THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

G. C. L.

A pretty deer is dear to me,
A hare with downy hair,
A hart with all my heart,
Can barely bear a bear
'Tis plain that no one takes a plane
To have a pair of pears:
A rake, though often takes a rake,
And tears away the tares,
All raise tyme, time razes all:
And though the whole, hole wears,
A writ in writing "right" may write
It "wright," and still be wrong.
For "write" and "rite" are neither "right,"
And don't to write belong,
Beer often brings a bier to man,
Coughing a coffin brings,
And too much ale will make us ail
As well as some other things,
The person lies who says he lies
When he is not reclining,
And when consumptive folks recline
They all decline declining
A quail don't quail before a storm;
A bough will bow before it:
We cannot rein the rain at all;
No earthly powers reign o'er it.
The dyer dyes awhile then dies;
To dye he's always trying Until on his dying bed
He thinks no more of dyeing,
A son of Mars mars many a son;
All deys must have their days,
And every knight should pray each night
To Him who weighs his ways.
'Tis mete that man should mete our meat
To feed misfortune's son:
The fair should fare on love alone,
Else one cannot be won.
A lass, alas! is sometimes false;
Of fault a maid is made;
Her waist is but a barren waste—
Though staid, she is not staid.
The springs spring forth in spring, and shoots
Shoot forward, one and all,
Though summer kills the flowers, it leaves
The leaves to fall in fall
I would a story here commence,
But you might find it stale;
So let's suppose that we have reached
The tail end of our tale.

GEMS.

The sun sets last to those who have climbed highest up the mountain.
Marriage is a stream in which all may angle, but few catch pearls.
Ordinary vegetables derive their nutriment from the common dirt around them, and store away materials which are necessary to the physique of animal life. So, man may utilize something from his surroundings, however humble, which may become converted energy.
A single sentence well weighed and carefully delivered is better than a volume of careless utterances which may suffer by addition or subtraction.
True greatness is acquired by a succession of noble efforts like the tree, which as it continues to grow, adds to itself complete with great and little members.

Not Likely to be Disappointed.

An inquisitive person passing along a country road stopped to talk with a farmer hoeing corn.
"Your corn is small," said the inquisitive person.
"Yes. I planted that kind," replied the farmer.
"It looks yellow."
"I planted yellow corn."
"I don't think you'll get more than half a crop."
"Don't expect to—I planted it in shares."—Buffalo Courier.

LOOK OUT FOR OTHER FIRES.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:—While there is much being said about the insufficiency of the water supply of the town, and all eyes and tongues are eagerly at work looking and talking for water works, there is a very great work being left undone which ought and should be attended to by the authorities of the town, and one that will cost so little that it is not to be counted. It is simply outrageous to see the condition of many of the back lots in town, especially back of the stores on main street.
All the old trash, paper, rotten wood, boxes, and in fact everything that goes to make the start of a great conflagration, can be found in many places, where the police have authority to look after and where they should go every day. The lot between the post-office and Proctor's bar is a most inviting place for the starting a big fire—also back of the stores on main street, back of the racket store and many other places, where the simple dropping the stump of a lighted cigar or cigarette, or a spark falling would quickly set the town ablaze. Persons owning these sites should be required to have them cleaned and keep them so. This is in the strict province of the town authorities and to them the people of the town look, and have a right to look to enforce this great and needed work. The weather is dry and the winds high, and too great care cannot be taken in this matter. Besides the health of the town requires it as a sanitary measure. It should not be allowed to go another day. A few days work may save the ballance of the town and also save the health of the people. There is no excuse for further delay and but little expense attached.

SATURDAY, MARCH 28TH, 1896.

Gen. Thomas Lincoln Casey, U. S. A., retired, who has been in charge of the construction of the Congressional Library building since it was begun, died very suddenly Wednesday afternoon. Gen. Casey was the engineer in charge of the erection of the State, War and Navy Department Building, and of the Washington Monument.

