THE PICTURE IN MY HEART.

SAMUEL MINTURN PECK.

In each man's soul there lives a dream
Lit by a woman's eyes,
Whose glance is like the tender gleam
That thrills the evening skies.
It is a dream that never faints
Though weal or woe befalls,
But haunts the heart, and softly paints
A picture on its walls.

It is my dream at midnight,
And in the crowded mart,
That darling face
With gentle grace—
The picture in my heart.

In each man's heart there floats a voice

That speaks to him alone.
The voice of her, his spirit's choice,
He longs to call his own.
The days may hasten like the wind,
Or lag with sullen feet,
Some day his waxing heart shall find
The face he longs to meet.

It is my dream at midnight,
Its dear eyes ne'er depart.
Oh, where is she,
My bride to be—
The picture in my heart?

Oh, some hearts range the wide world through

And through to find their mate,
And some amid the darkness rue
That they have met too late:
A wistful glance betrays to each
What neither dares to sigh;
A wedded bond forbids the speech
That's uttered by the eye.

It is my dream at midnight,
It makes my pulses start.
O, Fate, be kind,
And let me find
The picture in my heart.

ABOUT US.

Some More Kind Words for the Reflector.

We are glad to note the enlargement of the Greenville REFLECTOR and other evidences of its prosperity. —Fayetteville Observer.

The Greenville REFLECTOR has enlarged to five columns, and appears in a new dress of type. It is now a neat and sprightly daily, which the Greenville people should heartily support. It will do good work for their town. We congratulate brother Whichard. —Weldon News.

A well known firm of Baltimore, under date of 11th writes: "We want to congratulate you on your handsome five column daily. We have thought for a long time that Greenville needed such a paper, and now that you are furnishing it we hope you will receive the encouragement you so well deserve. May it live long and prosper. We expect to see it eight columns before another year."

One of our tobacco men can boast that he has not touched a drop of intoxicants since 16, Dec. 1876. today 19 years ago.

Can't Leave it Behind.

The editor is suffering with a lame throat, and his physician, Dr. Bagwell, having warned him to keep that throat in doors for a few days, the predicament confronts him that he can't get around after news items without taking his throat along too, and he either must take it out or stay in with it. While in such a dilemma a few news items handed in would be appreciated.

THE N. C. CONFERENCE.

In Session at Elizabeth City.

SECOND DAY.

Written reports were presented from Trinity college, Greensboro Female college, Littleton Female college, and Jonesboro High school, and referred to the Committee on Education.

N. M. Lawrence made some remarks concerning the Oxford Orphan asylum, thanking the conference for the collection taken during Thanksgiving.

Question 12. What traveling preachers are elected elders? N. H. Wilson, K. D. Holmes, L. S. Massey, E. E. Rose, Michael Bradshaw, Jesse J. Porter, J. D. Bundy, Jesse W. Martin, J. T. Draper, Charles H. Galloway and J. C. McCall passed an examination of character, and having made reports of a satisfactory year's work, were elected to elders orders. J. C. McCall on account of ill health, was referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for superannuated relation.

Question 10. "What local preachers are elected deacons?" Yancey E. Wright, of the Rockingham district, E. Dixon, of the New Bern district, and Samuel Leffers, of the Washington district, were elected deacons.

W. C. Norman and Rev. W. L. Cunningham, of Wilmington city churches, made their reports, which were highly satisfactory.

THIRD DAY.

Revs. H. B. Anderson and G. D. Langston were elected to fill vacancies in the Board of Education. H. H. Grant, was assigned to the Board of Missions, vice his father. Rev. W. E. Grant, deceased. Credentials of J. A. B. Kilpatrick as local minister were deposited with the secretary.

Communications were received from the Board of Education and missionary secretaries and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Students who attend colleges and schools away from home were requested to deposit their certificates with the nearest church. The report of T. J. Gattis conference colporteur, was received and referred and Mr. Gattis allowed to accept the offer of the South Carolina conference to include it in the system of colportage in this State.

Under the question of "Who are readmitted?" the name of John T. Abernethy was presented. His readmission was advocated by Elder Swindell, of Newbern, and strenuously opposed by Revs. Cunningham and Gibbs, elders of Durham and Rockingham. The gifted Dr. Yates made a forcible speech in favor of readmission, and when he concluded some excitement became apparent some half dozen clamoring for recognition. Rev. J. W. Jenkins made an impassioned appeal in Mr. Abernethy's behalf.

