Adam and Eve Wore CAPES AND COATS.

They always were and always will be a leading feature of women's wear—just now they are the vogue. Our Capes and Coats combine the elegance and completeness of up-to-date fashion, with the practical properties of the old-time Cloakings with a special price inducement for this week.

C.T. Munford.

CLOVES!

If you fear temptation keep away from our Glove counter. We have a dollar Kid Glove that would tempt a miser. With some a dollar Glove is simply a pair of gloves for a dollar. With us it means the best Glove on earth for the price. If you want them for your own use or to give them to a friend, you can buy here without misgiving. A reasonable guarantee goes with every pair of dollar gloves.

WHEN I'M WITH YOU.

When I'm with you
The sky is arched with deepest blue,
The flowers are decked in richer blue,
And glad fields seem to smile anew

When I'm with you.

When I'm with you
More gentle is the murmur of the brook,
More sweet the songs from dell and nook,
And ever glad is life's old story book

When I'm with you.

When I'm with you
The sunset paints a brighter sky,
The distant ships quiet at anchor lie,
And hours like moments hurry by

When I'm with you.

When I'm with you
The moonbeams fall in softer light,
The bright stars laugh upon a perfect night,
And all the world is filled with truth and right

When I'm with you.

When I'm with you
My wayward heart seems nearer pure,
Of God and future then I'm almost sure,
And naught from right can me allure

When I'm with you.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matters of Interest Over the State.

Wm. Dozier, 104 years old, pays taxes on 140 acres of land in Wake county.

Will P. Summers, a farmer of Alamance county, was killed by a well caving in on him.

H. T. Smithdeal's tobacco-factory, at Advance, Davie county, has been seized by revenue officers for alleged violations of the revenue law.

As an illustration of how they make meat in Harnett now, Mr. Len Matthews recently killed a hog that weighed 647 pounds.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

The Tyson & Jones Buggy Company, of Carthage, were awarded the first medal at the Atlanta Exposition last week for the best all-round exhibit of vehicles.

Dower, 3-years old son of Mr. Geo. O. Cornelius, of Mooresville, got a grain of corn in his throat last Tuesday evening, from the effects of which he died Thursday evening, after two days and nights of intense suffering.—Statesville Landmark.

Charlie Mitchell raised a wonderful stalk of corn this year. It had seven distinct separate ears on it, and one of these ears was made up of seven different ears all grown together, the shortest measuring six inches. This would be properly speaking 13 ears to one stalk.—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

And So It Is.

Experiments by Colonel Rochas, of the Paris Polytechnic School, show that the human brain is a fire whose luminous effluvia, given forth from the eyes, ears, nose and mouth, fills the air with a mild light for a radius of fifteen or twenty feet. What the brain theoretically is to the individual the newspaper is to the community, the organ of luminosity, which radiates its light for miles instead of feet. It is the organ which not only thinks for the people, but sees for them, and tells them where they may secure all their daily needs, and how to make their expenditures with the least outlay of the Christmas dollar.

REMEDIAL VALUE OF FOODS.

Carrots for sufferers from asthma.

Watercress is a remedy for scurvy.

Asparagus is used to induce perspiration.

Turnips for nervous disorders and for scurvy.

Spinach is useful to those suffering with gravel.

Lettuce is useful to these suffering from insomnia.

Honey is wholesome, strengthening, cleansing, healing and nourishing.

Celery is invaluable as a food for those suffering from any form of rheumatism, for diseases of the nerves, and nervous dyspepsia.

Fresh ripe fruits are excellent for purifying the blood and toning up the system. As specific remedies, oranges are aperient, Sour oranges are highly recommended for rheumatism.

Salt to check bleeding at the lungs, and as a nervine and tonic for weak, thin-blooded invalids. Combined with hot water, it is useful for certain forms of dyspepsia, liver complaint, etc.

Grapes dilute thick blood, send the circulation to the surface, remove obstructions from the liver and lungs, dissolve and dislodge gravel and calculi, and bring the stomach and bowels to a healthy condition.

