Vol. 3.

GREENVILLE, N. C., SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1896.

No. 381

The Insurance Companies have adjusted my loss and I will now throw all of my stock that was damaged on the market at prices below cost. All who want bargains are invited to come and see what I can do for them. The goods must be disposed of as early as possible.

C. T. MUNFORD,

NEXT DOOR BANK.

Original Observations.

Fore handed men often overreach their neighbors.

A man without enemies is like a gun without powder.

The mouth is too often the sewer of obscenity and vulgarity.

The dead dream in endless sleep—'tis living eyes alone that weep.

The only time a dead man leads is in his own funeral procession.

A small soul has plenty of elbow room in a narrow-minded man.

Those who seek to climb only by the errors of others never rise far or remain long up.

The best thing a man can do when he feels like swearing is to pay no attention to his feelings.

To bring up a child in the way he should go, take care he doesn't see where you go, dear parent.

A widow may not be much of a gardener, but she always has an idea that she can raise orange blossoms from weeds.

A new political organization is to be started. It is an owe nothing party, but we are afraid its numbers will be too small to ever win an election.

Mrs. Hugg, of Chicago, has applied for a divorce. She says she knows when she has got enough of a good thing.

"Fellow Slaves," began an orator at a labor meeting in Buffalo, and then he stopped. "Go ahead!" cried a voice in the audience, "most of us are married."

No, it is not hard to write funny paragraphs; all you have to do is to secure a pen, some paper and ink, and then sit down and write them as they occur to you. It is not the writing but the occurring that is hard.—Orange (Va.) Observer.

Woman.

There are two sides to a story when men quarrel; when women quarrel there are a dozen.

It's a wise woman that knows how to avoid lending her copper-bottomed preserve kettle to her neighbor.

A woman always wants to be sure of the last word. That's why she looks at the end of a novel first.

Eve is the only woman on record who never turned round to see what the other woman had on.

Man was made to mourn, but he has fixed things so that woman has taken most of the job off his hands.

Woman leads the world. She used smokeless powder for ages before man thought of trying to invent it.

When one woman says that another is queer, it means that she is too charitable to express her real opinion.

Fire at Taft's Landing.

This morning the buildings at Taft's Landing, seven miles down the river, were destroyed by fire. A dwelling house, store, warehouse and some smaller outbuildings were burned. The dwelling was occupied by a Mr. Dunn, but the store had been unoccupied for some time. Mr. G. M. Tucker had about $700 worth of fertilizers stored in the warehouse which was also destroyed.

The buildings belonged to the Taft boys of this town, and there was no insurance upon them. Their loss is about $1,500. We could not learn positively the cause of the fire, but it is said to have caught some way on the roof of the dwelling house.

In the late Mr. A. H. Taft's life time he did a large mercantile business there, and it has for years been an important river landing.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matters of Interest Over the State.

Gaston Manly, a North Carolinian residing in Baltimore, committed suicide, Wednesday, by shooting himself.

Mr. H. C. Eccles tells the Charlotte News that a $250,000 modern hotel is to be built in Charlotte, the funds to be supplied by Northern parties.

The extensive saw mills of the Roanoke Railway and Lumber Company, near Plymouth, have been burned. Loss, $25,000, insurance, $15,000.

Rev. J. O. Alderman, pastor of the Baptist church, who resigned some time ago, has accepted a call to the pastorage of the Baptist church at Washington, N. C., and will leave the first of April for his new charge.—Concord Times.

LATE NEWS.

Johnstown, Pa., the town that was washed away by the flood some six years ago, had a $100,000 fire Wednesday.

The public shool building of Chattanooga, Tenn., has been destroyed by fire; loss $55,00.

For the month of February the Southern railway earned $1,467,674, an increase of $205,666; the Norfolk and Western, $820,505, an increase of $177,873.

Long Cases.

Court has been in session a week with only two cases heard so far. One of these was the suit of Elliott Bros. against Greenleaf Johnson Lumber Co., which was decided Tuesday in favor of the defendants. That day the suit of Tucker against Satterthwaite was taken up and had not been completed at the time we go to press this evening, but it is thought the case will be given to the jury tonight.

This is the same case that consumed several days of December term and was then stopped because Judge McIver was taken sick.

March Marriages.

For the first week of March Register of Deeds King issued seven marriage licenses, three for white and four for colored couples.

WHITE.

Arnol Worsley and Sallie Windham. W. Y. Moore and Florence Lang. Peyton Langley and Ada Bell.

COLOR.

Quick Work.

