Some of Those Who Have Carried Their Part of the Burden in Pushing Greenville Forward.

J. W. MORGAN.

The American Tobacco Co.'s representative on the Greenville tobacco market, is a Virginian by birth. He partly grew up on a farm near the city of Lynchburg but at an early age his father moved to Asheville, N. C., and became engaged in the warehouse business at that place. In this new field of work young Morgan became attached to the tobacco business and was subsequently employed by one of the large leaf dealers on that market. From Asheville he went to Greenville Tenn., and for some time bought tobacco on the Greenville, Tenn., market. In 1890 when the American Tobacco Co. was formed they having knowledge of his promptness in attending to business, offered him a position as buyer for them and when the Tarboro market was opened in 1891 Mr. Morgan was sent to that point to represent the American Tobacco Co. During 1891 and '92 Mr. Morgan remained in Tarboro. When the second year of the Tarboro market had closed it was thought best by the projectors of the market there to close it temporarily, so in August, 1893, Mr. Morgan moved from Tarboro to Greenville, and has been actively engaged here since that time.

The first impression that one would get of Mr. Morgan after he came to Greenville was that he was a rather retiring and unpretentious gentleman and such he has proven himself to be to all who have had dealings with him since he came here. As a business man Mr. Morgan insists on doing the bang-up thing, to use a slang expression, in other words he is purely business. He is a very secretive man in all his transactions and very few people are apt to learn much about his business by listening at what he has to say about it. Frank, concise and to the point in all things, he is a business man in the broadest sense of its application. When Mr. Morgan first came to Greenville he seemed to realize that he had found a much better prospect to build up a market than he had expected for from the very beginning he has used his personal efforts in helping to make Greenville a tobacco market. On one occasion, as was stated some time ago, we knew him to sign with others and became personally responsible for the rent of a prize house in order to get it built, when he had no personal interest in the matter beyond that of securing the prize house for the market. Since Mr. Morgan has been in Greenville he has mingled a good deal with the farmers in the surrounding country and he has many friends among them. On the warehouse floors we have repeatedly noticed that he is a very close observer of every pile of tobacco that is sold, and all during the heavy breaks that we have had this year, although he is not a very robust man, yet no one not even the ware-housemen have stuck any closer to the sale than he. We have never seen any buyer anywhere follow the sale more closely from beginning to end than he, and when tobacco was being sold that he did not want he could always be found in close proximity to the auctioneer so when his line of tobacco was struck he could easily be at hand.

As a guardian of his Co's interests we don't believe they have in their employ anyone who looks more closely after every detail than he. Mr. Morgan has impressed the people of Greenville very much since he first came among them. He is a young man of pleasing address, courteous and genial and all with whom he has come in contact in a social or business way will join with the writer in pronouncing him a high toned, clever Christian gentleman.

IN HONOR OF THE FLAG.

A Bloody and Brutal Scrimmage Between British and American Boys.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—The glorious Stars and Stripes caused a mimic war here to-day, but, as on former occasions, those who flaunted the starry emblem came out the winners.

The early days of the present century were renewed at the Ontario Veterinary College, when a number of American students, headed by a New York boy, named Shaw, produced an American flag and hoisted it in the main assembly hall just after Dr. Smith had finished his lecture. The flag was raised in honor of Thanksgiving day. No sooner was the emblem hung than a tall Canadian, named Lindsay, seized it, tore it from its fastenings and threw it to the floor. In a second Shaw sprung at him and with a well-directed blow stretched him on the floor. Lindsay was up in a jiffy and he and Shaw clinched. The American was thrown against a desk and had his face badly cut. Then the boys took sides and a hot American and British battle ensued. For twenty minutes a bloody and brutal scrimmage raged, one of the most exciting features being around the blackboard, where a couple of American boys were trying to mark out a flag with chalk.

Here W. W. Richards, a big Californian, who claimed Jim Corbett as a pugilistic mentor, and Ben Agnew, a burly fellow from Huron county, Ontario, championed their respective nations, and fought for the cause, while a few of the smaller fellows looked on. When it was seen that the Californian was being worsted, America came to his rescue and the fight grew general again. The boys fought in pairs and in squads all over the lecture-room and blood flowed freely. Faces were badly gashed and eyes were blackened. School friendships were forgotten in the hot-blooded boying patriotic row and classmates pounded each other vigorously for the honor of the flags under which they live. The college authorities finally quelled the riot, but only with considerable difficulty for fully 150 boys and young men were engaged, about eighty of them being Americans.