After considerable discussion Mr. Abernethy was readmitted by a vote of 72 to 64.

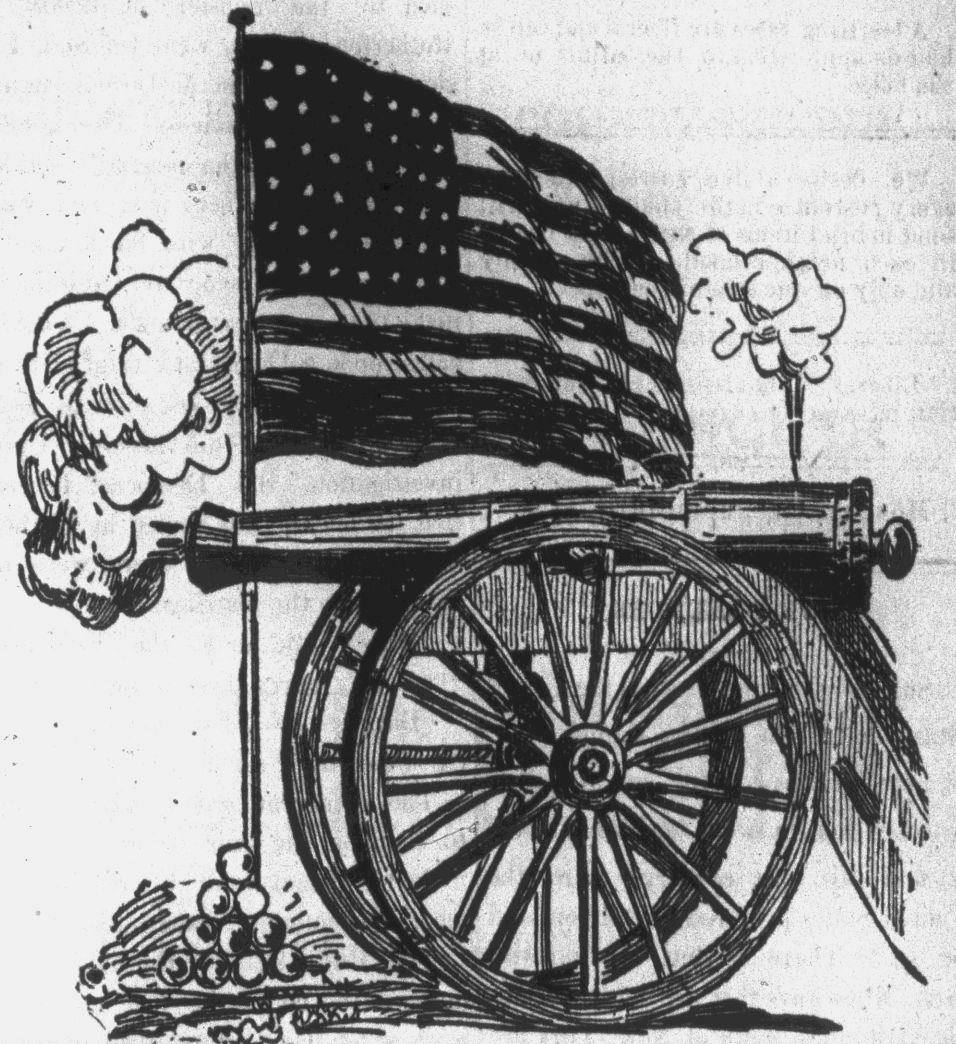

Readmission was denied to Rev. N. L. Seabolt, of the Newbern district.

Raleigh was chosen as the next place of meeting.

Christmas Goods Lost.

By wire from Norfolk we learn that a barge belonging to the Norfolk & Carolina railroad loaded with Christmas goods for Southern points was run into and sunk by the British steamer Oregon, outward bound. The goods on the barge were mostly cakes and candies and will prove a total loss. We wonder if any of them were for Greenville.

OUR DEFENCES.