One of the quickest houses we have seen go up in Greenville, taking the size into consideration, is the new hardware store for Baker & Hart. The building is 22x60 feet, and was constructed in twelve days. John Eaton had the contract for the building. The firm now occupy it and have an advertisement in the Reflector today.

NORTH.

NORTH.

Frank Wilson has gone north to purchase his spring stock of Clothing, Dry Goods, Notions and Gents Furnishing Goods. He took a number of orders for Tailor-Made Suits and his spring line of clothing will be very stylish. Wait for him.

SATURDAY, MARCH 7TH, 1896.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, who has just returned from a visit home, says the reports that the silver sentiment was dying out in that section are entirely without foundation. On the contrary, he says, it is getting stronger all the time.

The debate on the resolution to seat Col. Dupont as Senator from Delaware is on, and may last ten days or longer. The Republicans are much disturbed over a rumor that the Populists will join the Democrats in voting down the resolution.

Senator Allen, of Nebraska, expects to be chairman of the Senate Committee that will investigate the last Alabama Senatorial election, if his resolution which has by a partisan vote been reported from the committee on Elections, be adopted. But that "if" is a formidable one, in view of the attitude of the Democratic Senators towards this unconstitutional resolution.

President Cleveland is once more showing the country that when he believes he is right he will not be swerved by either Congressional majorities of adverse public opinion. This time it is the Cuban question upon which his opinion is directly contrary to that of a majority in Congress, which has declared by the adoption of a concurrent resolution, in favor of recognition of the Cubans as belligerents and of taking steps toward the independence of Cuba. Before the House and Senate had decided upon the wording of that resolution a statement was given out by Secretary Olney showing that, in the opinion of the President and his Cabinet, the Cubans were not entitled to recognition as belligerents, and making it plain that the President would not willingly accord them that recognition until he thought them entitled to it.

Mistakes have been made before by President Cleveland, and some of his most ardent admirers think that he is making a mistake in not acting in accordance with the concurrent resolution against which a total of only 23 votes were cast in both branches of Congress, and which they believe to represent the sentiments of a large majority of the citizens of the United States. But whether one thinks the President right or wrong in this matter it is impossible not to admire the moral courage of the man who can stand up in the face of public opinion and Congress and say "I will not do this thing because I do not believe it the right thing to do."

While the President can ignore the concurrent resolution, Congress can compel him to carry out its wishes if it can get two-thirds of both the House and the Senate to vote for a joint resolution expressing those wishes, because that number of votes will be sufficient to pass the same over the President's veto, which would make it a law. Some think that this will be the final outcome of the matter, but they are merely guessing; there is nothing in sight to indicate it.

According to those who know all the circumstances, the sending of the Father Marquette statue to the Statuary Hall of the Capitol building by the State of Wisconsin was the result of a political play made by a Republican candidate for his party's nomination for governor of Wisconsin, away back when the late "Jerry" Rusk was governor of that State. This would-be candidate introduced a bill in the State legislature providing for the sending of the statue of Father Marquette to Washington by the State and succeeded in having it passed, arguing with the Republican members that it would catch Catholic votes for that party. When the bill reached Gov. Rush he declined to sign it, and would have vetoed it had not this would-be candidate persuaded him that it was good politics to sign the bill, and then assured him that he would see that the statue was never made. But this would-be candidate not only failed to get the coveted nomination but he lacked the power to prevent the statue being made, and to-day it stands in Statuary Hall, one of the most artistic statues there. The A. P. A. has demonstrated its ability to control the present Republican House, and its original programme was to have that body adopt Representative Linton's resolution against allowing the Statue to remain in the Capitol, but so many Republicans who live in districts where Catholic voters are numerous have shown that their defeat would be certain if that programme was carried out that party pressure has been brought to bear upon the leading A. P. A. men in the House, and the programme is held up, for a time, if not for good. All of the lessons of European history are forgotten by those men who are trying to use religious prejudice for partisan political purposes, and even the more recent lesson that broke the heart of James G. Blaine. When religious denominational lines shall be drawn in political parties, if such a calamity shall ever befall in this country, the death of the republic will be near at hand.

Ye Say and do Not.

In the ancient cathedral of Lubeck, in Germany, there is an old slab with the following inscription:
"Thus speaketh Christ our Lord to us:
Ye call me Master, and obey me not;
Ye call me Light, and see me not;
Ye call me Way, and walk me not;
Ye call me Life, and desire me not;
Ye call me Wise, and follow me not;
Ye call me Fair, and love me not;
Ye call me Rich, and ask me not;
Ye call me Eternal, and seek me not;
Ye call me Gracious, and trust me not;
Ye call me Noble, and serve me not;
Ye call me Mighty, and honor me not;
Ye call me Just, and fear me not;
If I condemn you, blame me not."

