A PLEA FOR THE BOYS.

For women to "henpeck" their husbands,
Is all very good and right;
It will keep them from drinking or gambling,
Or going down the street at night.
Though the husband may do a bit of "kicking,"
And think it quite hard at the time;
It will save him many a penny,
Or perhaps, better, many a dime.

It will also make him more healthy,
As well as more wealthy and even more wise;
For Franklin has said, go early to bed.
And likewise for us early to rise.

But can anyone prove, why the girl who is in love,
Should her fellow so completely control;
That he dare not be found in the portion of town,
Where other fair dames oft stroll?

If someone should find such a law in the code,
It would annul the great cause for which Washington rowed
Across the Delaware, with comrades so true and so tried,
Who later, in liberty's name, fought, bled and died.

Now girls let me plead (and my motive is good,)
For the boys who would enjoy "old liberty" if they could,
That you loosen the reins and give them some slack,
For if they love you, they'll flirt a little and then come back.

For instance, when passing some other girl's home
With your fellow, and his eyes are enclined to roam,
Why, let him look, surely that would do no harm,
If it would—well—I don't know—p'raps there was cause for alarm.
A LOVER OF LIBERTY.

Winterville Items.

WINTERVILLE N. C., Jan. 27.
Nehemiah Garris has been very low with typhoid fever but is improving now.

F. W. Braxton is at the point of death with consumption.

Mrs. A. G. Cox has been very sick with La Grippe but is convalescent.

The Winterville school has enrolled 55 scholars and more coming next Monday.

The Cox Manufacturing Co., are very busy building carts and wagons and selling all they make.

The colored church will be completed in a few days. Hix.

Bethel Items.

BETHEL, N. C., Jan. 27, 1896.
Dr. R. J. Grimes went to Greenville on business Friday.

W. G. Lamb, of Williamston, spent Friday here.

T. A. Carson, of Coakley, Edgecombe county, was here Friday.

W. W. Thomas has moved his family to town and will occupy the Whitehurst house on Pleasant street.

E. A. Cherry went to Greenville this evening.

J. R. Jenkins, County Surveyor, went to Ayden to-day.

Ward & Barnhill have built an office at their mill near the depot.

Miss Lizzie Hammond, of Edgecombe, is visiting her sister Mrs. D. S. Harper.

THE BONNER CASE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Nothing of interest to report from the case today. J. H. Small, for the State, has occupied most of the day in his address to the jury, and three other speeches are yet to follow. If the remaining speeches are as long as those already made the case cannot be given to the jury before sometime Thursday.

False Report.

Monday evening somewhat of a sensational rumor was going around that on Saturday night a burglar had entered the dwelling of J. W. Morgan, on Second street. We saw Mr. Morgan to ascertain the facts of the matter, and he said there was no foundation whatever for such a report.

A New Parsonage.

The committee to whom the quarterly conference of the Methodist church committed the building of a new parsonage had its first meeting Monday afternoon, and organized with Rev. N. H. D. Wilson, chairman and D. D. Haskett, Secretary and Treasurer. Messrs D. D. Haskett, G. E. Harris, J. R. Moye and A. L. Blow were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions. Jarvis and Blow were designated as persons to receive bids for the old building. The ladies of the church have agreed to raise $300 and are already at work.

Oakley Sparks.

OAKLEY, N. C., Jan. 27, 1896.
There being rumors of war in the and your correspondent thought it best to seek a place of safety, hence his silence, but the war clouds having blown over, he comes forth again.

T. F. Nelson has moved into his new store.

Bryant & Whichard, of Parmele, have moved to this place and opened a grocery and bar.

W. T. Savage, of Mount Olive, spent Thursday night here.

Misses Ella Keel and Jennie Jenkins, of Robersonville, were visiting the family of J. T. Jenkins, of this place, last week.

Mrs. Lucretia James left here on Thursday morning train to visit her granddaughter, Mrs. J. E. Hines, near Rocky Mount.

A Pauper Married.

Francis Coon, a pauper in Davie county's home for the aged and infirm, ran away from that institution some months ago and went to South Carolina where he took unto himself a wife. He returned to the poor house with his bride a few weeks ago, at which place they have since been making their home.

The county commissioners, at their last meeting, tried to get rid of the woman by claiming that she was a charge belonging to the State of South Carolina, but finally decided that as she was the wife of Coon, a Davie pauper, that she now belonged to that county, so they were both ordered back to the poor house. Both Coon and his wife are old and half witted.