Suppose that war between the United States and Great Britain should occur, or between this country and any other great power, in what condition would it find this vast country? Are the United States prepared for war on land or sea? There is but one answer. Gen. Miles says that the entire Atlantic coast cities south of New York are in a defenceless condition. It is then an excellent time to improve the defences. There is no sounder adage applicable to our country than in time of peace prepare for war. We must maintain the Monroe Doctrine, and yet our seacoast cities will be at the mercy of the great navies. In ten or fifteen days after war was declared with England, her great armored vessels could be battering down the cities that lie at their mercy. Is this a pleasant thing to have, or a desirable condition for the great Republic to be in? How can it enforce the Monroe Doctrine with such a navy? Senator Cullen, of Illinois, voiced public sentiment on the 10th inst. in addressing the Senate when he said:

"We have reached the time when it becomes our bounden duty to say to the world with dignity and firmness, that thus far, but no farther, shall foreign systems of government be permitted to approach. Our policy is the American policy, our doctrine is the protection of American interests, and our motto is America for Americans. We do not claim that the world is ours, but we insist on our right to be consulted upon affairs pertaining to the American continents. Let us build so strongly and speak so plainly that the way of the future Executives, Prime Ministers and Ambassadors of our country shall be undoubted."

The Congress should take steps to protect the cities and seaports on the long Atlantic coast and speedily. The leading Powers in Europe have larger, more powerful navies than our country has. There is, therefore no Jingoism or patriotic gush in insisting upon the defences demanded. It is a case of necessity. While we have no idea that war will occur between Great Britain and the United States soon, either growing out of the Venezuelan embroglio or Behring Straits or any other question to the front now, it is not an impossible thing. In fact, war with some other European Power might occur in any year. While this country can take care of itself, so far as an invasion is concerned, it is very different in so far as the navy is involved. If war does occur the injuries inflicted will not be all on one side. England may capture vessels and even bombard or destroy our cities and towns near the coast, but she cannot invade with any safety to her armies. On the other hand, it would be Ireland's opportunity to throw off the British yoke, or secure her full rights, and Canada might too fall a prey to our invading armies. A million of men in Canada would make quick work of the job. Wilmington Messenger.

HE'D DONE DONE IT.

The Brilliant Performance of a Fool Fusionist.

We have had occasions from time to time to give instances showing the utter incompetence of many of those fools whom the late Fred Douglass Memorial Association created magistrates. One of the most ridiculous occurrences that we have yet heard of, comes to our ears this week.

It seems that some days ago, a couple bearing a license to marry, issued by the register of deeds of Rutherford county, went before a Fusion magistrate in McDowell county and invoked his services. The ignorant read over the marriage service and pronounced them man and wife.

After wrestling with the blank for several days and being too ignorant to make the proper return, the Fusionist called upon a Democratic magistrate of this county and asked him to help make a return of the license. Upon investigation, the Democrat learned that the license was issued in Rutherford county and that there were no witnesses to the marriage.

"Why," said he to the Fusionist, "you can't marry these people."

"But, by G-d, I've done done it!" exclaimed the Fusionist.

The democrat gravely advised him to summon the pair before him and undo his illegal work by reading the marriage ceremony "backwards."

The Fusionist took the advice, unmarried the couple he had married a week or ten days before, then escorted them to the Democratic magistrate who married them legally.

If Jesse Holmes, the fool killer, should visit North Carolina about this time, there would be many vacancies on the bench magisterial to be filled. —Rutherfordton Democrat.

The Onion.

A medical authority sounds the praise of onions. They are excellent blood purifiers. Boiled onions used frequently in a family of children will ward off many diseases to which the little ones are subject. As an external application they are successfully used in cases of croup and ear-ache. They are good for the complexion, and a lady who had a wonderfully clear, fine complexion attributes it to the liberal use of onions as food. People troubled with wakefulness may be assured a good night's rest often if just before retiring they will eat a raw onion. When troubled with a hard cough, if a raw onion is eaten, the phlegm will loosen immediately, and can be easily expectorated.

Woman as a Toast.

Woman—The sweetest creature the Lord ever made.

Woman—The better half of man. (For the use of a sour old bachelor.)

Woman—The source of help, happiness and heaven.

Woman—She needs no eulogy, she speaks for herself.

Woman—A creature "nobly planned to warn, to comfort and command."

Woman—Once there was a woman, sir, and, here she is!

Woman—The fairest work of the great Author; the edition is large, and no man should be without a copy.

Woman—The tyrant we love; the friend we trust.

Woman—God bless her, the Boss of all creation. —N. Y. World.

Some Differences of Opinion.