Raw beef proves of great benefit to persons of frail constitution, and to those suffering from consumption. It is chopped fine, seasoned with salt, and heated by placing it in a dish in hot water. It assimilates rapidly and affords the best of nourishment.

Peanuts for indigestion; they are especially recommended for corpulent diabetics. Peanuts are made into a wholesome and nutritious soup, are browned and used as coffee, are eaten as a relish simply baked, or are prepared and served as salted almonds.

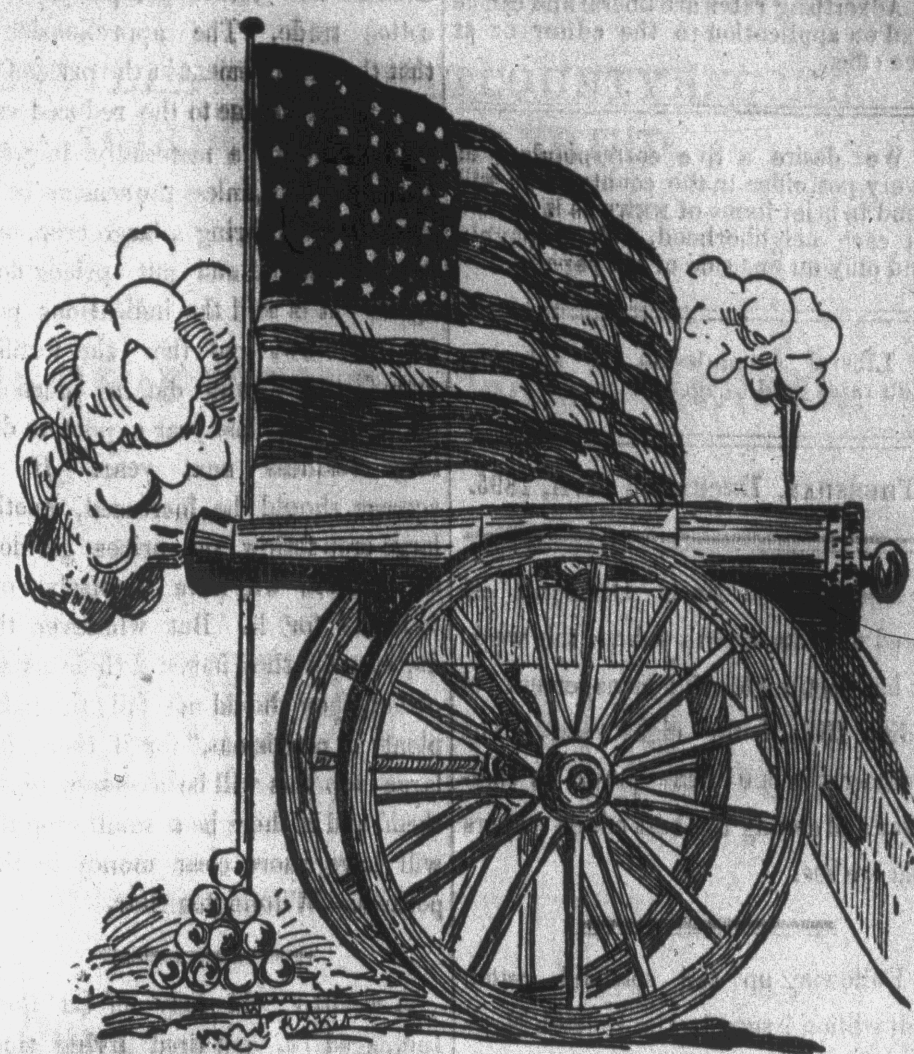

Eggs contain a large amount of nutriment in compact, quickly available form. Eggs, especially the yolks of eggs, are useful in jaundice. Beaten up raw, with sugar, are used to clear and strengthen the voice. With sugar and lemon-juice, the beaten of egg is used to relieve hoarseness.

