest and straightest, and after having placed it in his mouth he goes to the glass front of the cage and shading his eyes with his hand peers to the right and left in search of the keeper with his dinner. If the keeper is not in sight, the chief throws the straw away as not possessing sufficient "charm" and selects another. This performance is repeated over and over with the utmost gravity until the meal arrives.

Wheelmen Can Ride.

At their meeting Monday night the Town Council rescinded the ordinance relative to riding bicycles on the sidewalks of the town, and now permit wheelmen to ride anywhere except on the sidewalk of Evans street between the Court House and Five Points. This is in accordance with a petition presented to the Council some meetings ago. The wheelmen will appreciate this change, as the way the law has been lately it was almost a prohibition against the use of bicycles in town.

Street Car Projected.

Monday night application was made to the Town Council for the right of way for thirty years for a street car line to be operated between the wharf and the depot, to pass along Evans street. The Council deferred action on the application until the next regular meeting in order that the sentiment of the citizens of the town may be obtained in the matter. Now let the citizens take up the subject and discuss it fully, that the Councilmen may be enabled to act in accordance with the wishes of the people. The REFLECTOR columns are open to any one wishing to express his opinion in print. For our part, we believe a street car would be both convenient and advantageous to the people of the town.