The Times says Coon was asked "how he managed to get money enough to get married?" and he replied by stating that "you do not have to get license in South Carolina; all you have to do, he said, is to get your sweetheart, go to a 'noted republican,' (meaning a notary public) and he marries you free of charge."

A Long Reach.

The way to make money reach a long way is to invest it right. The first cost is the point where a shortsighted man stumbles on the road to economy. He thinks it extravagant to pay $14 for a suit of our clothes when $13 will buy a suit somewhere else. He forgets that the $13 suit won't last very long or look very well. Maybe it will fade the first time the sun shines on it.

Price and quality ought always to be considered together. Price alone means nothing.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 25TH, 1896.

The hustling city of Charlotte does not go anything by halves, even taking a measles epidemic on a large scale when one comes along. A correspondent of the Observer, however, wants to know if the Atlanta Exposition was not responsible for giving the measles such a footing in Charlotte.

When people talk about there being a better State than North Carolina, every potato slightly winks its eye, every cabbage shakes its head, every beet gets red in the face, every onion feels stronger, every oat field is shocked, rye strokes its beard, corn sticks up its ears, and every foot of land kicks. The horses even denounce the statement with a neigh and the printers grab their shooting sticks.—Durham Sun.

There never was a year when political movement in North Carolina began as early as it has this. Here are the Republicans of far-away Alleghany county called to assemble in convention the first Monday in February to consult as to the welfare of the party. Executive committees have been called together in many counties. From the signs of the times it appears that we are to have no end of politics in North Carolina in this year of grace.—Charlotte Observer.

A Pleasant Winter.

Speaking of the weather, confusion has been brought upon all those prophets who last fall prophesied, from the flight of wild geese, the thickness of the bark on the hickory nuts, and from other outward and visible signs that this was to be a winter of unusual severity. As a matter of fact it has been one of the most delightful winters in history. There have been a few—very few—cold days and nights; sharp mornings and crisp evenings have not been lacking; but the cold has not been severe and there has been a remarkable absence of snow and rain, bright skies bending upon us almost every day. It is now too late in the season to expect long-continued cold weather, though there may be cold days yet. The spring may be, indeed, is likely to be, late and cold, as cold goes in the spring time, but the danger of a rough winter has practically passed. This means that there has been a saving in expense in the purchasing of clothing, in the consumption of fuel, in horse-feed and in many directions. Most of all it means that length has been given to life in many cases, for one of the wisest and most observant men among us has said that a winter of unusual severity is invariably followed by many deaths among the old people, and it is true.—Statesville Landmark.

A POPULAR MISTAKE.

You may think that all wisdom will perish with you;
It will not.

Or that men of your standing are probably few;
They are not.

That the plans you bring forward are clear as the day,
You may think that your judgments are always O. K.,
That all men who oppose you wear long ears and bray;
They do not.

You may think that your debtors are rogues, one and all;
They are not.

That your creditors fiendishly plot your downfall;
They do not.

You may think that most men are the devil's own kin,
And you only are guiltless in this world of sin;
But you're not.

No heart that still beats is beyond love's control;
Surely not.

There's a spark from above in each wandering soul;
Is there not?

Try to touch the warm spot in your fellow man's breast,
You will find the heart warmer than you ever guessed,
And your heart will not suffer, my friend, in the quest;
Surely not.

—William S. Woods in the Ram's Horn.

A Strange Looking Family.

Rather an odd sight was unloaded on the town this morning from the Columbia train. It was a family of 20 negroes. As they came up town the mother walked in front of the procession. She had a leather belt around her waist, and stuck in it was a big pistol. The father brought up the rear and he carried an old fashioned flint lock rifle. They were going to Texas.—Charlotte News.

IF YOU HAD A LOAD OF WOOD TO SELL

and told every man you met that you had a load of wood to sell, and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell and every man you met would in turn tell every man he met that you had a load of wood to sell, it would, in course of time, become pretty well circulated that you had a load of wood to sell; but why not cut it short—not the wood, but the method—and place a good ad in a good newspaper and tell everybody at once. "Delays are dangerous," and a good newspaper would start in where the last man left off and keep on telling everybody that you had a load of wood to sell; or anything else. PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—Well Named.—“Why do you refer to the trees as acrobats?” “Because their limbs are always in the air.”—Detroit Free Press.

—Bob.—“Ah, Jack, did your rich uncle remember you in his will?” “Jack.”—“Yes. He inserted a clause requesting his executors to collect at once all the loans he had made me.”