Onions are almost the best nervine known. No medicine is so useful in cases of nervous prostration, and there is nothing else that will so quickly relieve and tone up a worn-out system. Onions are useful in all cases of coughs, colds and influenza; in consumption, insomnia, hydrophobia, scurvy, gravel and kindred liver complaints. Eaten every other day, they soon have a whitening and clearing effect on the complexion.—Home and Farm.

A Hog With Three Hearts.

Maj. Pleasants, section boss on the Southern, lives just below the Norfolk & Western depot. He is a clever gentleman and his veracity has never been questioned. He tells a story that appears to be rather wide of the mark but he has witnesses who vouch to the truthfulness of the statement. He killed a hog last week and upon cutting it open he found three well formed hearts. Two were located between the shoulders and were much smaller than the regular one. A vein ran between the two smaller ones and joined the shoulders. Maj. Pleasants has all three hearts on exhibition at his house and they have been viewed and examined by a number of people.—Winston Sentinel.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12TH, 1895.

The Scotland Neck Democrat entered upon its twelfth volume this week. It has been under the management of Editor Hillard for eight years. The Democrat is one of the purest in character and among the best edited papers that we see.

Following up the splendid cotton mill edition issued by the Raleigh News and Observer on Thanksgiving day, that paper announces that its next step in this direction will be a special tobacco edition in which the various tobacco markets of the State will be illustrated. Like everything undertaken by that excellent paper, the tobacco edition will be a success.

Be careful how you seal your letters. A Fayetteville lawyer wrote a fertilizer company relating to a case he had just won for the company. In the letter he accused, confidentially of course, a merchant of another town of perjury. At the same time he was writing to a lawyer of the merchant's town. Now when he seals the letters he gets them mixed; the letter intended for the fertilizer company went to the lawyer in the merchant's town. The lawyer showed the merchant the letter accusing him of perjury and lawyer number one was sued for libel. Some bad misfortunes are capable of happening this way.

Mr. Barrett, of Massachusetts, is the first one to produce a sensation in the House of Representatives at this session of Congress. He introduced a resolution Tuesday to impeach Mr. Bayard who is now Ambassador to the Court of St. James. His charges are that he had criticised a Protective Tariff in a speech at Edinburg delivered there last October.

If this House expects to impeach every official who denounces a Protective Tariff it will have no room for anything else during its session and it will have to sit without adjournment during the two years of its existence. It seems to us that the election of some men to Congress makes fools of them and they are allowed to exhibit themselves upon its floors and consume time which ought to be devoted to legislation that at least has some promise of being for the benefit of the people. The House had better expel Mr. Barrett and thereby get rid of a pest, and not consume its time in listening to his resolution to impeach men who are so far his superior in every thing that no one of common sense should listen at his "barking."

GOOD ADVICE.

"Plant plenty of provisions and keep down the cotton acreage," is the advice of Messrs. Middleton Ravenel, cotton brokers of Charleston, to the cotton planters of the South. Substantially the same advice has been given by others engaged in the handling of cotton, although not in the production of it. This is disinterested advice given by men who are posted in what they talk about, who understand the situation and have every opportunity to form opinions as to the present situation and future prospects of the cotton trade. The apprehension is that the improvement in the price of cotton, which is due to the reduced crop, will result in a materially increased acreage which, unless the seasons be unfavorable, will bring a large crop, overrun the demand and put prices down again. It is said the indications point to that now, and that the fertilizer manufacturers who did a much reduced business last year expect to do a large business next year. If the acreage should be increased, another large crop follow and prices go down the planters will have themselves only to blame for it. But whatever they do, whether they increase their acreage or not, they should not fail to "plant plenty of provisions," for if there be a large crop this will be necessary to save them, and if there be a small crop they will have more clear money in their pockets.—Wilmington Star.

