NARROW ESCAPES.

Cases Where Death Has Been Averted by the Merest Chance.

Sometimes a mere tap will kill a man, and sometimes a man may be bruised and mutilated almost beyond recognition and life.

Instances frequently come to the notice of the police of some man who has fallen from a scaffolding high upon a new building. His friends rush to pick up his mangled corpse and find him quietly brushing his clothes and wondering what has happened.

One day last week a man was crossing Clark street near the bridge. As he reached the middle of the car tracks a rapidly driven horse almost ran him down. He struck at the animal's nose with his fist, and in doing so was thrown heavily to the pavement. He rolled in such a way that his head went between the front and rear wheels of a broad tired wagon, drawn by a heavy span of horses and loaded with produce.

Half a hundred men shouted a warning, and a woman on the sidewalk shrieked with horror. But before the fallen man could turn the heavy hind wheel of the wagon passed directly over his neck and the lower part of his face.

By this time the driver had discovered that something was wrong, and he reined his horses to their haunches. The wheels crushed backward over the man's neck for a second time, but before the front wheel reached him half a dozen men were dragging him away.

Just as they all had made up their minds that the man was dead he jumped up and ran to the sidewalk in the direction in which he was going when he fell. Policeman Washier, who stands at the crossing, asked if he should call an ambulance.

"Oh, no," said the man quickly, "my ear is not much injured, and I'll go home on the street cars."

Another case of "luck" or "fate" or whatever it may be called recently came to the notice of the officers at the Chicago Avenue police station.

One afternoon a tall, heavily built negro came hurrying up the street with his hand closely clasped over his chin. He ran into the station shivering with fright.

"Ah'm shot dead," he said to the sergeant.

Then he took away his hand and showed an ugly gash across his chin.

"Oh, you're not dead," said the sergeant.

"Yes, ah am—ah'm done shot through."

A hasty examination showed that

One of two things I always mean to do: To sell you better goods than you get elsewhere for the same price; to sell you the same goods lower than you get them.

a .38 caliber bullet was lodged beneath the skin just under the edge of the negro's chin.

It was easily slit out.

Upon investigation it was found that the bullet had been fired from a revolver in the hands of a man who had not stood more than ten feet away from the negro, and that the man, certain he had committed murder, had escaped.

But the ball struck the point of the chin, and the bone was so hard that it could not pierce its way through, although it was flattened by the impact.—Chicago Record.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 26th.

President Cleveland found on his return from Atlanta that although the season for the propagation of Cabinet resignations was a little late in opening it had been working overtime to catch up. He learned for the first time that a disagreement existed between himself and Secretary Olney of such a serious nature that the latter was going to retire from the cabinet, and that it was on account of that disagreement that Mr. Olney did not accompany him to Atlanta. This might have been very disagreeable to him if he had not known that it was because he was going to Atlanta a little later on.

It is, of course, known that President Cleveland is and will be a very busy man until after his message to Congress is completed, but there is one thing that all the democrats hereabouts would like him to take time enough to do. That is to dismiss the negro, Taylor, who is Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia. Taylor claims to have been a democrat before he came to Washington, but his rascalities have been much more marked than his democracy since he secured one of the best local positions in Washington.

Mr. Whichard says that he found no cigar at the Atlanta Exposition that could equal the Southern Leader, at D. S. Smith's.

The case wherein the Fusion Directors are suing for the possession of the Penitentiary is now being tried in Raleigh. One day has already been consumed by arguments on the legal points involved and there will doubtless be lots of cross firing before the case is concluded. Plaintiffs were allowed to amend their complaint by paying up all cost to date. Judge Coble is the judge presiding, and very able counsel represent both sides.

Col. J. S. Carr, who for the past two years has been the efficient President of the Board of Agriculture and in consequence of the State Fair, declined a reelection. His business engagements were such that he could not afford to make the sacrifice of time which it required to perform the duties of the office. Col. Carr has certainly done much during his term of office for the State Fairs. Had it not been for his personal efforts and contributions during the past two years we would not have had any fairs. Everybody will regret that he could not longer serve as the president. The Board elected as his successor Col. Cameron, of Durham. He will doubtless make as worthy and successful successor of Col. Carr as could have been gotten. He is a large farmer, an active and energetic man, and besides he is from Durham. This means much toward the success of the fair. This town always stands by its citizens in their efforts anywhere.

A Kentucky man wants a divorce from his wife because he supposed when he was marrying her that she was about fifteen years old and has since discovered that she is forty.

He Got It.

A graphic incident in the life of a spoiled child is well told by a writer in an exchange:

Among the passengers on the St. Louis train recently was a woman accompanied by a nurse girl and a boy about three years old.

The boy aroused the indignation of the passengers by his continued shrieks and kicks, and screams, and viciousness toward the patient nurse.

Whenever the nurse manifested any sharpness the mother chided her sharply.

Finally the mother composed herself for a nap, and about the time the boy had slapped the nurse for the fiftieth time a wasp came sailing and flew on the window of the nurse's seat. The boy at once tried to catch it.

