THE FIREMAN.

A steady hand, a cool, clear head,
A watchful eye will him bestead.
His motions must be sure and quick
When troubles crowd upon him thick.
There's no time then to stop and think,
Things must be done as quick as a wink,
Or else much mischief may be wrought
Before he has the matter thought.
His thinking should be done before,
His plans considered o'er and o'er:
Make all provisions that you may,
You'll find it far the other way.
When danger threatens do not shrink,
But stand up boldly to your work;
'Tis yours to do the saving part,
Work then with all your strength and heart.
'Tis hoped you'll be appreciated,
But if luck and you should not be mated
You'll find at least great satisfaction
In being right in all your action.
—Volunteer Fireman.

THEIR FIRST TEA.

The W. W. Society Spends a Delightful Evening With Miss Higgs.

The W. W. Society held its first tea at the home of Miss Novella Higgs Friday evening and it was a most enjoyable occasion. The house was exquisitely decorated with hot house plants and palms. The dining room was ornamented with Easter lilies and ferns and the menu was most elaborate. Meats served by Mrs. Cobb, salad by Mrs. James, chocolate by Mrs. Hooker, bread, pickles and eggs by Miss Novella Higgs, ice cream and other refreshments by Miss Jennie James. Misses Appie Smith and Lill Cherry presented souvenirs as each guest passed out of the dining room.

The following are the list of members present:

Miss Lillian Cherry, in blue silk crepon, jewel passementerie and lace, with Dr. Chas. Laughinghouse.

Miss Lula White, blue silk mousline de soire, with P. H. Gorman.

Miss Novella Higgs, white silk lace and diamonds, with J. R. Moye.

Miss Jennie James, green taffeta silk, lace and diamonds, with H. A. White.

Miss Helen Perkins, yellow silk organdie, black spangled net overdress, rubies, with J. L. Little.

Miss Appie Smith, green silk waist, black satin skirt, pearls, with G. E. Harrison.

Miss Florence Williams, pink silk and lace, with J. W. Wiggins.

Miss Blanch Flanagan, lilac silk mull and point lace, with J. E. Starkey.

Miss Sophie Jarvis, white silk organdie, ribbon and lace, with J. L. Fleming.

Miss Gertrude Williams, red silk waist, satin skirt, with C. M. Jones.

Miss Nannie Bagwell, dresden silk and lace, with Tom Hooker.

Mrs. D. L. James, black silk and pointed lace.

Mrs. R. J. Cobb, black satin, lace and diamonds.

Mrs. H. C. Hooker, black taffeta silk and lace.

Stags, R. D. Cherry, Frank Wilson, W. B. James, J. B. White, John Ivy Smith, Ola Forbes, Zeb Johnson, J. L. Starkey.

Carriages arrived at twelve and the guests bidding their fair hostess good night, expressed themselves as having spent a most delightful evening.

REPORTER.

The Republicans Executive Committee have called a county convention in Greenville on Saturday, May 2nd, to select delegates to the State and District conventions. Township primaries will be April 25th.

ORIGINAL OBSERVATIONS.

The brightest eyes are sometimes glass.

Wisdom is the best locomotive for a train of thought.

The independant man is often in dependent circumstances.

Still waters run deep, but still whiskey runs shallow—men.

The loving kiss of a child vibrates the tender strings of angel harps.

When a blind man can go and see his girl, the deaf man can hear himself think.

The barber who dressed the head of a barrel has been engaged to curl the locks of a canal.

Jonah in his day was a living example of the fact that you can't keep a good man down.

Any old mustard plaster can draw a blister, but it takes a man of intelligence to draw an inference.

"So small and yet so large," said the fond Orange husband, as he gazed on a very small new spring bonnet, for which he had to pay a very large bill.—Orange (Va.) Observer.

Obeying Orders.

Hugh Mc—, a son of the Emerald Isle, who had volunteered in the Sixth regiment of South Carolina infantry, was stationed on the beach of Sullivan's island with strict orders to walk between two points and to let no one pass without the countersign, and that to be communicated only in a whisper. Two hours afterward the corporal with the relief discovered by the moonlight Hugh up to his waist in water, the tide having set in since he was posted.

"Who goes there?" "Relief." "Halt, relief. Advance, corporal, and give the countersign."

Corporal—I am not going in there to be drowned. Come out here, and let me relieve you.

Hugh—Divil a bit! The lieutenant told me not to lave me post.

Corporal—Well, then, I will leave you in the water all night. (Going away as he spoke.)

