GREENVILLE, N. C., THURSDAY, JANUARY 9, 1896.

No. 332

I am making room for a dandy Spring Stock and will lower prices on all goods to accommodate them. The new year caught us with a little too many goods to carry over so will rush them out at bottom figures. See me for great bargains.

C. T. MUNFORD, Next Door to Bank, Greenville.

A SOUTHERN VOLUNTEER.

Yes, sir, I fought with Stonewall,
And faced the fight with Lee;
But if this here union goes to war,
Make one more gun for me!
I didn't shrink from Sherman
As he galloped to the sea;
But if this here union goes to war,
Make one more gun for me!

I was with 'em at Manassas—
The bully boys in gray;
I heard the thunders roarin'
Round Stonewall Jackson's way;
And many a time this sword of mine
Has blazed the route for Lee,
But if this old union goes to war
Make one more gun for me?

I am not so full o' fightin',
Nor half so full o' fun
As I was back in the sixties
When I shouldered my old gun;
It may be that my hair is white—
Such things you know must be;
But if this old union's in for fight,
Make one more gun for me.

I hain't forgot my raisin'—
Nor how, in sixty-two,
Or thereabouts, with battle shouts,
I charged the boys in blue;
And I say, I fought with Stonewall,
And blazed the way with Lee,
But if this old union's in for war,
Make one more gun for me!

D S Spain was refunded the amount of poll tax charged to him in Falkland township, he being a resident of Greenville township.

Jas. White, of Contentnea; John Allen, of Greenville; M J Briley, of Bethel; John Mewborn, of Swift Creek and Reuben Harris, of Farmville were exempt from poll tax for 1895.

The Sheriff made his report showing that he had laid out and established a public road in Bethel township, in accordance with a previous order of the Board.

When the civil war opened the wealth of this country was estimated at $16,000,000,000. In 1890 it had reached $65,000,000,000, and in case of a foreign war we should now be an undivided people. The most remarkable fact connected with these figures is that the United States accumulated three times as much wealth during the thirty years ending with 1890 as in the 250 years preceding 1860.

IF YOU HAD A LOAD OF WOOD TO SELL

and told every man you met that you had a load of wood to sell, and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell, it would, in course of time, become pretty well circulated that you had a load of wood to sell; but why not cut it short—not the wood, but the method—and place a good ad in a good newspaper and tell everybody at once. "Delays are dangerous," and a good newspaper would start in where the last man left off and keep on telling everybody that you had a load of wood to sell, or anything else. RIDING ON THE RAIL.

The Charlotte News says that two weeks ago Mr. St. John issued an iron clad order relating to people traveling over his road on passes. Each conductor was given a list of those who are entitled to travel without a pass. The list is very short and includes the president, general manager and one or two others. Superintendent Moncre, for instance, can travel over his own division without a pass, but if he gets on another division he must show his carboard. No conductor or engineer, off duty, can travel without a pass. The rule was to go into effect January 1st, and go into effect it did, as a good many old pass-holders have found to their grief.

On January 1st the traveling auditor got on a Carolina Central train at Monroe, and in the course of time here came along through the car one of the S. A. L.'s handsomely uniformed conductors with his punch, snipping holes in the tickets. He stopped when he reached the auditor and held out his hand. "Ticket, please," was all he said. The auditor looked astonished. "I have a pass, sir," he said. "Pass, please," was all the conductor replied, still holding out his hand. The auditor said he had left his pass at home. "Cash, please," responded the conductor. The auditor was near about paralyzed, and began to parley. The conductor reached for the bell cord and the auditor handed up the cash.

A director of the Seaboard Air Line Company, who lives in Charlotte, had to go down into his pocket for $8.32 yesterday because he had "forgotten" his pass. In three days the conductors have "held up" the auditor, a director, two of the attorneys for the road, two engineers, one conductor and one station agent. All had to pay the cash. On the K. S., "old things have passed away and all things have become new," or words to that effect. If you want to ride on a pass on that road you have to show it. Capt. Harry Johnston came up from Monroe yesterday morning and went back last night and Capt. George Welsh pulled him for 65 cents each way. It was Capt. Johnston who had pulled the director for $8.32.

Thoughts of a Queen.