It looks like the Cuban business was ended so far as Congress is concerned. But to many who did not catch the drift when the Senate sent the Cuban resolutions back to conference things did not look promising. But they soon saw that the conference had only to agree to the original Senate resolutions and the House to do likewise to end the affair.

The equestrian statue of Gen. W. S. Hancock, which is to be erected in Washington, has arrived and will be in position inside of two or three weeks. The unveiling of the statue is to be made the occasion of a big public celebration, military and civic, under national auspices. Art critics say the statue will be the best of its kind at the National Capital. The date for the formal unveiling has not been definitely set, but it will be on or about May 1. Gen. Hancock had many enthusiastic admirers and they will all be glad of an opportunity to honor his memory.

The Salisbury Herald takes up about one-and-a-half columns of space to give a catalogue of the different enterprises that exist in that town. We are inclined to believe that the Herald was "talking through its hat," or that the editor had got off his bearings and imagined that he was writing about Chicago, New York or London. We do not feel at all envious of that town because a $250,000 railroad shop has been thrust in its lap, but that Salisbury has even the half of the enterprises claimed by the Herald we do not believe. There is a very true saying that a town is judged by its newspapers, and the papers of Salisbury fail to verify any such claim as the Herald makes. The REFLECTOR exchanges with two daily papers from that town, and we read them every day, and the combined showing of both papers indicate that Salisbury has two shoe stores, one clothing store, about three dry goods stores, three drug stores, a lawyer, a doctor, two real estate agents, two architects, a barber, a stenographer and a few other odds and ends. An outsider would think by looking at the advertising columns of the Herald and World that those papers were wasting their energies in a cross roads village.

The Reed and McKinley republicans are now at daggers points, so to speak, and they are growing more bitter towards each other every day. Each side is charging the other with being guilty of all sorts of disgraceful tactics. The McKinley men are charged with frying the fat out of the manufacturers in order to buy delegates, and the Reed men are charged with every species of duplicity in connection with the favorite son scheme, the latest being that they originated the story of a combine to nominate Harrison so as to prevent the Indiana delegates committing themselves to McKinley. The average democrat regards it merely as another case of "the pot calling the kettle black," and feels like shouting "go it Mac!" "go it Tom!" and enjoying the fight all the way through without caring a continental how it ends.

Boutelle, of Maine, had another attack of contrariness this week which resulted in a considerable exposure of ears as he stood up and brayed against the purely sentimental bill for the repeal of the law prohibiting Confederate officers who held commissions in the U. S. Army previous to the war being commissioned again therein. Everybody admitted that the bill, which unanimously passed the Senate Christmas eve, was merely an evidence of cordiality towards the ex-Confederates, and that there is not even a probability that any ex-Confederate will thereby become an officer in the U. S. Army, except in the very improbable event of an early foreign war. But Boutelle would not see it that way. He ranted against it for the greater part of one session of the House, and finally cast the only vote that was recorded against the bill in either branch of Congress. Boutelle's constituents must be different from other men if they are not heartily ashamed of him and his antics.

She Had Been Divorced.

The train from the east Friday afternoon had among its passengers a good-looking, stylishly dressed lady, who evidently knew just where she wanted to go, and went there directly. Coming up town the lady sought out one of the most prominent offices of the city and approaching a gentleman there showed an inclination to greet him affectionately.

The object of her visit, however, did not show a disposition to accept the advances in the same spirit, and it required an explanation to set things straight.

The fact was, the couple were once husband and wife. The wife has been in a distant State for some time, and at a recent term of the Superior court here the husband secured a divorce on the ground of abandonment. It appeared that the erstwhile wife knew nothing of the divorce proceedings until she arrived here.

The fair visitor visited the Clerk's office to get a copy of the decree, and left Saturday afternoon for her home, apparently in good spirits.—Asheville Citizen.