A GREAT DISCOVERY IN PAID- OLOGY.

A day or two ago the Asheville Citizen said that "the paidologists had a rich programme at their regular meeting in Dr. Campbell's study." The object of the meeting in general was paidology, and the subject of the meeting was "Self-Control in Children." Mrs. H. N. Lockwood and Miss Harger read papers on this subject. We reproduce a short extract from the Citizen's account.

"Self-control," said Mrs. Lockwood, "begins in the cradle. It would be impossible to convince anyone not a student of psychology, of the early age at which an infant may form habits and feel desires. These are not formulated ideas, but a mere instinctive seeking for physical comforts. Does this confirm self-control? It certainly does. When a tiny baby cries to be taken up, what should be done about it? Unless a nurse maid is employed to do nothing but hold the baby, the proper thing to do is to see that the child is warm and satisfied as regards food, then place it in the cradle with gentle firmness, and leave it. A great deal of decision may be expressed merely in the handling of an infant. If the child is laid to rest with an undecided hand, that child will soon decide the matter and rise again." * * *

This is glorious news. It is a perfection of a most difficult science. This paper is a patron of the arts and industries and sciences. It has been a delight to it recently to keep its readers posted on latest scientific developments. We lay no claim to infallibility, and sometimes get a Helen Keller in the wrong pew, but as a general rule we believe that we can be found swinging on to the gate of science every time she opens. We have followed Prof. Roentgen's skeleton photography invention very closely, and are even now waiting for runners to bring in later returns from Dr. Nansen at the North Pole. When, therefore, we see what a gold vein in the science of paidology Mrs. Lockwood has uncovered, we feel disposed to make much of it. We believe that even Mrs. Lockwood herself and the members of the Paidology Club, who meet from time to time in Dr. Campbell's study, do not realize fully the great boon and blessing to mankind which must result from this discovery of teaching a child how to keep still merely by the way you plank it down. The importance of it is seen more from a pater-familias than a paidological standpoint. We know not, nor do we care, whether Mrs. Lockwood made the discovery after years of patient thought, or whether, as Roentgen with his X ray, it flashed upon her accidentally while half-carelessly experimenting. The grand fact is established that, when, in midnight hours, on midwinter nights, by fireless grates, the old man paces up and down with the high tempered tyrant of the cradle, he may have surcease from sorrow. It only remains for him to "place the child in the cradle with gentle firmness, and leave it." Then he may draw the drapery of his couch about him, and lie down to pleasant dreams, while the kid, daring not to misunderstand the emphatic way it was laid down, will lie still and self-control itself until it silently cries itself to sleep or its mother wakes up.—Charlotte Observer.

White & Speight say there is nothing like advertising in THE DAILY REFLECTOR. They wrote four insurance policies to-day.

Ah, they are wise who advertise. In winter, spring and fall; But wiser yet are they, you bet, Who don't let up at all.

The columns of THE DAILY REFLECTOR indicate the esteem in which the paper is held by our business men as an advertising medium.

The courts seem to be troubling the railroad people along now, having so many of the agents, conductors and engineers appearing as witnesses.

We learn that Mr. H. M. Hardee will begin rebuilding his store in a few days. Mrs. M. A. Jarvis will also soon rebuild her three stores.

A printing office is usually considered a rather tough place and the newspaper worker a mighty bad man. Statistics however, do not bear out that idea. Of 3,890 convicts in the State penitentiary of Texas, there is not a printer or newspaper man, while there ministers, doctors, bankers, barbers, photographers, barkeepers, cooks and members of all professions and callings. The printer gets a bad name because the nature of his business teaches him to detest shams and he scorns the hypocrite.

The object of New York's cat show, we suppose, is to keep tab on the list of Gotham's social events.—Richmond Dispatch.

An Important Factor.

The effort of any newspaper to build up a town is practically nullified unless it is backed up by the business men. A stranger turns from the news columns of a paper to its advertising pages, and if he fails to find there the business cards of the merchants and professional firms, he comes to the conclusion that the publisher is not appreciated, in which case it is a good place for him to keep clear of. No town ever grew without the active assistance of its newspaper. Nor can papers grow and build up their localities without the assistance of the town. Business men should realize this and remember in giving support to the newspapers they are not only building up their own business, but helping to support that which is steadily working for the growth of the whole town.—Franklin Transcript.