A wealthy old lady of La Porte, Ind., aged 74, got tired living single and advertised that she would pay some nice young man $20,000 to marry her. The nice young man was forthcoming, and her relatives to stop the proceedings tried to have the old lady declared insane. But the jury of lunacy concluded that wanting a husband was no evidence of insanity and decided that she was sane. To prevent further annoyance by relatives she eloped with the young man to an adjoining town where they were married, and she handed over the $20,000.

A Georgia woman has contrived a very cunning device to prevent being annoyed by her husband's snoring. She has a mask fitted up with a tube attachment, which passes through a hole in the floor into the basement, and when hubby starts the octave she slips the mask over his face, dexterously secures it, and then goes off into dreamland herself, while the rats in the basement scamper away from the approaching cyclone.

Very Ungallant.

The London critic, Clement Scott, and Mrs. Kendal have been at loggerheads for many years. Scott's version of the cause of their enmity is interesting. "It was years ago," he says, "when the Kendals were on a provincial tour. I had gone behind the scenes to see one of the actors, and by accident I walked right into Mrs. Kendal's room. That good lady was about to begin her toilet. She shrieked: 'Go away! Go away!' I turned, shut my eyes tight, bowed and said, 'Madam, I need no persuasion.' And to this day I have never been able to tell which she resented the more—my intrusion or my remark."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Not a Deaf and Dumb Postman.

The numbers have been changed since College place has become part of West Broadway, and persons who know only the old numbers have difficulty in finding places under the new. A seeker for information on this point made inquiries the other day of a postman who was in the act of opening a letter box. The postman, in place of answering, shoved the inquirer aside. When the inquiry was repeated, the postman put his finger on his lips and gave another shove.

The inquirer thought the postman deaf and dumb, if not crazy, but the postman, after closing the letter box, in which he had made changes in the movable numerals giving the hours of collection, said:

"We are not allowed to speak when the box is open. I would be discharged if I were seen to speak to you then. What is it you want?"

He then gave the desired information.—New York Sun.

A LYNCH JURY'S QUEER VERDICT.

They Loaded McCall Up With Food and Bade Him Ride For His Life.

"It was in 1876 that Wild Bill (William Hickok) was murdered in Deadwood by Jack McCall. Nearly every one has heard the story of Wild Bill, but I am of the opinion that the story of the trial of McCall by a lynch court and his marvelous escape has never appeared in print."

So said Judge Shannon of Canton the other day. It was early in the seventies when the judge came to Dakota under appointment by General Grant as territorial chief justice, and probably no man is so familiar with the thrilling incidents connected with the early settlement by the whites.

"McCall was afterward tried before me," he continued, "found guilty of murder in the first degree, sentenced to the gallows and subsequently hanged at Yankton. During his trial all the incidents of the murder and his escape were brought out. Wild Bill was playing cards, when McCall walked up behind him and shot him dead. The assassin was instantly seized by those present, and a mob soon assembled that cried for blood. It was finally decided to organize a court and give him a trial for his life. A judge was selected, a jury of 12 men was impaneled, and counsel was appointed for both the prosecution and the defense.

"The prosecution made out a strong case of cold blooded, deliberate murder. When it came to the defense, McCall, who was a man of some education and ability, addressed the jury himself. He struck the only chord that was likely to vibrate to his interest when he said he had known Wild Bill down in Texas; that they were friends, and that he had introduced him to his family. Wild Bill, he stated, had abused his friendship and betrayed his sister. For that crime he had visited vengeance on him. That began to put a new phase on matters. While they condemned him for shooting a man without giving him a chance for his life, they regarded the killing as justifiable. But just then the attorney for the prosecution came in. He asked for proof of McCall's story and alleged that McCall's evidence should have no weight. McCall said he had been hunting for Wild Bill ever since the occurrence, and that he had no proofs of his statements beyond his own words, and that no sane man would walk up in a crowd and shoot another down unless he had cause for so doing.

"The jury took the case and deliberated on it for some time, and finally returned with one of the queerest verdicts that have ever been heard of by any one. They were not sure of his guilt, so they had decided to give him a chance for his life. They put him on a fast horse, filled his pockets with bread and cheese and gave him one minute start, after which they would kill him if they could. They were all armed with Winchester rifles and revolvers and were horsemen and excellent shots.