The letters which go out from the Washington post-office will have the weather indications stamped on them after next week. The stamp will be the usual date stamp with a circle around it in which will be printed a word indicating the kind of weather to be expected, such as "rain," "snow," "colder," "fair," and the like. For the present Washington will be the only office using the stamps.

UTILITY OF WOOD PULP.

Growing Demand for the Material in the Industries.

It is Largely Used in the Manufacture of Tiling, and Promises to Become an Important Factor in Building Operations, Etc.

The demand for pulp for other purposes than paper making is likely to increase largely the next few years should the various branches of industry which are cropping up around about here meet with the great success which sanguine inventors and patentees anticipate. Whatever opinion may be expressed with regard to these new ventures there are already a couple of manufacturers who seem to have struck out in the right direction in the making of marketable goods where pulp is the chief factor as raw material. One of the undertakings which deserves to be noted is the Fieldhammer Brug, started by the go-ahead and enterprising H. Bache-Wug, and managed by the well-known Christiania firm of Ambrosius Hausen. This mill began operations about two years ago, making roofing tiles, and is now shipping to different parts of the globe a product which has gained a reputation for its superior qualities over all other slates in the market. "Norway tiles," as they are termed, are made from wood pulp, which, under very high pressure, is formed into thin cakes of sizes like the ordinary roofing slates. After a chemical treatment, which is the inventor's secret, the tiles become hard, like brick, and attain a deep black appearance, which lends itself admirably to give a soft tone to houses with prominent roofs and gables. It is claimed for the "Norway tiles" that they possess every advantage of the best slates in the market; their composition makes them light and durable and they are not so liable to breakage as the ordinary slates; they are not subject to any expansion or contraction, and when a roof is once covered with this material it will stand for a good many years without repairs whatever. The price of "Norway slates" is very low, and compared with what other roofing costs admits of a saving of 35 per cent., an item of no small importance in our days, when competition is so keen. Prominent architects who had the opportunity to examine "Norway tiles" pronounce them superior as to quality, appearance and price, and the insurance companies appear favorably disposed and stamp the tiles as a very desirable and safe roofing material. The new mills at Embretsfos, Thursfos and Skein are covered with "Norway tiles," and from information gathered the proprietors of the mills are well pleased with the new roofing.

An enthusiastic advocate of wood pulp for building material as a substitute for stone is G. D. Rice, who has made the subject one of close study and investigation. His conclusion is that it possesses the needed elements of a durable constructive substance, being at the same time devoid of some of those features which detract from the value of stone and brick. He summarizes some of the qualities presented by this new factor in building as consisting of being light in weight, exceedingly hard, a poor conductor of heat and sound, and sufficiently elastic to meet all the usual requirements for the purpose; it is tough, though a nail can be driven into it, and it can also be drilled, while the other necessities of a stone substitute, are enumerated, together with resistance of frost and heat, with ability to stand strain, and so on, are said to be met, besides the transportation. It is urged further that the difficulty of producing perfectly square stone blocks, except at high rates, is thus overcome, for the pulp blocks, being cast in a square mold, are necessarily uniform. Differing from stone and brick, which absorb so much heat in summer, the proposed material is claimed to be cooler in summer, while in cold weather it prevents dampness, so common in stone.—World's Paper Trade Review.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—The 63,500 people who live in Charleston, S. C., are located over five and one-third square miles of ground.

—The assessed valuation of all taxable property in Chicago in the beginning of 1895 was stated at $247,425,442.

—Harrisburg, Pa., has 50,000 population and nine square miles of territory; it owes $1,005,000 and is worth $22,500,000.

—The latest plan of the rainmakers is to produce a fog and then turn it into rain by an ingenious application of dynamite. London is suggested as a field of experiment, but Londoners may object.

—The jury system established by Utah is an innovation that will be watched with a great deal of interest in this country. Eight jurors will be substituted for 12 in all cases not involving capital punishment, a verdict being permitted on the vote of six out of eight jurymen.

