C. T. MUNFORD,

NEXT DOOR BANK

GREENVILLE VS. SCOTLAND
NECK.

The Democrat has not been paid to advertise our sister town but it feels constrained to offer a comment or two from what was remarked on our streets about Greenville yesterday, and some other things that have come under our observation.

A gentleman said to the editor of the Democrat that Greenville is making more rapid development than any other town in Eastern Carolina, and another gentleman remarked that it is due to the tobacco interests there.

The Democrat has been thinking about the matter, but does not mean by the heading of this article to suggest that the two towns, Greenville and Scotland Neck, are at all opposed to each other. Indeed we know that Scotland Neck rejoices in Greenville's prosperity and we believe that Greenville would rejoice in a greater prosperity for Scotland Neck than we now enjoy and we are doing fairly well.

We do not know so much about the tobacco interests of Greenville for we have not had an opportunity to judge about that except through the columns of the REFLECTOR; but we do know something about another thing or two. We know that no paper in the State has worked harder for its town than the REFLECTOR, and we know that few papers in the State show plainer evidence of appreciation of their efforts on the part of the business men of the town. The columns of the REFLECTOR are all the time well filled with bristling advertisements by the live business men of Greenville. They are free to spend money with their newspaper and the paper is thus enabled to do many good services for the town that otherwise it could not do. And the effect is seen in the quickened prosperity of the town.

But some one might say the tobacco interest of the town is what has set it on such a pleasing career of prosperity. Grant it: and yet again we declare that had it not been for the faithful and persistent newspaper work done for Greenville its tobacco interests would have been as lifeless as a worm-cut gourd-vine under a noon-day sun.

Now, as to Scotland Neck: We have compared the last issues of the REFLECTOR and the Democrat and find that the REFLECTOR carries twice as much advertising for the business men of Greenville as the Democrat carries for the business men of Scotland Neck. Further comment would seem unnecessary.

Set it down: The town that tries to starve a newspaper which does honest and earnest and respectable work for its upbuilding, will never prosper as it otherwise would under a liberal support of its best medium for letting the world know what it is doing.

This paper has lived and prospered—if it has prospered at all—not by the liberal aid of all the business of Scotland Neck, but in spite of their indifference to their own interest and a fair remuneration for our services to the town and community.

And if they will point out a paper that has been more persistent in its efforts to build up its town than the Democrat has for the past seven years, we will sell out to some one at a bargain and let him have the pleasure and honor of making two blades of grass grow where we have induced one—if he can.

We have written plainly and pointedly because we have felt that the interest of the town, together with our own, demands it.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

For what is so kindly said in the above about the REFLECTOR we make our warmest acknowledgement to Bro.

Hilliard. His remarks are in keeping with what has often been asserted in these columns, as well as in papers elsewhere, that "a town is judged largely by its newspaper."

Let us assure our good brother also that Greenville does feel the kindest interest in Scotland Neck, and would rejoice to see that splendid town enjoying the highest measure of prosperity. We know the town has good people in it. Some who formerly belonged to her are now citizens of Greenville and they are among our best and most progressive citizens.

As to the Democrat, there is not one of our weekly exchanges that we read with more interest and regularity. It is pure, clean, honest and conscientious in all its utterances, and editorially is a model newspaper. And it has often been a wonder to us that the business men of Scotland Neck make it necessary for the excellent paper they have to look elsewhere than at home for the bulk of its advertising patronage. By so doing they stand greatly in their own light.

Panic in a Morganton Church.

Morganton had a sensation Sunday night. The Methodist church was the only one in the town which was open and it was packed. Directly after the minister began his sermon the floor was felt sinking and the congregation became panic-stricken. There was a scene of wild disorder, mingled with which were the screams of the terrified people. There was a wild rush to get out and in the crush Miss Sue, eldest daughter of Col. S. McD. Tate, suffered three fractures of a leg, the result of being trampled upon. Other persons were more or less bruised but this was the most serious accident sustained. The danger from the sinking of the floor was of itself of no consequence, and whatever harm resulted was from the stampede alone.—Charlotte Observer.

All for Carolina.

It is worthy of observation that despised countries have more than once been the scenes of the first years of many a great and good man's life. Nazareth was not the first nor the last despised birthplace of a man whom the world became proud to own. Great centres of great nations have, on the other hand, won a name for bringing forth great men. Furthermore, it was recently made clear in a thoughtful article by Prof. Mitchell in the Religious Herald that small countries have shaped the destiny of the human race. Greece, Phoenicia, Holland, England, occupy insignificant space on the maps, but in history their pages are thickest. Then let us thank God for North Carolina, for them that despise her because she is not "great" as men count greatness. Let us thank God for what she may yet be, when her children have ceased to beat back one another as they make effort to rise before the nations.—Biblical Recorder.

