MEMBERS NOT PROMPT.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:—Please allow me enough space in your columns to say a few words regarding Hope Fire Company. We organized in April, 1895, and had two or three good meetings. The second Monday night in each month was selected as our regular time for meeting. The Foreman called meetings time and time again and we would not have enough men present to make a quorum.

A meeting was called on the 27th of May '96, for the election of officers and more than twenty men were present. Now I wish to know how in the name of common sense, a few men, less than a quorum, can be expected to keep the company in existence, much less in good working order. A meeting was called for Monday for the purpose of drill practice, and six members, out of twenty-eight enlisted, reported at the engine house.

I am aware of the fact that we have received very little encouragement from the town authorities and business men, but how can we expect to be encouraged by any one when the members manifest no interest whatever in the company or its meetings. I am informed that the purchase of a steamer is in contemplation; if it is purchased, in whose hands is it to be placed for operation in times of necessity? Is a system of water works is put in here, who will have charge of the hose reels? Now my advice to the members of Hope Fire Company is to attend its meetings and drills, or else disband and so inform the Town Councilmen, that they may know what to depend upon as the town advances in the proper step it is taking towards equipping itself with a better fire apparatus. A MEMBER.

Oakley Items.

OAKLEY, N. C., June 15, 1896.

Miss Alice Ivey, of Seven Springs, is visiting Miss Mary J. Whitehurst.

F. G. Hines, of Rocky Mount, arrived here Saturday evening and is visiting J. O. Williams.

Mrs. Bettie Andrews returned home Tuesday from Newbern where she has been visiting relatives.

S. R. Ross of this place is the champion potato raiser. He got 54 barrels off of one-half acre. Let us here if any one has done better.

Mrs. George W. Daniel and little daughter Johnnie, of Roanoke Rapids, spent Thursday and Thursday night here visiting the family of S. H. Taylor and left Friday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Thad. Moore, at Grimesland.

MARRIED—At the residence of the bride's mother Mrs. Emily Peal, of Martin county, on Wednesday June 10th, at 12 o'clock, James B. Whitehurst and Miss Mary E. Peal were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Elder Henry Peal officiating. The attendants were H. B. Peal with Miss Mary Whitehurst, W. J. Jenkins with Miss Emma Griffith, J. H. Taylor with Miss Cadie Whitehurst, J. F. Whitehurst with Miss Lula Roberson. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party left for the home of the groom where a reception was held. May their lives be long and happy and may no sorrow cross their pathway, and when they are called from hence may they reach that peaceful abode where all is love, peace and unity.

Seven Springs.

Mr. J. A. Ricks, who returned Monday from a week's stay at Seven Springs, tells us it is one of the nicest and most enjoyable places he ever visited. A portion of the week there were as many as thirty guests there, and always enough to make an enjoyable crowd. The proprietor, Mr. J. H. Conville, is a hotel man right and looks well to the comfort and care of his guests.

The Book Has Not Appeared.

Some time ago an old maid from Connecticut came down South for the purpose of writing a book on "Slavery and Its Horrors." The would-be authoress got off the train at a little way station in South Carolina, and seeing an old darkey sunning himself on a bench by the side of a grocery store, she went up to him with pencil and pad in hand for an interview, and accosting the old fellow she said:

"Uncle, did you ever wear a chain?" The old darkey replied: "Yessum, yessum, dat I did."

"Who took that chain off you?" the lady asked.

"Sherman's men, mam," replied the ex-slave.

What brave, great-hearted noble men," said the authoress. Do you not feel grateful to those boys in blue for taking off that galling chain of oppression?"

"No, dat I don't," replied the old fellow, "for when dem blame Yankees took off dat chain dey took off dat silver watch what was hung to hit dat old Marster gib me to keep while he wuz in de wah."

That book on "Slavery and Its Horrors" has not yet appeared.—Monroe Enquire.

The Bank of Greenville.

