LOCAL NOTES AND TOBACCO JOTTINGS.

BY O. L. JOYNER.

Friday's break was quite a large one and prices for good tobacco were rather better than usual.

Rountree, Brown & Co., the leading warehouse firm of Greenville, N. C., under the management of Mr. Ed M. Pace is doing a big business.—National Tobacco and Grocer.

They say, said the prudent man, that a man who never drinks nor smokes nor stays up late at night always lives to a great age. Yes, replied his very blase friend, with a yoeman that is his punishment.—Washington Star.

The National Tobacco and Grocer published at Durham, N. C., is a bright clear and newsy trade journal. Two or three enterprises of this kind have been without success. Durham is well backed and it should encourage and support the Tobacco and Grocer.

Mr B. Earnest Parham who was married in Durham on Wednesday morning to Miss O. Jones, of that city, will reach Greenville with his bride on the 6 o'clock train this evening. For the past two years we have been thrown in close companionship with Mr. Parham and know him to be a young man of striking business qualifications and for the young couple in Greenville we predict a happy, prosperous future. Mr. Parham is a successful young tobaccoist of only a year in our town but in that time he has made many warm friends all of whom wish him a happy future.

We have frequently noticed a tendency on the part of some farmers to want to ship their tobacco away from the home market, a great many times when their judgment dictates a different course. A good many do this not because they think they will get more money for their product but a good many times they go just

RICHER AND HANDSOMER

Than any ever produced. My Clothes, Hats and Furnishings, I'm talking about. Look over the stock; it's complete now, and see if you don't agree with me. One of two things I always mean to do: To sell you better goods than you get elsewhere for the same price; to sell you the same goods lower than you get them.

FRANK WILSON,

to take the trip. On Friday a very good and quite an extensive farmer told the writer that while he thought he could get just as much money in Greenville for the tobacco as anywhere else on the whole, yet sometimes, said he, by taking a lot off I may get some fancy prices as an inducement to get me and others to continue patronizing the market. This may be done sometimes by some warehousmen with certain men, but take our word for what it is worth we have watched closely the shipped tobacco for the past three years and we are yet to hear the first man who is a regular patron of any house in Greenville say that he made money on the whole by shipping his tobacco. Now just one word here to those who are in the habit of shipping occasionally. Suppose every man were to treat his home market that way how long would we be giving an established home market for your products. And we want to say further that a tobacco market as most readers know is not built in a day. It takes time and perseverance to build up a good tobacco market and when a man firmly believes that he can get as much money at home as he can by shipping it is not much encouragement to those who have labored to get the market. Of course if a man thinks he can get more money for his stuff by shipping it then an entirely different question is presented. We don't ask any man to sell his tobacco in Greenville unless he is confident that our market is as good as any of them. The writer for one would not rest contented to report a warehouse and a market unless we had as good buyers as there were to be found and if we didn't have them why we would go to work and get them. Greenville has good a corps of buyers as there are in the State and we make this appeal to every farmer to give his home market a chance at his tobacco. If you don't like our warehouse carry it to another. We have four here as good as there are in the State and among us we know you can be satisfied. Lets all push for Greenville and make it the largest market in the State.

ATLANTA'S ATTRACTION.

The Great Exposition Increases in Interest.

And now for the Midway Heights. Of course nobody will go all the way to Atlanta and the Exposition without taking in the sights on midway, but in most of them the visitor also is "taken in." However, there is much to see and some instruction can be had by observing the customs of the people in the foreign villages. Midway is lined on both sides with buildings and before these are these are the "heelers," "criers," "rooters," or whatever else they might be styled, keeping up a clatter by banging on something to attract attention and calling to the passer by that theirs is the best thing on the grounds, the only great and big show. There are the Mexican village, the Streets of Cairo, the Japan village, China town, the Dahomey village, the German village (which is only a beer garden) the old plantation, the ostrich farm, the Moorish palace, the Congress of beauties, living pictures, the illusion, the mystic maze, the Brownies, the phoenix wheel, the scenic railway, the chute that costs a quarter to "shoot," and a dozen other things in the way of a merry-go-rounds, Gypsy tents and so on. To many of these the admission is 25 cents while some cost 15 and others 10. There is no limit (except the size of the purse) to what can be spent on midway—you simply pay your money and take your choice.