Dr. Smith, with the assistance of the faculty and a number of the older students finally succeeded in quieting the disturbance and when the contestants had washed off the blood the day's lectures were resumed. An effort to keep the affair a secret and belittle it as much as possible is now being made by the faculty, but it is more than probable that severe steps will be taken with the leaders.

There's a Foretaste

Of Winter in the air these days that makes brisk trading. Never before were we so well prepared for the fall and winter trade as now. See us for anything in CLOTHING from the everyday business Suit to the most expensive Suit. LANG'S.

Does This Strike You.

An editor who has evidently felt some portion of the process gives the following instructions for killing a newspaper: Just let your subscription go. It's only a dollar or two—the publisher don't need it. If he asks you for it get just as mad as you can and tell him to stop the paper—you never read it anyhow. Then go and borrow your neighbor's. When the reporter comes for news always be busy. Make him feel as if he were intruding. When the advertising and job man comes tell him you don't need to advertise—everybody knows you; that you will try and get along without any printed stationery—it's too expensive; that business is slack and you must economize. Never drop in to see the editor unless you want a free complimentary notice or a lengthy obituary for a beloved relative. Never recommend a paper to anybody. When you speak of it always say, "Yes, we have little sheet, but it don't amount to much." Keep this up a year or two and you will have a dead newspaper, a dead set of merchants and a dead town.—Lexington Dispatch.

RIGHT MAN THERE.

The Position Was Never Better Filled.

One of the duties to be performed by the Board of County Commissioners at their meeting Monday is the election of a Superintendent of the Home of the Aged and Infirm. A lady who in company with others makes occasional visits to the Home on missions of charity, called at the REFLECTOR office, Friday evening, to say that since her acquaintance with the place she has never known the Home to be kept better than under the management of Superintendent J. W. Smith. The inmates all speak enthusiastically of his kindness and care of them, and earnestly hope for his re-election. Mr. Smith is a kind hearted Christian and an excellent man, and there is hardly a doubt that the Commissioners will continue him in office.

As the Lonsburg Times aptly remarks, it is better to spend a little money for printers' ink now than to sell a lot of shop worn goods below cost later on.

A LARGER PAPER.

Today THE DAILY REFLECTOR greets its readers in enlarged form—twice as large as formerly—and wearing a new dress of type. This is the second time the paper has enlarged—doubling its size each time—since it was started a little less than a year ago.

To look at the paper it hardly shows a sufficient advertising patronage to justify its being made so large, but the REFLECTOR desires to be in the lead, and not a follower, of the progressive spirit that is taking possession of the community. When THE DAILY REFLECTOR first started it was only a venture. The people of the town came to its support and by their aid the experiment resulted in a success. On the first of April the little paper was bold enough to double its size, believing that the people would continue to stand by it and help in its efforts to advance Greenville. In this expectation it was not disappointed. And now, with a faith in Greenville and her business men stronger than ever, it has decided to make another venture and enlarge to the size that is before you today.

As we have said before in these columns, the REFLECTOR is what the people make it. Its success is in your hands. While we have labored hard night and day, and tried to do our work faithfully, all this could have availed nothing without your patronage and support.

To make the improvement shown in THE DAILY REFLECTOR today has been expensive as well as placing more work upon our own shoulders, but we believe the people will see that we can now do better work for Greenville than ever before and will give the enterprise their encouragement.

The Florida orange crop this season will not be over 60,000 boxes, owing to last winter's freeze. Last year's crop was 5,000,000 boxes.

Of the 25,000 persons committed to the prisons of Massachusetts last year, nearly two-thirds were under thirty years of age, and 1,500 were boys. Too much yellow back literature in that country.

The secret of success in any business depends as much upon taking care of a thing after you get it as it does in the making or possession of it. As an exchange truthfully says, there is one great leak on most farms for which there is no reason, and that is the loss which comes from leaving plows, hoes and other farming implements exposed to the weather. Make cheap shelters for such things if you have no house room to spare.

"Woman's most admirable qualities," says Chauncey Depew, "are common sense, good temper, and culture. But the most admirable of all her traits is her faculty of proving the very opposite of the ideal formed by the man who marries her, and yet of possessing some indescribable quality which makes him unable to get along without her, and always happy with her."

