HON. LOUIS CHARLES LATHAM.

Passes Away at the Hospital of the University of Maryland in Baltimore.

Enviably Record in the Late War—A Fine Lawyer—Held Many Positions of Honor and Trust—A Man of Extensive Information—Greenville's Noted Citizen and Benefactor.

Hon. L. C. Latham came home from Plymouth about one month ago, and at once took his bed but his friends did not fear the worse. In a few weeks, however, his condition became puzzling to his physicians and alarming to his friends. After consultation by several noted physicians it was decided to take him to the Hospital in Baltimore, whence he was carried last Saturday morning. On Monday an operation was performed on him by Dr. Tiffany, the celebrated surgeon of Baltimore, for Illiac abscess. At once his condition became very critical, and telegrams received here caused his family and friends to fear the worse. But they were hardly prepared for the shock which came when a telegram was received by Col. Skinner yesterday about noon announcing that Major Latham was dead. A gloom was at once cast over the town as the news spread, and groups of sorrowing friends were gently talking of his apparently untimely end.

The subject of this brief sketch was not unknown to North Carolina, and especially the Eastern section. His career had been one filled with activity and service for his State and his people.

Major Latham was born in Plymouth, Washington county, N. C., in the year 1839, and was at the time of his death fifty-six years old. He graduated with honor at the University of North Carolina in the year 1859 with second distinction in a large and intelligent class. He attended Harvard University Law School 1859-1860 where he became admirably equipped for his long and eventful career as a lawyer. When the war began he was one of the first to enter into the service where he remained until the close. He was Major of the First N. C. Regiment in the Army of Northern Virginia from 1861-1865. His career as a soldier was, and has ever been, the pride of his friend. He was brave without a superior, and loved and respected by his men. The wounds he received show that he was always in the front ranks. He knew no personal fear in or out of war. In the year 1864 he married Miss Anna M. Norcom. He was a member of the N. C. General Assembly in the House from 1864-70, and in the Senate from the Second District in 1879-71. In both he ranked among the foremost members in intelligence, information, and activity. He was Mayor of Plymouth, N. C., in 1874-75.

Major Latham came to Greenville in 1875 where and when his career began with which we are most familiar and most concerned. He formed a law partnership with Judge Hilliard and

You will find that a dollar will buy more at my store than a dollar ever bought before. This a broad statement, but it is true. The only way to account for this lowness in prices is the fact that a little profit is all I expect. To simply say my line of dress goods are pretty is not doing them justice, they are more than pretty, dainty and sensible novelties that combine style and wear and satisfaction. My line CLOTHING and GENTS FURNISHINGS is in reach of every one. I have the nicest and cheapest ever brought to this town. Don't forget to me before buying.

at once was recognized as one of foremost lawyers at this bar. Later he associated with him Col. Harry Skinner and Mr. A. L. Blow, and still later he was alone with Col. Skinner under the firm name of Latham & Skinner, which still existed at the time of his death. This firm's reputation is not bounded by locality.

Many a man in Eastern Carolina will be grieved to hear that the senior member of this office is no more. Many a man in the clutches of the law will sigh for the presence of Major Latham. No man, who has ever practiced at this bar, will be more sorely missed in our courts than will be this prince of lawyers. A volume might be written about him as a lawyer but this much in this short and incomplete notice must suffice. He served as county attorney severally the counties of Washington, Tyrrell and Pitt.

Major Latham was elected to Congress from the First Congressional District in 1879 where and when he served one term. He was again elected to the same position in 1887 and served a second term. In both sessions he was a conspicuous member and his reelection shows his strength in his District. The Democratic party never had a more gallant standard bearer than in these two campaigns under the superb leadership of Major Latham.

He was also a Democratic elector from this district in 1876. During this year he married the beautiful and accomplished Miss Livy Montero whom he survived several years and by whom he leaves four children.

Since retiring from Congress in 1889 he has devoted his entire time to his profession.

Briefly, in rehearsal, Major Latham, as a soldier, was cool, calm, thoughtful, chivalrous, and faultlessly brave. As a representative in the Legislature and Congress, intelligent, well informed, active and laborious.

As a public servant, honest, courageous, and faithful.