A survey of the newspaper comments on the late message reveals this: The Administration organs toot in harmony and give out a song of united admiration; the Republican press is almost entirely caustic and united in opposition to much that is said; the silver papers are as one in hearty condemnation of the financial views presented; the Mng-wumps are pleased and patronizing; the independent papers do not say much in censure, but rather approve than oppose. So much for the newspapers. Wilmington Messenger.

AN OLD LOVE LETTER.

Yankee Parson Williams to the Widow Parsons in the Year 1777.

The old parsonage in which Parson Williams lived in East Hartford for 55 years is well known to Hartford people. This letter was written to the young widow who became the old minister's second wife. His first wife was his cousin, the daughter of Rector Elisha Williams, president of Yale college. The letter is not quite as affectionate as the old Puritan love letters of John Winthrop, but there are a delicacy and courtousness about it and enough love to make it interesting.

HARTFORD, May 8, 1777.

DEAR MADAM—Never did time pass more slowly with me; a Leaden age seems to roll on in every hour till the 12th of June; when by the Divine favor, & thro' your obliging goodness, I look to be made as happy as the present state of things will admit. I would indeed, cheek impatient desires, and over eager expectation, considering the extreme uncertainty of all created Bliss, and as not knowing what a day may bring forth; especially in this season of public calamity & dark and doubtful expectation; yet with humble deference, may I then hope the crowning my wishes, and completion of my outward felicity, in being permitted to call you mine, and becoming most intimately & inviolably yours; than which I have no greater ambition.

I last evening returned from New Haven, extremely fatigued, & bereaved with some return of my late disorders owing to riding hard and in bad weather, but hope soon to recruit. Found your old acquaintance there & family well; O, how happy for me that you went not thither; re-ferved by kind heaven, I trust, to Bless me & my family; and I hope not unhappy for you not to be sure, if all the Little in my power can contribute to your comfort and satisfaction. * * * Expect to go to New Haven again the next week in this month, to attend another meeting of the corporation if able; and mean while to be employed in providing for the scholars in the neighboring Towns; so that I am like to have very little time to attend my own concerns at present. * * * Will a gracious Creator give you health and every blessing. * * * whatever others tell of a blind being that disposes their hearts, I despite their Low Images of Love; and to adopt the words of Andromache's Gallant, I have not a thought that relates to you, which I cannot with confidence bestow the all seeing power to bless me in * * * may he be your perpetual guide and director, and fill lead you on in the bright paths of unfilled Virtue & peace. * * * this is an uncommon way of talking to Ladies; but you have a nobleness of Spirit, which exalts you above being moved by the flatteries of parasites, whose tongues are like jugglers hands, and their brightens and ad dreses used to gain attention & admiration, while they pass false play upon the fair sex. * * * my esteem is solid & rational, & my passion disinterested, which will make it my constant endeavor, that the object thereof may be as happy as possible.

I wrote you immediately after my return from you, which I trust you have received. * * * and add no further Now, tho' I have a thousand things to say, * * * please to prefer due respects to your good mother and Brother, and charming Sister, Mrs. Oufahing, not exclusive of her worthy partner & family. * * * and if you would favor me with a Line, acquainting me with your state of health, &c. It would lay an additional obligation on him, who is (my dearest madam) in all fincerity, & with utmost ardor of affection, ever your's, ELIASH WILLIAMS.

To Mrs. Sarah Parsons, Waltham. —Hartford Courant.

Some Actresses.

"Actresses who can't act were perhaps never more numerous than they now are," said one of our best dramatic critics a little time since. "They have pretty faces, charming figures and can smile most bewitchingly. What more can the most exacting playgoer require?"

In like way Charles Mathews, writing in 1875 to a country manager, said: "From my experience of provincial managers I should say that a young and pretty woman who can't act, and who knows she can't, is an acquisition, particularly when she wants no salary for her ignorance. Now, such a one my son asks me to offer you." The lady is clever off the stage and has the advantages I have named above, and he gives me his word of honor that so far as he knows she can't act a bit and looks upon a salary the first season as positively nauseous. She is anxious to come to your theater and show her insufficiency or anything else the public may require. She may be a genius or a duffer. She doesn't know what she can do, being like the man who didn't know whether he could play on the fiddle or not, having never tried. She wishes, at any rate, to put her foot on the stage, which generally means 'putting her foot in it.' Will you give her a trial? If she turns out worth anything, I pledge myself to remove her at the earliest possible opportunity. If not, you are welcome to her so long as you find her thoroughly incapable."

An Impossibility.