The best piece of enterprise we have yet seen exhibited by a North Carolina newspaper was the cotton mill edition of the Raleigh News and Observer, issued on Thanksgiving Day. It was handsomely illustrated with pictures of the various cotton mills throughout the State, and portraits of the men owning and operating them. The paper is a credit to North Carolina journalism.

POLITICAL OPINIONS.

There is about as much difference between a Populist and a Republican in North Carolina as there is between a tad-pole and a frog. It is only a matter of time when the Pop will be a full grown Radical.—Jacksonville Times.

Congress meets Monday. Reed will be elected Speaker of the House by a unanimous vote. It is a matter of uncertainty whether the Republicans will reorganize the Senate or not. Some legislation will be attempted with regard to increasing the revenues of the government but it is not believed that many tariff changes will be attempted.—Wilson Advance.

When you hear Republicans and their allies cussing Cleveland for his financial policy, they are giving their own parties the black eye. The only difference as to financial policy is, Cleveland is honest and open in it, and the Republicans never have been, but have done their work covertly. Some of Cleveland "pups" may correctly be placed upon a par with Republicans, but Cleveland is far ahead of either of them.—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matters of Interest Over the State.

Miss Alice Howard and Mr. Job Cobb, of Tarboro, will be married December 3rd.

There will be a tournament at Saratoga, Wilson county, on Thursday, December 18th.

George Washington, colored, the murderer of young Neville, will be hanged at Tarboro on December 3rd.

Steps will soon be taken to form a State association of ladies to raise funds for the erection of a monument to Senator Vance.

The North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will convene in annual session at Elizabeth City on Dec. 11th. Bishop A. W. Wilson will preside.

Governor Carr orders a special term of court for Lenoir county, Judge Graham to preside, to begin January 26th, mainly for the trial of the men charged with burning the town of Kinston last February. Just before the close of the late term of Lenoir court true bills were returned against several of the incendiaries.

Mrs. Mary Brantley, of Nash county, has brought suit against the insane asylum for $10,000 damages for the loss of an arm. While she was a patient there she was in the laundry, and one of her hands was caught in a mangle. It was so badly injured that amputation was necessary. She was later discharged, cured.

Robert Call's little boy aged about 15 years and Daniel Wright's boy about 11 years old were fooling with a loaded gun, when it went off, the contents hitting the Wright boy and killing him. These are the facts as reported to us, and should be a lesson to boys who are in the habit of handling guns carelessly.—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

NOW HE ADVERTISES.

A tinware peddler called one day On Mrs. Blank of Dallas And introduced himself, they say, As Raphael Gonzales.

He showed a patent coffeepot, Which took her eye completely; It boiled the coffee strong and hot, The "grounds" it settled neatly.

"How much for this newfangled pot? I think I'd like to try it." "As it's the last one of the lot, Two dollars, ma'am, will buy it."

When Mr. Blank at home that night Sat by the stove a-yawning, His good wife brought into the light Her purchase of the morning.

Now Mr. Blank, the story goes, Sold hardware—stoves, tin dippers, Spades, shovels, axes, weeding hoes, And also coffee drippers.

So when his good wife told him how Don Raphael Gonzales Had sold at prices extremely low Throughout Oak Cliff and Dallas

"These coffeepots so neat and cute!" "Stop, madam!" Blank did holler, "Your statement I right now refute—I sell these for one dollar!"

"Great land of rest!" the lady cries. "Are these kept in your store, sir? Why do you fail to advertise And let the people know, sir?"

"How will they ever find out, pray, If you will never try, sir, To bring the patronage your way, As does the advertiser?"

"You're right, my dear," Blank made reply. "I know you're not surmising, I'd just as well attempt to fly As sell 'thout advertising."

And now Blank's trade is growing fast, Way up in wealth he's rising, Since through his wife he found at last The good of advertising. —Dallas News.

A Bird Catching Insect.

In this country we talk of insectivorous or insect eating birds, and few of us have ever heard or read of a country where the tables are turned to such a degree, that they speak of a bird eating insect, but that is the exact condition of affairs in southern Brazil and Venezuela. In those countries they have an insect called the great mantis, which is some four or five inches in length, not including his strong jaws and immense nipperlike fore legs.

This pair of enormous "pinchers" are equal in strength to those of a crawfish or a crab and are used by the giant mantis in capturing its prey. The food of this cannibalistic insect consists of spiders, grasshoppers, small snakes and lizards, and, according to Brumlist, the most robust specimens of the genus will not stand aside with an empty stomach if he can manage to get his nippers on a bird of the size of a canary, warbler or chickadee. The great mantis resembles a combined leaf and twig both in color and shape, and being aided by this resemblance is able to stealthily approach its prey, whether it be reptile, insect or bird, and seize the unsuspecting creature with its razorlike claws.—St. Louis Republic.