—G. F. Henriques, a Brooklyn man, enjoys the distinction of being the owner of what is considered the oldest poll parrot in existence. The parrot is vouched for by several of its owners to be the mate of one kept by President George Washington, and a cousin of one of the royal parrots kept by George III. It is one of the Australian variety, and is over 90 years old.

—According to Prof. Wilcox, of Cornell university, the American people are gradually "settling down"—do not migrate so much from state to state as formerly. In 1860 exactly one-fourth of the population of the United States had emigrated from the state where they were born. But since 1870 the tendency to stick to the old home has steadily increased. This tendency is more marked in New England than elsewhere.

—Men of brains are paid handsome salaries to devise new schemes. The latest and one of the most humorous amused the patrons of New York theaters for three or four nights and succeeded in escaping the notice of managers. A bald-headed man is the instrument. On his shining pate is painted in indigo blue the name of a patent medicine. He sits in the front row and conducts himself with propriety, while people behind him are convulsed with laughter, each observer supposing that here is a practical joke someone has played on an unsuspecting friend.

According to the most careful computation, only one person 100,000 of both sexes attains the age of 100 years, and six to seven in 100 the age of sixty. That "every generation shall be weaker out wiser" is being practically verified.

GET A GOOD SAFE.

GREENVILLE, N. C., Feb. 26th, 1896.

J. L. SUGG, Agent Victor Safe Co.,

Greenville, N. C.

DEAR SIR:—I am pleased to say that the Victor Safe you sold me some five or six years ago preserved in fact all its contents in the late fire in Greenville on the 16th inst. The safe stood at a point in my office in the Opera House block that must have been one of the hottest parts in the great conflagration. It contained many papers and other things of value. When it was taken out of the ruins and opened, some twelve hours after the fire, everything in it was found to be safely preserved and in good condition. I cheerfully make this statement of facts in recognition of the valuable service rendered me by this safe and you are at liberty to make such use of it as you may see proper.

THOS. J. JARVIS.

The Victor Safe is made in all sizes, convenient for home, farm, office or general business use. Every Safe sold with a guarantee to be fire proof. Prices range from $15 up.

The Local Papers.

However good city papers may be,
and however cheap they may be sold, they can never supplant or destroy the local press. The demand for local news in each individual section of the country is as great as the demand for the world's news in big cities, and there will always be a local press to supply that demand. It is nonsense to talk of the papers of the large cities fulfilling the universal demand.—Newspaper Maker.

says:

The Chick show Wednesday evening was above the average. The farces, dancing, songs, dialogues, etc., were excellent and brought forth applause from the large house. The serpentine dance was beautiful. The hall was darkened for this feature and the different figures were superb. This

Every Word True.

A citizen of Durham was talking with the REFLECTOR and said: "I see no reason why Greenville should not soon become one of the most prosperous and progressive towns in the State. All you need to accomplish this is some good factories that will give the people employment. Your town ought to be manufacturing both cotton and tobacco. Just look what a city we have at Durham! The wonderful growth of that town is due almost entirely to our factories. Our town has one of the poorest back countries imaginable, while Greenville is situated in the heart of one of the richest sections of the State. Yes, sir, factories are the enterprises that Greenville needs."

Training Stables.

Mr. J. H. Sumner, of Pittsburg,
Pa., arrived in Greenville Friday night.
Mr. Sumner is a member of a firm of horse trainers and was looking for a place in a good climate where there is a good track, to locate his training stables. Only a short while here was necessary to convince him that Greenville is the place he was looking for,
and he has arranged with the Greenville Driving Association for the use of their track for twelve months. Mr.
Sumner tells the REFLECTOR that he now has in his charge seventeen young horses belonging to rich northerners and he has already ordered these horses shipped to Greenville. He will build stables for them out at the track and will put the track in thorough condition for training these horses.