We are always the martyrs of our own faults.
The power of doing a good action is happiness enough.
Jealousy in a lover is a homage; in a husband an insult.
Happiness is like the echo; it answers but does not come.
Misfortune may make us proud; suffering makes us humble.
One must indeed be unhappy to attempt suicide a second time.
Great misfortune lends greatness even to an insignificant person.
Maternal love is an instinct; but there are instincts of divine origin.
A beast in pain seeks solitude. Man alone makes a parade of his misery.

SWEETHEARTS ALWAYS.

DANIEL O'CONNELL.

If sweethearts were sweethearts always,
Whether as maid or wife,
No drop would be half as pleasant
In the mingled draught of life.

But the sweetheart has smiles and blushes
When the wife has frowns and sighs,
And the wife's have a wrathful glitter
For the glow of the sweetheart's eyes.

If lovers were lovers always,
The same to sweetheart and wife,
Who would change for a future of Eden
The joys of this checkered life?

But husbands grow grave and silent,
And care on the anxious brow
Oft replaces the sunshine that perished
With the words of the marriage vow.

Happy is he whose sweetheart
Is wife and sweetheart still;
Whose voice, as of old, can charm him;
Whose kiss, as of old, can thrill;

Who has plucked the rose to find ever
Its beauty and fragrance increase,
As the flush of passion is mellowed,
In love's unmeasured peace;

Who sees in the step a lightness;
Who finds in the form a grace;
Who reads an unaltered brightness
In the witchery of the face,

Undimmed and unchanged. Ah, happy
Is he crowned with such a life!
Who drinks the wife pledging the sweetheart,
And toasts in the sweetheart the wife!

Twelve Conundrums.

- What is that which increases, the more you take from it?—A hole.
- Why are coals in London like towns given up to plunder?—Because they are sacked and burnt.
- Why is a gate-post like a potato?—Because they are both put into the ground to propagate.
- What word may be pronounced quicker by adding a syllable to it?—Quick.
- What is that which Adam never saw, never possessed, and yet gave two to each of his children?—Parents.
- What is that we often see made, but never see after it is made?—A noise.
- Why is chicken-pie like a gunsmith's shop?—Because it contains fowl-in-pieces.
- What is that which no one wishes to have and no one wishes to lose?—A bald head.
- What is the difference between a sailor and a beer drinker?—One puts his sail up and the other puts his ale down.
- What is that which is above all human imperfections, and yet shelters and protects the weakest and wickedest as well as the wisest and best of mankind?—A hat.
- What is that which is often brought to the table, always cut, and never eaten?—A pack of cards.
- What are the most unsociable things in the world? Milestones, for you never see two of them together.

The Insanity Dodge.

The Supreme Court of the United States has made a ruling to the effect that when the plea of insanity is raised in a murder case, the burden of proof of sanity is on the prosecution. The court says that "if the whole evidence including that supplied by the legal presumption of sanity, does not exclude, beyond reasonable doubt, the hypothesis of insanity, the prisoner is entitled to an acquittal of the specific offense charged." Whether or not this is good law need not enter into the question. It has been laid down by the court of last resort, it will be held as law in the lower courts, and it really seems as if, instead of helping to secure conviction more easily, it will tend to encourage the continuance of the use of the insanity plea. The plea has tended to lessen respect for courts and juries, and has worked to the detriment of justice, and now in the face of this ruling there will be more determined efforts made to have homicide persons go free, on the ground that they are lunatics. States will have to go more largely into the expert business than ever.—Durham Sun.

AMATEUR MASSAGE.

The Different Movements of the Hands and What They Are For.

The benefits of massage are so well known that it is needless to recount them, and no ill person should be denied the invigorating effects of "the laying on of hands." Many persons are kept from the curative effects of massage by the thought of expense, skilled masseuses receiving high wages. To enable the home attendant or friend in some degree to take her place is the aim of this article.

The skilled masseuse must know the body, with the location of nerves and muscles, that he or she may be able to give such as need it special treatment.

Massage supplies to the feeble the exercise they are unable to obtain otherwise and includes a series of movements of limbs, fingers and toes, as well as the strokes of the masseuse's hands. These, somewhat violent, should not be tried without the advice of the physician, and no direction for their use is included in this article.

The strokes given in massage are for restfulness or for the purpose of rousing blood vessels and other organs to action and may be light or hard, the same variety of stroke being varied to suit the patient. No rule can be given for this, as judgment is something given only by nature and experience.

Massage must never be given to weary, and the masseuse should have a hand firm, but soft, flexible, sensitive and strong. Even an amateur may have this kind of hand, and practice will make it full of healing to the sick.