An Empty Sentiment.

"I wish," said the man who indulges promiscuously in sentiment, "that I could be a boy again."

"And have to do your daily duties whether you felt like it or not?" inquired his practical friend.

"Ye-yes."

"And have to ask permission every time you go out at night?"

"Of course. Think of the freedom from responsibility, the—"

"Do you think you'd enjoy being told to your face that you should be seen and not heard?"

"No, I can't say that I would."

"Or being licked every time you were caught in a prevarication and compelled to go to bed because somebody else thinks you are sleepy?"

"Of course not. I—er—you see, it doesn't do to take anything in this life too literally. I was quoting poetry, you know."

A Private Precaution.

"My darling," said the wife as at 9:30 p. m. she found her husband strapping up all the umbrellas in the hall, as if he were off on a railway journey—"my darling, surely you are not going to take all these to the office with you?"

"Sweetest," he responded suavely but firmly, "surely you remember that you have an 'at home' this afternoon."

She raised her hands in horror. "Surely you do not insinuate that my guests would steal?"

"Steal! Nonsense. But it's a million to one they would recognize the initials on the handles."

She hung her head in silence, knowing full well that the man but spoke the truth.—Pick Me Up.

A Private Citizen.

Weary Watkins—Ever think of gittin into the porehouse?

Hungry Higgins—Me? No. I don't want to become no public officeholder. You won't find me askin nothin of the county as long as I kin git my own livin.

THE GREAT WHITE SCOURGE.

Tuberculosis and the Formidable Enemy
It Is to Mankind.

In order to see how formidable an enemy we have in tuberculosis let us contrast it with some other diseases which are even more dreaded. Leprosy is rare in most civilized countries; even in Asia Minor it causes less than 1 per cent of the total death rate. Typhoid and scarlet fevers are each held responsible for 3 per cent; diphtheria and pneumonia for 5 per cent each. The deaths from consumption alone, omitting such tubercular troubles as hip joint disease, Pott's disease of the spine, some forms of meningitis, intestinal marasmus, caries of bone and many abscesses, make up, according to one authority, about 20 per cent of the total death rate of this country. It is estimated that one-third of all deaths occurring in the medical wards of hospitals are due to tuberculosis, and that a fifth of all surgical cases treated—many of which are cured—are tubercular.

We may bring these statistics home by saying that you and I were born with one chance in five of dying of some form of tuberculosis. If our chance of being instantaneously and decently killed by an electric shock were 1 in 500, we would turn the wheels of progress back 20 years rather than allow an electric light or a trolley car to threaten our safety. No pains and no expense are thought too great in maintaining a quarantine against cholera, small-pox—which the sensible part of the community is already vaccinated against—diphtheria and the like.

Large appropriations are made that there may be tried a yet unproved defense against diphtheria, but to the insidious enemy that numbers its dead by hundreds where these other open foes count theirs by scores we are blind. It is time that the veil should be drawn from the loathsomeness of "the great white scourge," that the false sentiment which poetry and prose have thrown over infection, blood poisoning, suppuration and decay should be dissipated.—"Consumption Considered as a Contagious Disease," by A. L. Benedict, M. D., in Popular Science Monthly.

Some Top Heavy Names.

"I admit that I have rather a hard name to spell or pronounce, and that is why I encourage my friends in their proclivity to call me Zig," said C. O. Ziegenfuss. "But while I make this confession as to my own outlandish patronymic, I want it understood that mine is not the worst name in the world. Once while I was doing newspaper work in Denver our editor advertised for a new office boy. A bright appearing young fellow with a mild look in his eye answered the call and said he was ready to go to work.

"All right," said the editor. 'Let me ask your name.' The lad hesitated a moment and eventually fished out a card which bore the name 'Herman V. Morgenausgelagen.'

"Very well, Mr. Morgenausgelagen," said the editor, 'take that desk and answer any calls that may be made. But first let me introduce you to the members of the staff. My name is Dickensheets. This fair haired gentleman here is Mr. Feldwisch. The brunette on your right is Mr. Eekinggreen and the gentleman with the sylphlike form is Mr. Ziegenfuss.'