Hugh—Halt! I'll put a hole in ye if ye pass without the countersign. Them's me orders from the lieutenant. (Cocking and leveling his gun.)

Corporal—Confound you, everybody will hear it if I bawl it out to you.

Hugh—Yes, me darling, and the lieutenant said it must be given in a whisper. In with ye; me finger's on the trigger, and me gun may go off.

The corporal had to yield to the force of the argument and wade in to the faithful sentinel, who exclaimed: "Be jabbers, it's well ye've come. The bloody tide has a'most drowned me."—Washington Post.

Have you ever thought of the good influence a preacher has in a community outside of his people and ministry? One upright man before the public eye, whether he ever gives a word of advice or warning, is worth a great deal to a people. He sets a standard. His course prevents the people from being persuaded that there is no use trying to do right. Without one man being better than another there would be little aspiration.—Biblical Recorder.

At the races here next Wednesday and Thursday there will be some of the best trials of speed witnessed on any track in the State. Some fine horses have been entered.

Court adjourned Friday evening.

Boys Spring Suits.

"A Mrs. Hopkins Boy."

My line is all in and I have some beauties to select from. Mothers come and see me and the prices will surprise you. All of the latest styles, and colors and a perfect fit guaranteed. In speaking of Gent's Clothing and of their fit and finish I received the following Saturday night:

POSSOM HOLLOW, N. C.,
Saturday, April 4th, 1896.

MR. FRANK WILSON, Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir:—You have made a liar of me. A friend of mine saw the Spring Suit I bought of you, and asked me who my tailor was. I gave him the name of a prominent tailor and thought it would end there. But no! He asked me how much it cost, and had to tell him another lie. But the part I feel mean about is the tailor got the credit that belongs to you.

Yours, etc.,

C. L. OTHER.

SATURDAY, APRIL 11TH, 1896.

The Executive Committee of the State Press Association met in Raleigh, Thursday, and decided to hold the next meeting of the Association at Wilmington on July 15th. The boys can have a pleasant sojourn in the "city by the sea."

The Democratic State Executive Committee met in Raleigh Thursday night, and selected June 25th as the date for holding the State convention. The committee adopted the changes in the plan of organization as proposed by the last State convention, which provides for minority representation in primaries and county conventions. The meeting of the committee was very harmonious.

Thoughts on Spring.

Some thoughts on spring are not fit for publication.

Spring is the season when poets and lovers get out of order.

If you have flannels to shed prepare to shed them in July.

The well known poetical references to spring as an "ethereal mildness" was promulgated long before the introduction of the weather bureau.

Spring poets are the great propagators of pulmonary complaints.

Spring, ghastly spring!

Even a spring chicken is a delusion and a snare.

If the robin is really a sign of spring, he ought to be ashamed of himself.

In these latter days blizzards are the only genuine "harbingers of spring."

That "tired feeling" incidental to spring is greatly aggravated by reading spring poetry in one column of a newspaper and the weather report in another.

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of cough mixtures.

The most effete monarchy of modern times is the one presided over by the May queen.

Frailty, thy name is spring.

Spring by any other name would not be nearly so deceptive.

Possibly it is because spring is the youth of the year that it is so disagreeably fresh.

"Sweet spring, full of sun and blowing roses"—sore throats and blowing noses.

Spring, gentle spring, get a thaw on yourself!—New York Sun.

THE RESOLUTIONS AND THE PRESIDENT.

The Cuban resolution passed the House by a tremendous majority. The vote no doubt represents public sentiment. The question now is—what will the President do about it? Will he veto or let it pass without his signature, or will he approve. One rumor is that he will approve? Many in Washington say he will do nothing. The action of the President may have influence upon the future of Cuba. Some say he will delay until just before the Republican Convention meets. One rumor circulating in Washington is, that he has sent secret agents to the island to ascertain whether the claims of the insurgents, as to their establishment of a government and their military progress are true. It is said he distrusts the consuls in Cuba and puts no confidence in newspaper reports and wants to satisfy himself as to the actual condition by his confidential agents. There is no great excitement in the Spanish metropolis, Madrid, but the papers denounce this country for its course. The London Times publishes a dispatch from Madrid in which it is stated "that the government and its supporters are cool amidst the popular excitement. A sensation has been caused by the Epoca stating that a friendly reply would certainly be made if the United States should ask as to Spain's intentions with regard to Cuba. After the Cabinet council tonight Senor Canovas del Castillo, the Premier, stated that all the official and private Washington advices induced the government to believe that President Cleveland would not act on the resolutions, and that, therefore, the government would maintain an expectant attitude."

Of course more or less nonsense about what will result from the action of Congress is indulged.