The masseuse must stand or sit in a position comfortable for herself, or otherwise she will be unable to give comfort. It is the rule to rub the limbs toward the body. Beginning at tip of fingers, rub with steady stroke toward the shoulder, varying the force according to the wish of the patient, and covering the whole arm. Starting with the toes, rub toward the thighs. The rubbing of the abdomen is in a circular course. On the back it follows the course of the backbone and must have some force to it.

With all the motions, in a general treatment the arms are taken first, then legs, chest, abdomen, back—from one end to the other of the spine.

Rubbing with the flat hand is the ordinary method known to every one. There is also rubbing with the tips of the fingers, which is very soothing when done lightly and often induces sleep when practiced on the head and wrists.

An invigorating motion is given by resting the base of the hand on arm or body, placing tips of fingers firmly on the skin and drawing toward the base of hand, working in this manner from wrist to shoulder and from foot to thigh. The hand is never flat when doing this, but bent to give purchase to the action of the fingers.

It will be found that the motion of kneading the flesh, which is almost precisely that of kneading bread, will give both stimulus and a restful sensation to the invalid. On the limbs this is taken from side to side, not up and down, as the former, but like it in that it starts at the wrists and ankles, working upward.

Last of all, and often omitted save in cases of sluggish circulation, comes percussion, which is slapping the entire body from hand to shoulder, from foot upward, the head being omitted. This may be done with the entire hand flat, or with it bent so that only the fingers, thumb and base of hand touch the flesh, and must be done carefully, as even gentle blows on tender surfaces are often not beneficial.

Practice will make these hints plain and enable any one with a sound body and sympathetic nature to aid in curing the sick or in making their sufferings more easily borne, and there are many women and children who will take massage from those they love who will not take it from a more skilled masseuse who is a stranger. These notes are written to those who long to help others, and who know nothing of massage save rubbing, which soon wearies both persons concerned. By using these four motions a beginner can give an hour's massage without becoming greatly fatigued, and their benefit is marked to the sufferer.—New York Ledger.

A Matter of Principle.

"Tommy, do you love your teacher?"
"I would if she wasn't my teacher," said Tommy. "She's awful nice."—Indianapolis Journal.

ODDITIES OF DRESS.

National Characteristics of the Attire of European Women.

It is strange that whereas in every country of Europe, among the higher classes as well as among the peasantry, a distinctive peculiarity of costume exists, there is absolutely nothing of the kind in North America. The newness of the country does not explain this, as in South American states, which are younger than our nation, a national costume is the rule.

The Russian "kakochnik" is one of the most charming articles of adornment in Europe. It originated among the Muscovite peasant women, but has been adopted during this century by the ladies of the court, who have elaborated it into a red velvet cap embroidered in precious stones. It is worn with the red velvet court mantle and jeweled stomacher brought out on state occasions, and more than outrivals the plumes and veil worn at the English court.

The Spanish mantilla is well known and has been somewhat vulgarized on the comic stage. The national dress of Roumania has escaped that fate. Carmen Sylva always wears it when at home. It consists of a white linen sleeveless garment made with as few folds as possible and somewhat resembling the Egyptian "fellaheen." It is thickly embroidered in a cross stitch arabesque in bright red, sky blue, orange, yellow and black silk, intermingled with gold and silver threads, a band of similar embroidery encircling the waist, with streamers of colored ribbon falling therefrom in a shimmering cascade. The hair is braided in four plaits loosely tied with chains of sequins and the feet are incased in crimson kid slippers strewn with seed pearls.

In Poland princesses and peasants wear around their throats several rows of huge coral beads, and so loath to part with these supposed bringers of good luck are they that when a grande dame is arrayed for a ball and is obliged to put on pearls and diamonds she carries her coral beads in her pocket.

In Austria-Hungary is found the greatest divergence in the matter of costume. The garb of the Hungarian peasant is so fetching that the wealthy ladies copy it when on their estates. It consists of a short puffy skirt of crimson and yellow, a small sleeveless velvet bodice imprisoning a snowy shirt, stiffly starched and embroidered in contrasting colors, and an artistically knotted head scarf from under which escapes a thick braid of hair entwined with colored ribbons.

In the plains of Provence and in the Normandy lands the wealthy still cling to their little lace cap, the intrinsic value of which is some times inestimable, made as they are of rare point lace fastened down with quaintly chased golden pins, heirlooms in families.—New York

Where to Plant Watermelons.