"When the word was given, McCall started for his life. Before the minute was up he began throwing himself rapidly from one side to the other to divert the aim of his pursuers. At the end of the fateful minute the word was given, and the pursuit and fusillade began. It seems almost incredible, but he escaped. He ran into Wyoming, and after about three weeks turned up in Cheyenne, where he was arrested by a United States marshal and turned over to a marshal in Dakota. On the trial it was shown that his story was a falsehood, cunningly devised to save his neck. He murdered Wild Bill for the notoriety of having killed the famous scout, and thoroughly deserved the execution that followed his conviction. But the verdict of the lynch jury was unique and original in criminal trials."—Minneapolis Journal.

Bamboo pens have been used in India for over 1,000 years. They are made like the ordinary quill pen, and for a few hours' writing are said to be very serviceable.

The number of trees growing in the public highways of the city of London is found to be 14,700. These are on the public highways alone and not in the parks.

Sympathy.

There are those who never take a stone out of the way, never put any light into darkness, never any comfort into sorrow. But there are those, too, who have much of the milk of human kindness, whose hearts are tuned to the key of tenderness, whose faces beam and scatter sunshine.—Rev. W. H. Moore.

LIGHTING PARLIAMENT.

Now the Commons and Lords Are Furnished With Illumination.

Although gas, candles and oil lamps are used to light the parliament buildings, says the Westminster Budget, incandescent lamps are in most general use. The system of electric lighting is controlled from the basement, and throughout the building the lamps themselves are everywhere arranged with great care and forethought. In the dining rooms, for instance, they are placed very high up, so that while the supply of light is ample there is no glare over the tables. In the tea-rooms, besides the lights from the ceiling, there are wall brackets over the tables and even movable table lamps for those who care to use them. And in the kitchen and the service room adjoining the commons dining room all the fittings are made of iron, rather than of brass, so that they may suffer as little as possible from the steam.

With a staff of about 50 men the superintendent is able to make all sorts of ingenious and pretty fittings. And, as another specimen of the economy which is everywhere visible, it may be mentioned that he has succeeded in making many pretty electroliers out of the old gas fittings. The big electroliers—notably that in the central hall, which weighs 18 hundredweight and bears 93 lamps—and the smaller ones in the peers' chamber, St. Stephen's hall and elsewhere are made to be raised and lowered for purposes of cleaning or of replacing broken lamps. This big electrolier has, high up in the dome a crane which moves over it on tram lines, by which it is raised and lowered, while the electric wires are carefully drawn aside on another tramway so that they may not be damaged in paying out while the electrolier is being lowered. And in the roof above the house of lords there are similar arrangements, but with simply a weight and a couple of earthenware pulleys in place of the crane.

The commons chamber is not lighted entirely by electricity. Round the arched doorway are ten incandescent lamps, which are principally required to show up the carving and the clock face, and under the side galleries there is a lamp placed behind each pillar, so that, while it cannot itself be seen, it prevents the members who may be sitting there from being in deep shade and so invisible to the speaker. The principal lighting here, however, comes through the painted glass roof, behind which 64 powerful gas lamps are used, gas being preferred to electricity here both on account of its superior spreading powers and because the heat creates a draft, and so assists ventilation. Under the glass is a very fine wire network, so that were a breakage to occur there would be no danger of a cabinet minister being decapitated. In the lobbies and the libraries electric lighting is used, however. In the libraries and reading rooms it is placed lower than in most parts of the building, for obvious reasons. And in all the larger electroliers the lamps are divided into three groups, which light independently of one another. Thus, on a dull day one set of lamps would be in use; if it were foggy, there might be two sets, and at night all three are employed.

Ruskin and Science.