—Where He Drew the Line.—“Your friend, Van Dooze, is a great practical joker, I believe?” “Yes; but he isn't my friend any more.” “What's the matter?” “I played a joke on him the other day.”—Chicago Record.

—Pastor.—Do you ever play with bad little boys, Johnny?” Johnny.—“Yes, sir.” Pastor.—“I'm surprised, Johnny! Why don't you play with good little boys?” Johnny.—“Their mamas won't let 'em!”—Chicago Record.

—It was a very cold morning, and Bobby came rushing into the house very much excited. “Mommer,” he cried, “there's something the matter with me. Please send for the doctor. I'm breathing fog!”—Harper's Round Table.

—The locksmith came out, looking knobby, with a big rose in his button-hole. His countenance was screwed into a smile, but none knew the key to his happiness. Just then a creditor appeared, and the locksmith, making a spring, bolted down the street, where, after securing shelter, he barred himself in.

—A certain precocious baby had been keenly watched by his fond mother, who wanted to discover the first signs of future genius. If he scratched the furniture with a pencil, he was to be an author; if he opened a book and made a noise with his mouth, he was to be a preacher; if he imitated some action of an older person, he was to be an actor. One day he had been forcibly emptying the pockets of his “big brother,” who, struck with an idea, ran to his mother and cried: “Oh, mamma, I know what the baby's going to be—a pickpocket!”

TOASTED TO A TURN.

Sister Caroline Got Even with the Man Who Had Despoiled Her Love.

There was a scene and a sensation at the Calvary Baptist church (colored) on a recent Sunday. A “covenant” or experience meeting was in progress, and Sister Caroline, of some 50 summers, had the floor. She began in the usual orthodox form of telling her experience, but shifted to a recital of her personal grievance against Brother Jackson, whose arrival with his bride upon his arm had turned the course of her remarks. The way she roasted him was highly entertaining, if not edifying. Rev. Mr. Parish attempted to call her down, but she insisted upon having her say out. Unable to control her, he sought to overcome her harangue with a song, and so gave out a hymn. For awhile the sister's voice could be heard above the united tones of the congregation. She continued to talk against the overwhelming odds until her voice gave way under the strain and she fell exhausted in the seat.

Here is the way she began her experience recital:

“I praise de Lawd dat he has 'lowed me to lib to see dis day. De great Almighty is er merciful God. He is a just Lawd, an' will not stand round an' see eny ob his poor creeters suffer wrong. De Lawd has been berry he'pful to me. He has fed me when I wuz hungry, an' I have been naked an' he clothed me. He hab put money in my purse.” Just then Brother Jackson appeared with his bride and the sister changed the key of her discourse.

“Oh, Lawd, I thank thee that thou has been so good to me. I thank thee, oh, Lawd, that thou hast 'nabled me to feed Brother Jackson, who done got married to another in violation of his promise to marry me. I thank thee that thou hast 'nabled me to give him six shirts and has helped me to raise de eight dollars for him to buy a pair of new shoes. Oh, Lawd, I thank thee that he hab libed in my house a whole year without payin' board. I thank thee, oh, Lawd, that I raised, by thy help, de money to send Brother Jackson ter Chicago. And now, oh, Lawd, he hab come back an' school have begun, he has not kept his promise to marry me. But, oh, Lawd, how grateful I am dat I can say dis bright day in de language of de pharisee, dat ‘I am not as other men am.’ No, Lawd, your own Caroline am still libing in hopes ob an eternal salvation, an' if it is possible, Lawd, I pray thee to save Brother Jackson, for berry, I say unto him, ‘ye know not what ye go do.’”

Naturally the congregation was convulsed, and Rev. Mr. Parish, after ineffectual efforts to quiet his sister, thus addressed the congregation:

“Brethren, we cannot permit our misguided sister to go on. Sing the long-meter doxology and keep singing it until she takes her seat.”

The Temperature of Dining-Rooms.

The temperature of dining-rooms is frequently too high. It is a common thing for servants to neglect airing the room and attending to the temperature. Probably the majority of people would name 70 Fahrenheit the proper heat for the room, but this is much too high. An authority in this matter says that 60 is none too low, and a person who has suffered from the discomfort of an overheated room is likely to agree with him after making a trial of different temperatures.—N. Y. Tribune.

A WOMAN'S WAIST.

Irreparable Injury Done by Tight Lacing.