This bank effected a reorganization on Monday and is capitalized at $50,000 with $25,000 of the capital paid in. In the reorganization a number of the most substantial business men of the county were added to the stockholders. The new officers of the bank are R. L. Davis, President; R. A. Tyson, Vice-President; J. L. Little, Cashier. Since this institution was first started as a private bank by Messrs. Tyson & Rawls it has had a successful career, and now under its reorganization and increased facilities it will go on to still greater success and accomplish even more good for Greenville.

The announcement of the bank appears in another column.

Off to the Wedding.

Lieutenant B. F. Sugg left this morning to be at the marriage of Col. W. T. Hughes to Miss Clara E. Davis, of Norfolk. He will go by Goldsboro where he will join Capt. T. H. Bain and his company officers Wednesday and they will join Governor Carr and his party at Weldon. The party will go by special train to Norfolk reaching there at 4:20 P. M.

Base Ball.

The Kinston base ball club wired this morning that they will be over to-morrow to play the Greenville club. The game will be called at 2 P. M., sharp, at the park in Skinnerville. Bu. Cherry tells us there will be no charge for admission to see the game except for seats on the grand stand or in the band wagon.

KEEP COOL.

We show the grandest assortment of Fancy Cheviot Business Suits ever brought to Greenville. A superb collection of the choicest patterns and fabrics in ultra fashionable styles. Beautiful broken plaids, indistinct plaids, neat pin checks, fancy Clay weaves, silk mintures pin dots—the colorings, cut and the make all of the latest merchant tailor kind—the price of which is very low down.

HATS! A nice line of Straw Hats still left to select from. Your own price not refused.

On the cold grey shore, Oh sea,
But when I have a Shirt Waist from Lang,
Your breaks don't bother me.

With apologies to Tennyson by a young lady who bought a Shirt Waist elsewhere and found the material was not worth the time and labor used in making. She has since bought one of ours and found out the difference. Our Shirt Waist Silks combine durability with style and are sure to please. A new selection received this week. There are some styles among the many that will please you. The right goods at the right price will trade every time.

Convention Dates.

Republican National Convention, St. Louis, June 16.]

Democratic National Convention, Chicago, July 7.

Populist National Convention, St. Louis, July 22.]

Silver National Convention, St. Louis, July 22.

Democratic State Convention, Raleigh, June 25.

The Republican National Convention met at St. Louis to-day. It is thought that the convention will continue through the entire week, probably longer. We predict the convention will nominate McKinley and adopt a platform that is a straddle on the money question

In some of our exchanges we have seen the name of Maj. E. J. Hale, editor of the Fayetteville Observer, suggested as a delegate at large from this State to the Democratic National Convention at Chicago. The REFLECTOR is in hearty accord with this suggestion and believes that the State could have no abler representative in the convention than Maj. Hale.

Some of the colored delegates to the Republican National Convention, in St. Louis, must be tough looking customers. One of them from Texas got lost on the streets of St. Louis, Saturday night, and began stopping pedestrians to inquire his way. One man who was thus stopped thought he was being held up by a robber and shot the delegate.

TO EXCLUDE THE NEGRO LABORERS.

Northern Settlers in Mass Meeting at Fitzgerald, Ga.. Resolve to Drive the Blacks From the Colony.

A few days ago the colonists of the town of Fitzgerald in the State of Georgia, held a meeting, 300 being present. A resolution was passed unanimously calling on the entire population to exclude negroes from the colony. In addition to this, or rather as a supplement to it, notices were posted in various conspicuous places, adorned with skulls and cross-bones to this effect:

"Laborers—There will be a meeting of the laboring class and mechanics of the city of Fitzgerald to-night at 7:30 o'clock, in the Fitzgerald block, for the purpose of excluding all colored labor from the colony. If this be the white man's town let's have it white; if not let the niggers have it.

"By order of the committee."