One of the worst enemies of science is Mr. Ruskin. When Agassiz published his book on "Fossil Fishes," which was deemed of such importance in determining the relative ages of the strata in which they were found that the United States government contributed to the expenses of publication, Mr. Ruskin, in "Præterita," volume 2, page 112, says, "Agassiz was a mere blockhead to have paid for all that good drawing of the nasty, ugly things, and that it didn't matter a stale herring whether they had any names or not," a piece of criticism written with the pen of ignorance. But what shall we say when we see the same writer speaking of "little Mr. Faraday" finding a hydrocarbon oil in heaven which makes a stink? (I quote from memory.) Surely, if ever a man was great both as a man and an explorer of nature's mysteries, it was the blacksmith's son who made his way from the position of a little newsboy to that of the greatest experimentalist that ever lived.

A Sad Case.

This morning ex-Sheriff J. A. K. Tucker left for Raleigh to take Mr. Eugene Tucker to the asylum. For several weeks the family of the young man had noticed that his actions were strange and unusual, and about two weeks ago physicians pronounced his mind affected. It is hoped by getting him into the asylum at once under the treatment there his mind will be speedily restored.

SWING CORNERS.

This afternoon at the home of Mr. J. A. Thigpen, two miles from Greenville, his daughter, Miss Electa Thigpen and Mr. G. E. Cherry were married.

Peanuts Against Cotton.

Mr. C. F. Hancock tells the Democrat that he had 12 acres each in peanuts and cotton this year. On his cotton he used $3 worth of home raised manure to the acre, and on his peanuts he used 75 cents worth of lime to the acre. He had a good stand of cotton but a poor stand of peanuts, and he realized $100 clear profit more from the 12 acres in peanuts than from the 12 acres in cotton.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

The Judge Sick.

Owing to the feeble health of Judge McIver, under the advice of Dr. O'Hagan he adjourned court this morning. The case of Davenport vs. Satterthwaite was being heard and had already been in progress for two days, but with the other cases on the calendar was continued to April term. All jurors and witnesses were excused from further attendance at this term. If Judge McIver improves sufficiently he will hear some motions before final adjournment of the term.

WORK STARTED.

The Vaults Will Soon Be In.

Today work was started on the vaults in the Court House. The vaults will occupy the centre room formerly used for the Register of Deeds' office and there will be entrances from the offices on both sides of it. Mr. W. H. Barnes, of Suffolk, Va., has charge of the construction of the vaults. In reply to a question from the REFLECTOR as to the length of time it would require to complete the work, he said: "I shall be very anxious to get through in time to spend Christmas at home."

Mr. Barnes brought three expert workmen with him and will employ his other labor here.

If everybody could keep it in mind that we are all dependent more or less upon one another, and that often one is helped while another is helped also, indirectly, by the same deed, we would have a much kinder feeling one to the other.—Burlington News.

COMMENDABLE.

A Benefit Sale for the Poor.

Mrs. J. B. Cherry, who is State Secretary of the King's Daughters as well as the leading spirit in the circle at Greenville, handed us the following letter received by her:

GREENVILLE, N. C., Dec. 10th, '95.

MRS. ADA CHERRY,

DEAR MADAME:—We have decided to donate one-fourth of our gross commissions and warehouse charges on December 20th to the King's Daughters, of which we understand you are its honored president, to be by them used in providing the necessities of life for the illy provided for of the town and community. With great respect, we are Yours very respectfully,

EVANS, JOYNER & Co.

This step is indeed commendable in the proprietors of the Eastern Warehouse, and speaks in strongest terms of their liberality. Every one who reads this should feel personally interested and should aid in making this benefit sale on the 20th as large as possible so that the donation may be a liberal one. There are a number of people in the community in need of help and the King's Daughters are doing a noble work in relieving suffering. They need help in their work and these gentlemen have taken the right step to aid them.

Much Excitement Yet.

Mr. B. F. Sugg came home a day or two ago from a trip through the Aurora section, and tells us that there is yet much excitement among the people over the murder of Mr. Bopner. There are fears that all of the gang organized for robbery have not been captured.