One report from London is that it will lead to great complications and the relations of the United States with other Powers. This is all falldal. It might lead to war with Spain, but only because Spain chooses to make the recognition of belligerency a casus belli, which would be foolish and unprecedented. Spain recognized the Southern Confederacy as a belligerent. Whatever course the President may pursue need not complicate matters or provoke the ire of Spain. The Washington Post takes this view, and it is correct and sensible.

"The resolutions simply call upon the President to offer his friendly offices to the Spanish Government for the recognition of the independence of Cuba. Let us suppose that he does offer them—what European nation, excepting Spain, is in the least likely to resent the President's overtures, and what naval and military complications can possibly arise in consequence? * Spain may resent an intervention by the United States, no matter how friendly and humane the motive, and if Spain should choose to do so, we can consider the next step at our leisure. But why, in the name of common sense, should any other European power do so, and what do we care, anyhow?"

The fact is that if the President should conclude to respect the suggestion of Congress in the premises, he would do only what England, and, in fact, every other European power has, under similar circumstances, done a hundred times heretofore.—Wilmington Messenger.

Bad Luck Follows Her Always.

A Warsaw lady recently engaged a quiet, respectable looking girl of 16 to look after her 18-month old baby. As soon as he saw the nurse the child was frightened into convulsions; the girl was asked to go into another room, where the master of the house was entertaining half a dozen guests. On her entering the room a standard lamp on the table blazed up to the ceiling, three large oil paintings fell down from the wall and a large barometer flew across the room and was smashed. The girl was not alarmed and admitted that such accidents happened frequently when she was present. She is a pale, slight girl, who suffers from insomnia. Dr. Ochowski, the psychologist, is investigating the case.

This is an admirable and concise statement of the condition in which the last Legislature placed our public school system. This "make-shift system," as the Recorder properly characterizes it, is the joint work of Republicans and Populists, and we want the voters to bear this fact in mind during the campaign this year and especially at the ballot-box next fall. The Recorder is a religious and not a political paper and its remarks on this subject are therefore entitled to the more weight.—Statesville Landmark.

WILLFUL WILLIAM.
The Autocratic Methods of the German Emperor.

His Passion for Saying and Doing Things in a Sensational Manner—He Utterly Ignores the Makers of the Empire.

The most interesting figure in Europe at present is the young German emperor. He is the last of the kings among men who go to the housetop to proclaim that in their sacred persons the sovereign rules by "divine right," and that a king is still "the Lord's anointed." Like to Webster's old soldier, he is a ruler that has come down to us from a former generation, or rather a former age, the dark or the middle one, when there was no pretension that royalty might not aspire to which was not readily acknowledged by the popular mind. The elder king might and did claim that a divinity did hedge him about, and that the leper who touched only the hem of the royal mantle would depart whole and clean, and his claims to anything, natural or supernatural, were conceded to be good. "The king can do no wrong" is still a pleasant legal fiction, but it was once a matter of popular belief. Nobody really believes it now, but the young emperor tries to make it appear as if everybody believes it, and he has no doubt convinced himself that he does. How he can do so in view of the criticisms made upon him and his conduct by even a part of the press of his own country and the caricature and ridicule of the foreign newspapers, especially of the London Punch, seems incomprehensible. That he is not at all like one of the old kings of the middle ages, as he pretends to be, who ruled absolutely, whose will or whim was the only law of his subjects, is easily demonstrated, not only by the fact that the people have their representative legislature, who make the laws, impose taxes, and make or refuse to make appropriations, but that his old chancellor, banished and stripped of all authority, can and does arraign and defy him and his policy, and cannot be silenced or punished for his obduracy.

The truth is that Emperor William is really a make-believe survivor of the old sort of kings who ruled autocratically, absolutely, and, as was contended, were kings by divine right. He does the most extraordinary things and says them, and all the world, even in Berlin, looks on at the spectacle and laughs as if the kaiser were a king of a sprightly burlesque set before them on the stage. He is always in evidence in one way or another, and always suggesting an elder sort of royalty. At the banquet of the Brandenburg diet, speaking apropos of the silver jubilee of the empire, he made a number of exceedingly florid and sentimental references to the special grace of Heaven to him and his house since he has been emperor. He exalted kingship and his grandfather directly, and thereby, indirectly, himself. "What have we witnessed," he said, "and what has been effected, we owe solely to the great Emperor William and his trust in God. The entire celebrations of the victories of the German arms, which were held in 1896, culminated in the glorification of his personality, which has become nothing less than holy to us." Not a word about the old chancellor, who was not royal except in his majesty of mind and purpose; but who was the master of William and who really won all those victories and out of them constructed the mighty German empire, with comparatively insignificant Prussia as a nucleus, and out of its king created an emperor, and gave this brash young swashbucker a chance to make himself so interesting and picturesque a personage.