"These were all genuine names, but the new office boy would not believe it. He was on his dignity in a moment, and said: 'I will have you understand, sir, that I came here to work and not to be joshed. I do not propose to stay in a place where I am insulted. Good day, sir.'

"Clapping his hat on his head he went. We tried to call him back, but it was no use."—San Francisco Call.

Encouraging.

"I am encouraged," said a man who has lately had a prolonged struggle with a financial cyclone from which the cyclone came out decidedly ahead, "by the fact that the beggars don't pass me by—they range alongside as I walk up Broadway, and ask for the price of a meal just as they did before. I am aware that the beggar asks everybody—to ask costs nothing but the effort of asking—but he wouldn't ask a wooden man or a stone man; he wouldn't waste effort on anybody unless he thought there was some chance of his responding. The point is that this connoisseur of human nature still classifies me as among the possibilities. I look to him like a man still in the procession and with a dollar in his pocket. I am grateful to him for this friendly opinion, and I won't forget it."—New York Sun.

NOVEMBER NOTES.

Sung in the Key of "G" Join the Choir of Readers.

Last day of November.

How do you like us this evening?

Our merchants paid 8 cents for cotton today.

We saw two cart loads of collards in market this morning.

The market is nearly bare of eggs. They were scarce today.

If you want to take advantage of the flood tide read Lang's ad.

The horn of the coon hunter was heard last night. It was a fine night for a hunt.

Choice supply of fresh Groceries, Fruits and Canned Goods, at D. S. Smith's.

A good way to show your appreciation of the improvements in the REFLECTOR is to pay your subscription promptly.

NEWS.—The best Flour is Proctor Knott sold by S. M. Schultz. Try a 24 lb bag.

It takes more news to fill THE DAILY REFLECTOR now. If you know any items give them to us and help the paper along that much.

Believe nothing against another but on good authority; and never repeat what may hurt another, unless it be a greater hurt to some other to conceal it.

Those who buy Groceries of me once are sure to come again. The reason is I keep nice, fresh goods. D. S. SMITH.

Our Mr. R. L. Smith has gone to Kansas City for 100 head of horses and mules and will be back in a few days. Wait for them. They will be sold at panic prices. Just received a car load and they must go. R. L. SMITH & Co.

Marriage Licenses.

During this week Register of Deeds King issued licenses for only two couples, W. C. Worthington and Mary A. Cannon, and Wm. Jenkins and Sudie Webb, the former couple white and the latter colored. For the month of November twenty-two licenses were issued, eleven for white and eleven for colored couples.

Not Renewed Every Year.

The REFLECTOR of yesterday was a little in error in saying the county officers would have to renew their bonds before the Board of Commissioners next Monday. The last Legislature changed the law requiring the officers to renew bonds annually, but gives the Board authority to examine the bonds and cause them to be increased if found necessary.

PROPER NOUNS.

Third Person, Plural Number, Present Tense, Potential Mood.

Mr. B. C. Pearce left for Raleigh this morning.

Mr. E. P. Ford went to Kinston Friday night.

Mr. B. R. King, of Goldsboro, arrived in town this morning.

Mrs. A. A. Andrews and daughter left this morning for Durham.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Quinerly returned to Kinston Friday night.

Solicitor Bernard went to Grifton last night and returned this morning.

Prof. L. T. Rightsell, of Carolina Christian College, Ayden, spent to-day here.

Sheriff R. W. King went down to Grifton last night to collect taxes and returned this morning.

Mrs. J. M. Gay, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. T. Matthews, left this morning for Battleboro.

Ex-Sheriff Allen Warran and Miss Katie Moore returned Friday night from Conetoe where they went to spend Thanksgiving.

Messrs. L. V. and Charlie Metz, of Erie, Pa., enroute to the Atlanta Exposition, stopped here to spend a few days with their kinsman, Dr. C. J. O'Hagan.

Nearly a Fire.

The tobacco quarter came near having a fire, this morning. The ceiling around the stove flue in J. S. Jenkins & Co's. prizery caught on fire, but was discovered by the hands and put out before any damage was done.

More Houses in Prospect.

Mr. Lovitt Hines, of the Greenville Lumber Co., tells us that during the past month he has sold $2,500 worth of building lots on the Company's property. This looks like Greenville has good building prospects ahead.

An Editor Dead.

A letter received by Capt. E. M. Pace, Friday night, announced the death of Mr. Geo. W. Blount, of Wilson. Mr. Blount was editor of the Mirror, a prominent lawyer, an active Mason, and an upright Christian gentleman. Wilson and the State suffers a loss in his death.