It is related in the Washington Star that on one occasion Senator Edmunds was standing with a visiting English statesman on the high steps at the west side of the capitol looking down Pennsylvania avenue toward the treasury department. The stranger had seen much to interest and amuse him in Washington.

"You have a wonderful people here, Mr. Senator. Nothing can be impossible with such go ahead inhabitants."

"Oh, yes," said the senator, "some things are impossible here. It is impossible to march a brass band down that avenue and have a crowd of colored people go in the opposite direction at the same time."

BESIDE A GRAVE.

Out of the grass that is over thy breast,
Heaving my coming, a bird took her flight.
Where shall she travel for holier rest,
Scattering dew on the robes of the night?
Was she thy soul for a moment returned
Out of God's hand to the temple of rust,
Touching the bosom of clay she has spurned,
Leaving her tears on thy forehead of dust?

Friend of my heart, I was sad all the day,
Hearing thee ask for me, hearing thee sigh.
Now I am coming at the evening to pray
Under the darkening dome of the sky,
Calling by blossom and crying by bird,
Hav' I not felt thee in life and in death?
All of thy tender, imperatives heard,
Comfort thee, comfort thee, friend in the dark.

What shall I tell thee? Night changes to morn.
Woodlands are sweet with the call of the dove.
Motherly finches contented in thorn
Nurse for their husbands a nestful of love.
What is all beauty if thou have no part?
Would that life's rule might be dead for thy sake.

Friend, as I moan from the turf on my heart,
Oh, to be sleeping and know thee awake!
—Norman Gale in Windsor Magazine.

The Ideal Schoolboy.

The ideal schoolboy is an orderly machine, always obedient, receptive, submissive, ready in the cricket field and with real or simulated enthusiasm for football, despising all other games, and conservative to the backbone. He is the darling of the master, who sends him home with glowing reports and arms full of prize books. It seems never to occur to any one that there may be natures to which the classical languages and history make no appeal, who have not the gift of the mathematician, and who do not even care to play at cricket or football. If such appear in a public school, they have a bad time of it, dragging out their miserable days at the bottom of the form, regarded as fools by the masters and as muffs by the boys. And yet among these school failures there may be Liebig or Darwin or at any rate there may be, and commonly there is, the material out of which good and useful citizens are made if only they had a chance to show what they can do.—Nature.

Rough on Chelsea.

A Chelsea (Mass.) man recently died, says the Boston Budget, and in a conversation between him and a friend at a Spiritualistic seance the following colloquy ensued:

The friend, on being called for by the departed one, asked, "Who's that?"

"Your old chum, Jim Wilson."

"Well, Jim, I suppose you are partaking of celestial glory?"

"Not a bit of it. I struck the other place."

"Great Scott, that's awful!"

The spirit smiled. "I know that's the popular idea," it said, "but my boy, it's a great sight better than Chelsea."

The story would indicate that the medium must have played to very poor business in Chelsea.

Stage Realism.

One of my best friends in Plymouth was Benjamin Haydon. His son, the artist of celebrity, was at that time a spirited and intelligent little fellow about 10 years of age, who used to listen to my songs and laugh heartily at my jokes whenever I dined at his father's. One evening I was playing Sharp in "The Living Vagabond" when he and my friend Benjamin were in the stage box, and on my repeating the words, "I have had nothing to eat since last Monday was a fortnight," little Haydon exclaimed in a tone audible to the whole house: "What a whopper! Why you dined at my father's house this afternoon."—Bernard's "Retrospection of the Stage."

Rotten Row.

It is a royal prerogative, belonging exclusively to the reigning sovereigns, to drive down the middle of Rotten row, London. The queen has only availed herself once or twice of the right. From this ancient privilege came the name Rotten row, whence the corruption "Rotten row."

Poverty Cottage.

If ever household affections and loves are graceful things, they are graceful in the poor. The ties that bind the wealthy and the proud to home may be forged on earth, but those which link the poor man to his humble hearth are of the true metal, and bear the stamp of heaven.—Dickens.

North Carolina has a mica output of 100,000 pounds a year. New Hampshire produces about 25,000 pounds, South Dakota 13,000 pounds and New Mexico 1,000 pounds. The mica of North Carolina is of the best quality and brings the highest price.

The proverbial wisdom of the populace at gates, on roads and in markets instructs him who studies man more fully than a thousand spies ostentatiously arranged.—Lavater.