To go back to the Exposition grounds, there are numbers of cafes and concessionaries dotted about here and there between the buildings previously mentioned. There is also a woman's annex building in which cooking schools and model schools are taught. The grounds outside the buildings are beautiful. They are laid out in magnificent plats and broad walkways dotted all over with fountains, statuary and and electric lights. The scene at night with the hundreds of thousands of electric lights and colored illuminations is simply indescribable.

Another feature at night twice a week is Pains company of spectacular performers followed by a sham battle and brilliant display of fireworks.

All the attraction in Atlanta is not within the Exposition grounds, the city itself with its parks, beautiful residences, splendid State capital, large and varied business enterprises being full of interest.

Upon the whole Atlanta is giving a great show and the advice the REFLECTOR gives is for all who can do so to attend the Exposition, see the pride of Atlanta and the credit of the Southern States.

A Remarkable Escape.

Wednesday night of last week Miss Mary Burnett, of Charleston, S. C., who was a passenger on the South bound fast train of the Atlantic Coast Line jumped through the window adjoining her berth, while the train was speeding along at a rate of over sixty miles an hour, and, strange to relate, her injuries are not such as to cause serious results.

Miss Burnett was visiting relatives near New York city, and owing to mental troubles it was deemed advisable to send her home, and as a precaution a gentleman accompanied her.

Her absence from the sleeper was discovered soon after her jump from the rapidly moving train, near Stoney Creek, and a searching party was sent back to look for her. She was soon found and was brought to this place on the Atlanta Special, and placed in charge of Dr. I. E. Green.

The doctor found that Miss Burnett had sustained severe bruises about the head, but no fracture of the skull or internal injuries resulted from her rash act. She was given the proper attention and was rendered as comfortable as possible. Thursday night she was sent home on the fast train.

Another remarkable thing about the miraculous escape is that the shock completely restored the young lady to her right mind.

For some time her mental troubles had given her relatives and friends serious alarm, and her restoration is regarded as a miracle.—Weldon News.

The Sleep Question.

I'm not a scientist, but I don't believe any particular time was made for sleep. Man at first slept at night because he had no artificial light by which to work. Of course the habit of the race for centuries counts for something, but I don't know any habit that is more easily overcome than that of sleeping nights and working days. It is just as easy to follow the opposite course. Night workers, as a class, are healthy and long lived. When the night worker gets through his stint, there is no one for him to play with. The other half of the world is about to take its shift at the treadmill. Therefore he goes to bed instead of dissipating or recreating, which generally amounts to the same thing. Hence night workers get more and more regular sleep than the day force.

In general, however, I think that mankind sleeps too much. There is a great deal in the theory of Checkley, the latest authority on hygiene, that the man who wants to live long and happily must shake off the bondage implied in having regular hours for sleeping and eating. Eat when you are hungry is the best rule, and sleep when you are sleepy, provided your employment will permit. Every advance in civilization has been gained by discovering some way to contravene a so called law of nature.—Buffalo Express.

Talking Dogs.

There are but two recorded instances of dogs having been taught to articulate words in such a manner that they would resemble those uttered by a human being. The most famous of these cases was that of the celebrated "talking dog of Zeitz." The owner of this intelligent canine, a small boy living in Zeitz, Saxony, imagined that his dog's voice strongly resembled certain words and sounds made by men. Acting on this hint he soon trained the animal, a big Saxon mastiff, to distinctly utter some twenty odd German words and about a half dozen from the French language. Although the young trainer devoted much time and patience to this queer task, he never succeeded in enlarging his pet's vocabulary above 30 words.

A rival to the famous "talking dog of Zeitz" was exhibited in Holland in 1718. Besides pronouncing several words the Holland beast could articulate the names of all the letters of the alphabet except l, m and n.—St. Louis Republic.

One of the most remarkable developments of the automatic machine is a "Dr. Cureall," in Holland. It is a wooden figure of a man, with compartments all over it, labeled with the names of various ailments. If you have a pain, find its corresponding location on the figure, drop a coin into the slot, and the proper pill or powder will come out.

You will find that a dollar will buy more at my store than a dollar ever bought before. This is a broad statement, but it is true. The only way to account for this lowness in prices is the fact that a little profit is all I expect. To simply say my line of dress goods are pretty is not doing them justice, they are more than pretty, dainty and sensible novelties that combine style and wear and satisfaction. My line CLOTHING and GENTS FURNISHINGS is in reach of every one. I have the nicest and cheapest ever brought to this town. Don't forget to see me before buying.