It is matter for rejoicing that fashion is no longer to decree a slender waist as something indispensable to propriety and grace. The natural waist of the woman of average height is about 28 inches, and any less size is attained only through arrested development, or compression of means of whalebone and steel. The amount of room inside these 28 inches is absolutely needed for the proper working of the machinery of the internal economy. In spite of this fact girls very often bind the yielding ribs into such narrow compass that the waist measures 20 or 22 inches only, and you will now and then hear some mother of a family, with a very different waist now, boast as if it were something to be proud of that when she was 19 her waist measure was 19 too. It is, however, of no use to talk to young people about the injurious effect of compression on stomach, heart, lungs, liver and the arterial system. They are not anatomists, and they do not comprehend the matter nor want to do so; they observe that they feel as well now as they did before, and without weighing the thought that it requires time to work ruin, take it for granted that they always will feel as well, although they have been told and taught that in post-mortem examinations it has been found that wherever tight lacing has been the rule, every organ was out of place and seriously injured. But although it does move them a trifle to be told that red noses and eruptive skins and flat chests are to be laid to the account of the too slender waist, yet on the whole neither common-sense nor auld-wife wisdom nor doctors have the power of conviction that fashion does, and when fashion says that there is no beauty in a wasp's waist, but that the lines of nobility and health made by deep breathing are the really lovely lines, fragility being something rather to be feared than loved, why then fragility begins to be avoided, and the lines of the Venus de Milo, of the Diana, of the Pallas, begin to come in.

The habit of tight lacing has already done almost irretrievable injury. If it were continued there is no knowing what shape it might eventually have developed. Even no sculptors declare that a model with a natural waist, sloping outward rather than inward, is something not to be found, even the most charming figures otherwise having the hour-glass tendency, in however slight a form sufficient to spoil them for posing for anything demanding the freedom, the beauty and grace of the antique. The Greek woman supported and stayed herself with bands of linen, but there was no compression in the swathe, and her natural waist made her of a perfect beauty; and to-day the natural waist of the Circassian does not interfere with the reputation of her loveliness. The adoption of European dress by ladies of the harem, and of Japan, showing, as it does, either a want of the knowledge of true beauty or a willful abandonment of its principles, will probably lead to tight lacing in the orient just as we are relinquishing it here.

Why anyone should ever have imagined that a waist which looked as if it were going to break in two could be more attractive than a waist which looked capable of supporting its head and arms and shoulders is a mystery—so great a mystery that the effort to solve it is to be given up in satisfaction over the report that the foreign creators of the mode have recently asked themselves the question if the shape that the Creator chose for the human body was one they could improve.—Harper's Bazar.

ELECTRIC INCUBATOR.

A German Has Invented One Which Is Said to Be Successful.

The idea of an electric incubator has long been looked upon by poultry farmers as too theoretical to be of any real service. Herr Otto Schulze, who has been steadily striving to perfect such a system in Germany, has, it is said, at length succeeded in constructing an apparatus operated electrically, which overcomes the ordinary difficulties of the artificial hatching of chickens. The apparatus is easily manipulated, and needs a small, but constant, supply of current. Automatic attachments regulate both temperature and moisture, the adjustment working with such delicacy that a temperature is kept within one-tenth of a degree of the normal heat of incubation. From 90 to 100 eggs are hatched at one time. Herr Schulze is said to have remedied certain points in the electric “mother,” which were found to interfere with its effectiveness. This contrivance, which is a box, in which freshly-hatched chicks can find heat and protection, while they are free to run about on the ground when they choose, has been devised as an accompaniment to the incubator.

Vitality of Disease Germs.

During the summer of 1894 the noted bacteriologists of Europe, Koch, of Germany, Pasteur, of France, Ewart, of Scotland, and Carpenter, of England, made experiments on the vitality of the germ which causes spleen fever in animals. The facts thus deduced prove that earth worms may bring up the germs from places where such animals, have been buried after a lapse of 20 years, and that the dried and pulverized blood of such diseased animals will produce the disease after 60 years.

A Mother Finds Her Child Drowned in a Tub of Water.

Mr. Albert Helms lives about four miles from here on the Providence road. Yesterday morning the cook left a tub with about five inches of water in it, sitting in the yard. Mr. and Mrs. Helms had a bright little child 16 months old. It was playing in the yard, but not, its mother thought, near the tub, so she went on about her business. After the lapse of she suppose 10 minutes, she went to look for the child and it was not to be found. Its occurred to her to look in the tub. There, head downward in the water, was the child, drowned. The mother was nearly frenzied with grief. Dr. Winchester was sent for, but the child was past resuscitating when taken from the water. A spoon was found in the tub, and it is supposed that the child was dipping up water when it fell in.—Charlotte Observer.