Subscription Due.

To-morrow is pay day again for THE DAILY REFLECTOR. If we have time to make out the bills they will be sent around to all who can be seen conveniently. However, you can save us some time that ought to be spent in hurrying news if you will come to the office and pay without waiting to be called on. We will get around to see all as fast as possible. Remember, friends, there is much work and expense in running a daily paper, and prompt payments not only help us along but show your appreciation as well.

Boys Spring Suits.

"A Mrs. Hopkins Boy."

My line is all in and I have some beauties to select from. Mothers come and see me and the prices will surprise you. All of the latest styles, and colors and a perfect fit guaranteed. In speaking of Gent's Clothing and of their fit and finish I received the following Saturday night:

POSSOM HOLLOW, N. C.,
Saturday, April 4th, 1896.

MR. FRANK WILSON, Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir:—You have made a liar of me. A friend of mine saw the Spring Suit I bought of you, and asked me who my tailor was. I gave him the name of a prominent tailor and thought it would end there. But no! He asked me how much it cost, and had to tell him another lie. But the part I feel mean about is the tailor got the credit that belongs to you.

Yours, etc.,
C. L. OTHIER.

There is a Chance.

Was there ever a better opportunity for a young man than to-day, whether he have money or not? We think not. Young men are often heard to say there is no chance for them and it's no use to try. When a young fellow uses such words as these it is pretty apt to be true that there is no chance for him, but he wrongly places the responsibility upon the world. It is not the world that is at fault, but himself. There are few opportunities for the man who can do nothing, but there is every chance for the one who has fitted himself for something. The man who has prepared himself to do well the work of any particular field can always find work to do. Does any one know a good farmer who is not getting along well? Does any one know of a first-class mechanic who cannot find work to do? Does any one know of a first-class salesman who cannot find employment? Does any one know of a good workman in any particular field who cannot find plenty for his hands to do? Besides that there are hundreds of people who have not learned any trade or made any special preparation for a particular work, still if they are men of pluck and energy they can and do find plenty to do. When they cannot find it they make it. The trouble is that too many act upon the false theory that the world owes them a living. The world owes no such debt. If it does it has repudiated it and will never pay it. There are plenty of opportunities but they are like the ore hidden away in the mine; they must be dug for.—Monroe Journal.

WHEN THE MONK DIED.

Rites Observed When Death Entered a Monastery and Claimed a Victim.

In the "Durham Rites" we read how before the high altar were "three marvelous faire silver basons hung in claines of silver;" these contained great wax candles, "which did burne continually both day and night, in token that the house was always watchinge to God." Many and various are the estimates which men make as to the efficacy of prayer in changing or modifying God's purposes toward men; few will, however, be found to deny the moral beauty of this conception, which was the common heritage of all the monastic orders. The ideal of every monastery was the ideal typified by the Durham ever-burning lights. "The house was always watchinge to God." The well-known collects and prayers enshrined in the solemn liturgy of the Church of England are in large measure the prayers and collects prayed and sung for so many centuries, by day and by night, in the 1,000 abbeys and chapels of the monks; they were thus forever interceding "for all sorts and conditions of men."

But, besides the perpetual prayers for others, a peculiar spiritual fellowship existed between the "religious" of the same order, and indeed was often extended to those of other orders. Mr. Hunt ("An Account of the Priory of St. Peter and St. Paul at Bath") gives us a remarkable illustration of this fellowship in the bond of prayer made between the priory of Bath and six other Benedictine convents, as far back as A. D. 1077, in which the parties agreed to pray for one another and their brethren, and to be loyal to the king and queen with one heart and one soul. "It will be observed," adds Mr. Hunt, "that two of the abbots were of the conquering race, and their union with their English brethren is pleasant to contemplate."

When a monk died a messenger was dispatched to all the religious communities from which prayers were due, and indeed to many others, with the mortuary roll, having at the head an announcement of the death and a short account of the deceased. Each community acknowledged the receipt of the roll by writing upon it a promise of prayer for the soul of the departed, and, as a rule, a request for similar prayers for their deceased brethren and benefactors was added. The benefits of these prayers seem to have been granted to a large number of benefactors and others. Nor was this privilege by any means confined to the great and wealthy; a very small, even a normal payment, such as a pound of wax, seems to have qualified a man or woman to receive it, if otherwise fitting, into the number of "fratres" or "sorores" of the convent. Those so admitted knew that the Divine sacrifice was daily offered for them in the church of the monastery, and that prayer was continually made for them while they lived, and that after death the welfare of their souls would be the subject of special intercession.—Quarterly Review.