Referring further to his grandfather, and as if to wholly obliterate Bismarck and what he had done, the emperor said: "It is our sacred duty to preserve his personality and hallowed memory against all comers," including, of course, Bismarck and all that group of great statesmen and soldiers who planned and fought with him for the making of the empire, and who gave William II. the opportunity he is now enjoying of posing as an old-time king, to the great amusement of the 19th century. The czar of Russia is a real autocrat, but even he is an up-to-date monarch. He does not send hysterical messages to Mr. Kruger, write songs or paint allegorical pictures, make ridiculous speeches or pretend to be absolute with the Reichstag saying nay to his schemes of education, taxation, or militarism. The young emperor is a source of universal interest, not only because of what he does, but of the expectation of the more extraordinary or ridiculous things he may do next. He keeps alive, by his prancing and posing, memories of a royalty that is forever past, and suggests, not what a king is, but what a king would be if 19th century civilization and political progress would let him disport himself to the top of his bent. Nobody except England and Bismarck gets really angry with him, barring members of the family of his grandfather that he turns out of doors or locks up in their castles when the royal humor takes him; he is not offensive, but amusing; interesting and picturesque as a pretender to a sort of majesty that has no existence outside of history.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

CATARRH.

His Worst Enemy Defeated by
P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

FOR THREE YEARS HE SUFFERED--COULD HARDLY BREATHE AT NIGHT--ONE
NOSTRIL CLOSED FOR 10 YEARS.

Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of DeLeon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch, glad for the night coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him. He could not sleep on either side for two years. P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him in quick time.

DE LEON, TEXAS.
Messrs. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga. Gentls: I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily. I have not slept on either side for two years; in fact, I dreaded to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position all night. I am 50 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally.
Yours respectfully,
A. M. RAMSEY.

THE STATE OF TEXAS—County of Comanche.—Before the undersigned authority on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine is true.
A. M. RAMSEY.
Sworn to and subscribed before me this August 4th, 1891.

Our School System.

The next General Assembly will have to do something with regard to our public school system. At present the schools are mostly living by their powers of endurance. The county superintendents and the school boards having been removed, the State superintendent and the county commissioners are alone in charge. This practically leaves the county systems without a head, as the State superintendent cannot by any means reach all the teachers. The books for the schools are to be selected by men chosen primarily to look after the roads, the jails and the county poor. This is a make-shift system, and will not do. We are in hopes that in another year there will be greatly increased appropriations, longer school terms, more schools, better paid teachers, all under the direction of a coherent system divided by districts, and directed by men selected especially for their fitness without regard to politics. No anarchist is worse than he who touches the schools with politics.—Biblical Recorder.

Too Gallant.
"Yes, I told him that it was said that kisses were much sweeter in the dark."

"And he turned down the gas?"
"The idiot did nothing of the kind. He just sat there like a stick and said that if a girl were as handsome as I, he thought darkness would detract from the pleasantness of the occasion. It was a very nice compliment, but there is time to speak and to act."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BOUGHT A STOLEN HORSE.

And is Out of Pocket Accordingly.

This morning a stranger went to Mr. H. A. Blow and told him he wanted a horse and buggy sold at auction, but before the hour for the sale the man sold the entire outfit to Policeman Cox for $26. Later information came from Henderson that a horse and buggy had stolen, and the description given of them and of the man fitted those here. Before the man could be arrested he gave the officers the slip. And Policeman Cox is out the $26 he paid for the horse and buggy. It is said the man arrived Friday evening and spent the night here.

LATE NEWS.

At Brenham, Tex., a man named John Brooks shot and killed his daughter and her sweetheart just as the couple started to board a train to go off and get married. Brooks then went to a rock quarry and blew himself to atoms with dynamite.

Five children while playing in the woods near Linewood, Mich., were poisoned by eating wild parsnip roots. Two of them died.

Six seamen were drowned in San Francisco Bay by the capsizing of their boat.

Attend Church and Sunday School.

The prospect is that tomorrow will be a pretty day, just such a day as will give people no excuse for not attending church. You might go to Sunday School also, as the lesson is very interesting and from it can be learned something of the guests who were invited to a Great Supper but "with one accord began to make excuse." Don't be like them.

As yet it looks like the fruit crop has sustained only slight damage.