The old military academy at Hillsboro has been purchased by the Farmers Alliance for the purpose of establishing a shoe factory and tannery. The property contains 140 acres and has five buildings, all brick except one. The headquarters of the Alliance will be moved from Raleigh to the new purchase.

Have You Thought of it?

December comes in Sunday, and perhaps you have not thought of how many times the word "first" can be used in connection with the first day of the month. It is the first Sunday in the month, the first day of the month, the first day of the week, the beginning of the first winter month, the first Sunday in Advent, and the first day of the new Church year.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

The City Fathers can Secure Them.

The Town Council at its meeting Wednesday night will probably take some action on the electric light question. Messrs. Hines and Hamilton will go to work at once putting in an electric plant if the town will agree to rent twenty are lights for use on the streets. The business men and citizens have already agreed to take enough lights to insure the success of the enterprise if the town will take the above number. This is the cheapest plan for lighting the town by electricity that has yet been presented—no outlay at all except an annual rental. All whom we have heard express themselves on the subject are in favor of the town taking the lights.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Washington, Nov. 29th, 1895.

President Cleveland has completed his annual message to Congress and to-day that interesting document was submitted to the Cabinet and discussed. Its contents will, of course remain secret until it goes to Congress, which will probably not be until next Tuesday, as the session of the House on Monday will be taken up by the election of Speaker and the other officers of that body.

Mr. Reed must expect to be more Czar-like than ever in his rule over the Republicans of the House, if he really thinks he can prevent all legislation except that of passing the regular appropriation bills, as those friendly to him and his aspirations for the Republican nomination say he does. Other candidates for that nomination have followers in the House who may have something to say about that. In this connection a suggestion has been made by a business man of prominence, which might be turned to good account by President Cleveland a little later on, if he were disposed to accept it. Although there are a considerable number of Republicans in the House who are in favor of sinking partisanship and legislating for the relief of the Treasury, and consequently of the country, they are keeping very quiet now and will continue to do so until Speaker Reed announces the House Committees. Then they will speak their minds. It is the idea of the business man before mentioned that if properly managed a compromise could be brought about by which some financial legislation that would be of benefit to the country could be secured. He thinks if President Cleveland would invite some of these men to a personal conference at which both sides should frankly state their opinions that by each side giving up a little a bill could be drawn that would prevent further bond issues and that would pass both House and Senate and be signed by the President. The idea is at least unique.

Representative Downing, the only Illinois Democrat who will sit in the present House, and he only got in by a majority of 40 votes, takes a cheerful view of Democratic prospects in that state. He says: "I think the friction that has heretofore existed among the Democrats of Illinois on the subject of silver will disappear, and that all the factions will be found fighting together in the utmost harmony in 1896. Col. Wm. R. Morrison is the choice of our people for the Presidency, and he will be supported just as staunchly by the free silver men as by the advocates of sound money. The people know and admire him, and he has never disappointed them. His unspotted record is his highest eulogium."

There are many democrats both in and out of Congress, who are in favor of the building of the Nicaragua canal, either directly by the U. S. government or by guaranteeing the bonds of the canal company, but there will not be so many of them if the Republicans are to continue their present abuse of the President who appointed a commission to examine the canal and report thereon, as directed by the last Congress, and of the three gentlemen, one army engineer, one naval engineer and one civil engineer, who composed that commission, because its report has shown that difficulties of building the canal are much greater than the canal company's officials had represented them to be, and because the report estimates the cost to be nearly double what the canal company does. No matter whether a man favors or opposes the idea of government aid in building the canal there is no sense in his objecting to the truth and the whole truth being put before Congress before final action is taken. If the friends of the canal are wise they will try to muzzle those Republicans who are making use of abuse instead of arguments.

Sir Julian Pauncefoot will be sorry he so forgot himself as to abuse Senator Morgan, in an official paper, for the opinions he expressed on the floor of the Senate concerning those claims for the seizure of illegal sealers in Bering Sea. Senator Morgan is a fighter. Just now he merely says of Sir Julian's abuse: "I think it is a piece of presumptive arrogance on his part," but just wait until he tackles the subject on the floor of the Senate.

Every business firm in the county should have its name in some newspaper. Let the people know that you are in business.

The Farmer's Alliance of Greenville township, had a meeting in the Court House this afternoon.