The nurse caught his hand and said coaxingly, "Harry mustn't touch. Bug will bite Harry."

Harry screamed savagely and began to kick and pound the nurse.

The mother, without opening her eyes or lifting her head, cried out sharply:

"Why will you tease that child so Mary? Let him have what he wants at once."

"But ma'am it's a—"

"Let him have it, I say."

Thus encouraged, Harry clutched at the wasp and caught it. The yell that followed brought tears of joy to the passengers.

The mother awoke again.

"Mary," she cried, "let him have it!"

Mary turned in her seat and said demurely, "He's got it, ma'am!"

The Free Will Baptist church at Jackson, Mich., has inaugurated a new development of our modern Christianity. They have got tired of paying a preacher for doing what they can do just as well, or better, themselves, so a dozen of the foremost men in the congregation have agreed to take the pulpit a week about in rotation and dispense with the parson.

The Monroe Enquirer tells of a Union county man who concluded that he would cut off the tails of two fattening pigs, as he had heard that it took as much corn to fatten a joint of the tail as it did to fatten a joint of the backbone. The operation was performed, and as a result one of the pigs bled to death and the other one had a close call.

SHE WAS A HEROINE.

A Little Girl Who Dreaded Tears, but Was Not Afraid of Work.

The following pathetic story of how a brave little girl kept the wolf from her father's door for a brief space last winter was told to a reporter by the proprietor of a large store on Fulton street. The child had been engaged to help at the holiday rush. Of course she understood that when the busy season was over she would not be needed. She did her work well and was so prompt and obliging that she made many friends during her brief stay. But when the busy season was over she, with the other extras, was dismissed. A few days later she went to the store and sought out one of the firm to whom she said: "I wish you would let me come back here and work. If you only will let me, I will come every day. I will never be late, and I won't expect you to pay me anything at all for what I do. Please let me come, won't you?"

Greatly moved by the child's earnest appeal, the proprietor began to question her.

"Why are you so anxious to come back and work hard all day for nothing?"

His question brought forth the following confession:

"You see," said the child, "my papa hasn't got any work. Every morning he goes out to look for work. And when he comes home at night and he hasn't got any work mamma cries, and then that most always makes papa cry, too, and when I see them both crying, I get crying too. If you will let me come here and work, I shan't be home when papa comes in, so I won't have to see them cry, besides, besides"

"Well, what is it?"

"You see, when I worked here I saw lots of salesladies that brought too much lunch double up what they did not want and throw it away. Then I, quick as a little mouse, gathered all these up and put them together, and without anybody seeing it put them in my lunch basket, so when I got home at night papa and mamma had something for their supper. So if you'll let me I would like to come back here and work for you, and I won't charge you anything."

"I turned away from the child lest she should see me cry, too," said the kind hearted man who related the story, "but I told her that she might go to work that morning. I investigated the case and learned that what she said was only part of the story of uncomplaining suffering. Her father has a place now where he is earning $15 a week."

"And the child?"

"Oh, yes, she is around here on the floor somewhere, but I guess I won't show her to you. If I were to do so, the first thing I know I should see one of the artists attached to your paper making a sketch or taking a snap shot of her. She is a good little daughter. Her goodness has had its reward. Let us not spoil her sweet modesty by giving her a taste of notoriety."—Brooklyn Eagle.

RESOLUTIONS.

Adopted by the Plymouth Bar.

At a meeting of the Bar of Plymouth and visiting lawyers in attendance upon the Superior Court then in session, on Wednesday night, 23rd, inst., resolutions in honor of the late Maj. L. C. Latham were unanimously adopted. Hon. J. E. Moore, of Wilhamston, presided over the meeting and eulogistic speeches were made by himself, W. D. Pruden, S. B. Spruill and T. S. Armstead. The resolutions were prefaced by a sketch of the life and public services of Maj. Latham, but as very much the same ground was covered in this as in the article that appeared in the REFLECTOR the day after his death, we only publish the resolutions, which were as follows:

Resolved, That in the death of Louis C. Latham the State has lost one of its noblest sons, in that in every conjuncture he was true to her honor, zealous of her welfare and faithful to the end in all things that concerned her fame and prosperity; the Bar one of its brightest intellects, and the people of Eastern North Carolina a leader whom they could always trust.

Resolved, That we tender our earnest sympathy to his stricken family who, above all, are most keenly and directly afflicted.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to The Ronoke Beacon, the Greenville REFLECTOR and the Raleigh News & Observer, with the request that they publish the same, and be submitted to Washington county Superior Court now in session to be entered upon its minutes.

Beautiful Sermon.

Rev. C. M. Billings preached two of the best sermons Sunday that he has delivered during his pastorate here. The one Sunday morning was especially beautiful. His subject was "Music," which he treated under the sub-divisions: Music is Nature's art; it is a Bible doctrine; being both of these it is God's power; the earth is not the home of music but its home is in Heaven; music does not die with us, but lives after us here and with us in Heaven. All of these headings were well discussed, many beautiful thoughts being given his hearers, and all present were delighted with it.