An Elegant Display.

Christmas is only a few days away, and of course with it comes the beautiful holiday show. The editor walked up the street this morning and dropped in Wooten's Drug Store and spent some time examining the novelties in cut-glass. The flagons shown are superb. There are several different styles, among them a pair of lovely 10-inch, wine and lavender colored, filled with the nicest extract. Then came toilet trays with comb and brush, trinket trays, rose bowls, manicure sets, glove and handkerchief boxes, lap tablets, mirrors in pyralin, and numerous articles only shown for holiday trade.

We recall seeing at the Atlanta Exposition a large display of articles similar to those at Wooten's, and from the way they were admired by all can vouch for his being the best designs. His display is well worth going to see, whether you want to purchase or not.

EVERY BOY.

Wants or should want an Education.

And The Eastern Reflector is Going to help one Boy in that direction.

We will give absolutely free of charge a scholarship entitling the holder to free tuition in all the English branches for the entire spring term, 1896 (5 months) of Greenville Male Academy.

This is the best school for boys in Eastern North Carolina, and the boy will be fortunate who wins this prize.

CONDITIONS.

This 5 months scholarship is to be given to the boy who will get the largest number of yearly subscribers for between now and 6 o'clock P. M. on Jan 11th, 1896. Two subscribers for 6 months or four subscribers for 3 months will count the same as one yearly subscriber. This is no catch penny device but a bonafide offer, and if only one subscriber should be brought during the time specified the boy who brings it will get the scholarship. Of course we expect more than one subscriber to be brought in, for this is a prize worth winning and many boys will work for it.

The Eastern Reflector

In order that there may be an incentive for every boy who wishes to enter this contest, we offer a cash commission of 10 per cent on all subscribers, so that those who fail to get the scholarship will be paid for their work, but the one who wins the scholarship will not get the commission. Now boys get to work with the determination to win this prize. You can get as many sample copies of the REFLECTOR as you need by applying to the office. If you decide to enter this contest send us your name as we wish to know how many boys are working for the prize. We will publish the result of the contest with the name of winner in the issue of the REFLECTOR of Jan. 15th, 1896, giving the successful boy time to enter school on the opening day of spring term Monday, Jan. 20th.

Address all letters to

THE EASTERN REFLECTOR, Greenville N. C.

GREENVILLE, N. C. Oct. 25th, 1895. This to certify that I have arranged with the publisher of THE EASTERN REFLECTOR to teach free of charge in the English branches, for the 5 months term beginning Jan. 20th, 1896, the boy to whom he may award the scholarship in the above subscription contest, W. H. BAGSDALE, Principal Greenville Male Academy.

Sale of Valuable Town Lot.

In obedience to an order made by the Board of County Commissioners at their meeting on the first Monday in November 1895, directing me as the Clerk of said Board to advertise for sale the lot belonging to the County of Pitt, known in the plan of the town of Greenville as lot number 102, it being the lot now used by the town of Greenville, as a Market House with the permission of the Board of County Commissioners. I, William M. King, ex officio Clerk of the Board of Commissioners of Pitt County, do hereby give public notice that said lot will be exposed to public sale to the highest bidder, in front of the Court House door, at 12 o'clock M. on Monday the 6th day of January 1896. The terms of sale will be one third cash and the balance to be secured in two equal instalments, payable in one and two years, with six per cent interest on deferred payments, with privilege to purchase to pay the whole at any time and take his deed. Title reserved until the whole of the purchase money is paid. The Board reserves the right to affirm or disaffirm said sale. Notice is also given that the town government will be permitted to remove the Market House and other buildings erected on said lot by the town, in accordance with the agreement entered into at the time permission was given by the Board of County Commissioners to the town Commissioners to erect and use said buildings. The lot will be offered in three alternate ways which will be shown in detail on a plan on file in the office of the Register of Deeds and can be seen by the public at any time and will also be announced on day of sale. W. M. KING, Clerk Bd. of Com. of Pitt Co.
