Moye-Quinerly.
At the King House this morning at 7:45 o'clock, Superior Court Clerk E. A. Moye and Mrs. Delphia A. Quinerly, daughter of Register of Deeds and Mrs. W. M. King, were married by Rev. M. T. Moye, of Wilson. The bride and groom took the morning train for Atlanta to spend a week at the Exposition. Their host of friends join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Almost an Octogenarian.
On Monday our townsman, Mr. B. H. Sugg, celebrated his 76th anniversary at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Maj. Harding. All his living children were with him—Mrs. Harding, B. F. Sugg, Col. I. A. Sugg and Jesse L. Sugg. Mr. Sugg is the only surviving member of a family of twelve children. He was the eleventh child, was born in the eleventh month and on the eleventh day of the month. He is still well preserved for a man of his age.

Hardly Fair.
The Atlantic Coast Line is not doing exactly fair by the people of this section in regard to rates to the Atlanta Exposition. The Seaboard Air Line reduced the rate from Weldon, Raleigh and other points in this State to $5 for the round trip to Atlanta. To meet this we are told the Coast Line is also selling tickets from Weldon, Rocky Mount, and competing points at $5, while from Greenville they are charging $12.40, the price first established for Exposition tickets. We feel sure that the Coast Line authorities will see the justness of giving the people of this section proportional low rates with other points, and expect they will make a comparative reduction on the rate from Greenville.

Mr. Schultz, what new goods have you? Carrs. New York and Mountain Roll Butter, Buckwheat prepared P. R. Molasses, Oat Flakes, Dried Apples, California Prunes and Raisins cleaned Currents, etc.

What the Judge said to Rain-in-the-Face and his Lords.

And in those days came one called Rain-in-the-face, a mighty chief of the tribe of Fusion, and he was athirst and hungered for office, and when he found it not in the land of the Democrats he sought pastures new, and wandered away into the land of the Philistines, joining the tribe of the Mixed Breeds. And lo! he became a great man among them, and was accounted a leader in Philistia. And when the Mixed Breeds waxed strong in numbers and conquered the neighboring tribes, they began to divide the spoils they found in the land of office, giving to some one slice of pie, and to others, another. And Rain-in-the-face they made Chief of the Prison House, and made him lord over the stockade in the city called Raleigh, and of the lands along the Nile, in the province of Weldon, and he was also ruler over the diggers of phosphate at Castle Hayne. But the tribe of Democrats held the Prison House, and refused to give up the keys thereof. Rain-in-the-face and his eight assistant lords went to the Prison House, and sat down in front of the gates. And the rains poured and the floods descended upon them, and they got very damp. And, though they showed their parchments with the Great Red Seal stuck on the corner thereof, those inside the gate heeded not their cries and moanings. So when they have received their rewards, where the chicken is commonly reported to have got the axe, they returned into the city. And they gather together the scribes and brethren, and after conferring one with another, said: "We will bring these children of Leazarites to justice, that we, the Only Unadulterated Mixed Breeds, may come into possession of our Slice of the Pie."

And when the day of judgment is come, Scribes Day, MacRae and Whitaker stand up in the court called Superior for the Mixed Breeds, and against them stand Scribes Shepherd and Busbee for the tribe of Democrats. And the scribes argued long, and brought in many parchments. And the judge heard all that the scribes said.

And he pondered long over the lay-out, and meditated. And he looked into the volumes of the Law, for he was learned in its mysteries.

And after he had made up his mind, he summoned the scribes to appear before him. This was in the eighth day of the month called November, in the year of Fusion, one.

When all the scribes stood before him, he said unto them: "Wherefore did these Mixed Breeds, who were a hungered for office, demand the keys of the Prison House?" (or words to that effect) "For they are not the lawful holders of the keys of the Prison House. But I say unto the tribe of Leazarites, hold fast the keys, for the Law saith that thou art the rightful holders. And I say unto Rain in the Face and his lords, go hence, for ye cannot enter the ranch you thought you had corraled."

And when the scribes told Rain in the Face and his lords what the Judge had said, they straight way girded up their loins, and said to one another, "We will make one more dive for the Pie. For there is a court called Supreme that sitteth in a large brick building on the street Edenton, and we will appeal unto the men who sit in judgment there."

And straightway the scribes of the Mixed Breeds began to write another parchment.

But the tribe of the Leazarites still sat in their tents.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Heaven Might be a Lonely Place.

A little boy, when questioned by his mother regarding some escapade, had not told the strict truth regarding the affair. She had taken him on her knee and was explaining to him that people who told lies could not go to heaven.

"Mama," said he, "did you ever tell a lie?"

"Well, my son, I don't know but possibly at some time in my life I may have told some things that were not quite as they should have been."

"Did papa ever tell a lie?" again questioned the boy.

"I am afraid he has," replied his mother.

"Did Aunt Fannie ever tell a lie?" persisted the boy. His mother concluded it was about time to choke her son off before he had involved all the relations on both sides of the family, so she said, "My boy, I am afraid there is hardly any person in the world but who has at some period of his life made some statements that would not be called the truth."

The boy pondered over this for a few moments.

"Mamma," he said, "it must be dreadful lonesome in heaven—no body there but God and George Washington!"—Chicago Times-Herald.

Watermelons in Town.

Although today is the 9th of November and the average man is not thinking of such things, watermelons were offered for sale in Salisbury this morning—and they sold, too. The melons were brought in by Mr. S. C. Ketchie and some of them were fine. Mr. Ketchie says he cut five, averaging 25 pounds each, last Christmas, which were as good as any one would want to see, and that he is saving some more at home to be eaten next Christmas.—Salisbury Herald.

In the Exposition grounds at Atlanta is a kind of nursery where small children and babies may be checked like baggage and properly cared for while their mothers see the sights. A Gastonia lady just returned says there are two babies in the nursery that haven't been called for. No trace of their owners can be found, nor can any of the nursery people remember any clue on which to base a search. The unwilling mothers appear to have adopted a pretty effective way of getting rid of their undesirable luggage, says the Gastonia Gazette.