ROLLED CAKES.

Easily Prepared if You Only Know How to Proceed.

There are several species of rolled cakes which require special treatment. The best known of these are the rolled sponge cakes, which are usually spread with jelly, custard, soft chocolate or some fillings rolled up while warm, and when cooled cut off in slices from the end. These cakes are easily prepared, although the amateur is often unsuccessful because of her failure to observe two or three simple things necessary to success.

Beat the yolks of four eggs with two-thirds of a cup of powdered sugar. This portion of the work can be done effectually with a patent beater, because all that is necessary is a vigorous stirring. Beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth with an egg whip, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice to the yolks and sugar. Stir it in. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs, being careful not to stir or you would break down the whites. Sift two-thirds of a cup of pastry flour with half a teaspoonful of baking powder twice, then sift it into the other ingredients. Mix it in carefully with an egg whip. Spread the cake batter evenly on a flat biscuit tin and bake it 15 minutes. Take it out of the oven and spread it while warm with jelly. The edges of the cake are apt to be dry and hard; trim these off evenly. Begin rolling a little firmly at first and continue until the roll is formed. Pin it in compact form in a napkin or a strip of clean cotton, when it will stay in place. Cut off slices half an inch thick from the ends. Current or cran-apple makes excellent jelly. When the cake is flavored with vanilla use a soft chocolate to spread on it. Soak a tablespoonful of gelatine in three tablespoonfuls of cold water for two hours. Add a quarter of a cup of boiling water and one and two-third cups of powdered sugar. Scrape fine two ounces of chocolate and melt it over the fire with two tablespoonfuls of water, and stir it with the other ingredients until a smooth paste is formed. Spread it on the cake and roll it up rapidly. This cake is very nice spread with a boiled icing in which a cup of grated coconut has been stirred. Flavor this coconut cake with orange extract.—N. Y. Tribune.

WHAT SEEMS AND IS.

This Little Dialogue May Serve to Make the Stranger Less Diffident.

The palaces of America are the New York hotels. The visitor from the back district enters a New York hotel office in the same spirit that he would invade St. Peter's, in Rome. There is something in the architectural grandeur, in the richness and extravagance of form and color, in the mellow light coming from vaulted ceilings and colored glass that touches the spirit with a sense of calm. And the man behind the rose-wood and onyx counter! What dignity of mien! What austerity of countenance! What Jove-like front! And the gentleman coming yonder across the mosaic floor. He may be the head of a great educational institution, or a statesman, high in the councils of the nations. He is followed by a black servant in livery, carrying his personal effects.

But, ah! Human nature is the same in the midst of all its impressiveness as it is in Princeville or Jackson's corners. The distinguished-looking gentleman seizes by the hand the dignitary on the other side of the counter and says: "Hello! old stockin', how are you? You look fit to run four miles!"

"Bully! bully! Charley, old man! Ain't seen you for a coon's age. How are they comin' with you?"

"Full-handed, never better, feelin' like a yearlin'. Wow! Ain't it cold! Got a good, hot room for me?"

"Fix you proper, my boy. Have to put you up pretty high this morning, but'll get you down on the second floor by noon. How'll that do you?"

"Have to stand it, I suppose. Can't you give me that hot room you gave me last summer? Zip! but that was a scorcher!"

"Have a fire built up there now?"

"No, guess not—what's that? Number 411? Can't you add 44 to it? I'll go out and play it."

"Can't do it. It's beyond the limit of the house. Been to breakfast?"

"No; I'm hungry as a wolf."

"Go right in. The bacon's on the iron. Hist! Front! Baggage to four-eleven."—N. Y. Sun.

THE FACE IN ILLNESS.

To the Trained Eye It Quickly Shows a Patient's Condition.

The face is a good index to the state of one's physical being, and from it symptoms of disease can be detected almost before the patient is aware that anything serious is the matter with him. For instance, incomplete closure of the eyelids, rendering the whites of the eyes visible during sleep, is a symptom in all acute and chronic diseases of a severe type; it is also to be observed when rest is unsound from pain, wherever seated.

Twitching of the eyelids, associated with the oscillation of the eyeballs, or squinting, herald the visit of convulsions.

Widening of the orifices of the nose, with movements of the nostrils to and fro, point to embarrassed breathing from disease of the lungs or their plural investment.

Contraction of the brows indicates pain in the head; sharpness of the nostrils, pain in the chest, and a drawn upper lip, pain in the abdomen.

To make a general rule, it may be stated that the upper third of the face is altered in expression in affections of the brain, the middle third, in the diseases of the organs contained in the abdominal cavity.—The Trained Nurse.