As a citizen, loyal, public spirited, energetic and benevolent. Much of the prosperity of Greenville to day is due to the public spirit and liberality of the firm of Latham & Skinner.

As a lawyer, his chosen profession, he excelled. His information generally was second to no man of our acquaintance, but in law especially, it was full. In this he was learned, accurate, successful. In this he had few equals, no superiors. In the law, as a trier of a cause, and as a pleader all recognized his pre-eminence. As an advocate, he was logical, impressive and convincing. The entire town and county mourns the loss of its most noted citizen. To the sorely bereaved family and friends the sympathies of our entire people go as from one man. May the Great Comforter heal their wounds and be a father to the fatherless.

It Puzzled Him.

A girl who has been in Leipsic brings back a tale from the pension where she stopped. It is much frequented by English and Americans, and thither resorted a young German to learn English as she is spoke. He confided to my friend that he got along pretty well with the exception of one word. This word was used constantly, and from the context he judged it was a general term applied to food. He had looked up the word itself in the dictionary and had looked it up under the head of "food," but without success. He noticed it was used when the plates were passed for meat, fish, vegetables or what not. "When I asked what this strange word possibly could be," concluded my friend, "the young German said: 'S'more. Please give me s'more.'"—Chicago Post.

Fitness.

"Please, sir," whistled the boy with two front teeth missing, "Minnie Williams' mother says Minnie can't come to school 'cos she's got a stitch in her side."

"Who is Minnie Williams' mother?" the new schoolteacher asked.

"She's the seamstress."

The teacher turned reflectively to the blackboard. "How wonderful are the influences of heredity!" he muttered. — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE FITTING OF SHOES.
Sins of Foot Treatment Committed Through Vanity and Ignorance.

There is a threadbare joke afloat about the woman who wears a No. 3 shoe on a No. 5 foot—a feat that is impossible in exact ratio to the antiquity of the story.

There is a distinct limit to the squeezing capability of any shoe, no matter what may be the endurance of the wearer. But, on the authority of the most experienced shoe dealers, we find it true that the majority of feet are distorted and turned from their natural growth by the obstinate and misplaced vanity of the general shoe buyer. Very few persons get their shoes long enough. The great foot folly lies right here. The masses buy short, broad shoes, so that widths such as double C and double D, that ought never to be manufactured, are in much demand. When a woman tells the size of her foot, she likes to make use of a short number—nothing is said about the breadth.

The best authorities assure us that any one could have what sculptors call the perfect foot, a long, narrow one, if mothers would only begin, with the first shoes, to put their children in those that are a little longer than the foot, adding all the extra space necessary before the toes instead of at the sides, as they are for some unaccountable reason so prone to do. Thus, without injury, but rather to the advantage of the foot, a pleasing shape may early be secured at the expense of the present squat extremities.

The other day a woman, who had worn her shoes so short that her feet had bumped themselves up at the instep in the most unsightly protuberance, told a salesman who tried to persuade her to lessen the width and to increase the length of a new purchase that she was considered by her friends to have a "perfect Trilby foot." She added, with a toss of her head: "A longer size, indeed! Why, my foot was modeled on the other side!"

"For what, unless it were as a monstrosity?" thought another customer who overheard the remark.

The Chinese are not the only race who disfigure their useful extremities. They go systematically to work to accomplish their deformities, while our women do it by blindly ignoring the pedal space that nature has allotted them. The Mongolian feet are shortened by a long turning up of the toes, ours by cramping the members till the instep is slowly raised in self defense. A naturally high instep is a thing of beauty, but one that is elevated by force is nothing but grotesque.

And (but, of course, this is a secret) we find, if shoe dealers are to be trusted, that women are not alone in this vanity. They declare that men commit the same folly of broad and short, and, what is oddest of all, that country people are much more prone to it than city bred men and women.

Another word of warning may prove useful, as it seems not generally to be understood, that when one goes into a shop to try on shoes the feet are contracted from the exercise of walking and are in the best condition for making them feel easy and comfortable. Due allowance should be made, too, for the first morning hours, when, after a night's idleness, the feet are somewhat enlarged and quite likely to be aggressive in the matter of space.