Several young farmers were discussing the raising of watermelons, says a correspondent of the New York Post. Many opinions were expressed as to the most desirable soil, the best seed, the best fertilizer and the like, and finally one of the group accosted an aged colored man who happened to pass. The question was stated, and the young man said:

"Come now, Uncle Winter, what is your opinion about all this? You must have made many a fine crop in your time."

The old man's eyes twinkled. He took off his hat, scratched his gray wool and answered:

"I ain't rightly sure 'bout de 'lowance of fertilizer, neider as to de 'visable kind ob seed what is more better dan common. But I's dead sure able to pick out de best patch for plantin watermillion, whedder de land is een dis county or de 'j'inin [adjoining] one. Boss," he added, pausing to emphasize his words, "I done figure it out long time dat de perfectest place for raisin 'millions is de patch what faces all de windows een de big house up and down, and neber is lost sight ob."

The Fatal Postscript.

"Are you fond of etchings?" asked a young man who had taken the hostess' pretty niece from the country down to supper.

"As a general thing, yes," she answered, looking up into his eyes with an encouraging frankness that threatened havoc to his heart, "but," she added hastily, as he started to say something pretty, "not any to-night, thank you—it's rather late. A very little lemonade is all I care for."—New York Messenger.

Latham, Alexander & Co., of New York, have issued a cotton statement under date of the 4th in which they estimate the crop at 6,810,093 bales. The price of cotton, they say, is now 2.59 cents dearer than last year, 0.17 dearer than in 1894, and 1.65 cheaper than in 1893 for March contracts. Since November 30th the price of cotton has declined 60 points nearly half of which has been recovered.

Entered And Lost Her Teeth.

A few days ago a pretty girl, attractively costumed, tripped up to the stamp window in the postoffice building, laid down two cents and was given a postage stamp. While she was moistening the paste a draught from the corridor caused her to sneeze. Out of her mouth flew a set of pearly teeth, which a bystander hastily picked up, and turned to present them to the owner, but she had fled.

Then the teeth were taken to the superintendent, who holds them in the name of the United States, as trustee for the owner. If she does not appear, and it is not believed that she will, the teeth will be confiscated.

A Hebrew Marriage.

To-night at 8 o'clock there will be a Jewish marriage in high life at the residence of M. Greenburg, corner of Mangum and Holloway streets. The contracting parties will be Jacob Rosenbloom, of Pitt county, and Miss Ida Gladstein, sister of M. Gladstein, of this city. The ceremony will be performed by Acting Rabbi Haleck.

They were united in wedlock this morning at 11 o'clock, according to the laws of this country, by Squire J. S. Durham, at the residence of the bride's brother, on Pine street. This was done so as to conform with our laws, but the true marriage, as they accept it, will take place tonight. It will be a quiet home affair and only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties will be present. Both are very prominent young people and have a large number of friends among both Hebrews and Gentiles, who will wish them much happiness in their new relation.—Durham Sun 7th.

WRITE YOUR VIEWS.

And Say What You Think Will Help Greenville.

About this time every person in Greenville should be thinking of what can be done during the coming year for the betterment of the town, in a business way, in a moral way, in a social way, or any honest way that will help along our bright little town. No doubt a number of our people can offer good suggestions, and the REFLECTOR is going to give them an opportunity to express themselves. Our edition of January 18th will be open to any letters that may be received upon any subject relating to the advancement of Greenville. We would be glad to have a word from our ministers, and professional men, our business men, our tobacco men, or any person that is interested in the welfare of the town. Give us your views and see how interesting that issue of the REFLECTOR can be made in mentioning Greenville's needs. Even one suggestion from all interested might result in great good by causing concentration of thought and concert of action. Don't wait until the 18th to send in your letters but let us have them a day or so ahead. If more letters are received than we have room for in the issue of the 18th we will continue to give them in later issues. Let us hear from our representative men on this subject.

The train was two hours late Wednesday night. Some coal cars off the track on the Norfolk & Carolina road caused the delay.

A full supply of blanks for land mortgages, chattel mortgages, deeds and crop liens at REFLECTOR office. We can now fill all orders.

Prices For Lights.

Elsewhere in this issue is published a schedule of prices per month for electric lights. There will be no cost for putting in lights at the time of building the plant but on all put in after the plant is up there will be a small charge. See S. C. Hamilton for particulars.