Now, Fitzgerald is a Southern town. It is in the heart of a Southern State. What Fitzgerald says the South is supposed to echo. And Fitzgerald says that no negro need reply. Fitzgerald is to be a white man's town. The colored man and brother must move on. How the Northern press will ring with denunciation at this fresh exhibition of Southern hatred of the negro! How the sectional shriekers in this part of the country will hold the bull dozer and the old slave-owner up to public execration because of their proscriptive and relentless persecution of the black man!

And yet, Fitzgerald is not a Southern town. It does not represent Southern sentiment. It is not in tune with any really Southern community, either in Georgia or in the neighboring States. The 7,000 persons who constitute the population of Fitzgerald are, almost without exception, of Northern birth and breeding. They migrated quite recently from the Northwestern States. Nearly half of them belong to the Grand Army of the Republic. They are not Southerners, not ex-rebels, not former slave owners or the descendants of slave-owners. They are Northern men, former soldiers of the Union, representative of the sentiment of the section from which they came and so little in accord with the people of Georgia among whom they have settled that on the occasion of the meeting above referred to, some of the speakers declared that the Southerners loved the negroes better than they did the Northerner, and dwelt upon that hypothesis with great resentment.

We mention these more or less important facts merely way of arresting the flow of indignant comment which would otherwise have emanated from sectional newspapers of the North.—Washington Post.

SHE AND HER PARENTS.

There's a house a few miles from the city

I frequently linger outside; 'Tis the home of a maid who is pretty A maid I would like for my bride. I fear that I never shall win her, My passion is hopeless and mate. I'm sure that her parents would skin her

If they thought that she smiled on my suit.

Her eyes are the purest and brightest That ever encouraged a hope; Her skin is the softest and whitest That ever shed luster on soap; Her hair is the richest and goldiest That ever a hairdresser dressed, And her parents are surely the coldest A heroine ever possessed.

Her voice—it's a mezzo soprano— Would make even Patti afraid, And the way that she plays the piano Puts Rubinstein quite in the shade. More perfect she is than perfection; Resign her I can't, and I won't! And she looks upon me with affection, But her parents—oh, bother them—don't.

They intend her to marry a title; They want to address her, "Your Grace," They've made up their minds this is vital; Which scratches me out of the race. Nor do I, in theory, blame them. She's worthy a duke, I aver. It's true I'd be puzzled to name them A duke who is worthy of her.

Oh, I know she's beyond and above me;

I deserve to be hung, I'm aware, For presuming to think she could love me,

But I don't altogether despair. For my heart undergoes an expansion When I think, what I'll tell you about, Of that night when I called at her mansion, And her parents, God bless them, were out.

When I think of the way she received me, Of the way, and the words, that I spoke, Of the way that she blushed, and believe me,

Of the sixpence we solemnly broke, Of the mutual hopes we confided, As we blended our voices in song, And that rapturous kiss we divided— Well, her parents can go to Hong-kong!

—Idler.

The Brook Was Stocked.

I had just got my rod together and was hooking on a worm when the owner of the brook, a sturdy and somewhat ill looking farmer, appeared on the bank besides me. I offered a short salutation and received one in return, considerably shorter than my own.

"Any trout in this brook?" I asked.

"Chock full on 'em."

"You allow fishing here, of course?"

"Yaas, ef the pay is all right."

"How much?"

"Five dollars a trip, now she's stocked."

"Oh, she's stocked, is she? Well, I'll give you $5—in advance too."

He pocketed the money, and I swashed down the brook, a basketful of half pounders swimming before my dazzled vision. In the first three miles the only bite I had was from my big coat pocket. I spent an hour casting in "the pool," another one through "the cut," and finished out the afternoon skirmishing around the shores of "the pond." Then night came on, and I was glad. If ever I have an evil deed to perform, anything like murdering an ablebodied farmer, I prefer to do it after dark. On my way to the station I stopped at the house of the farmer and inquired for him.

"Pa's gone tur the village," said the boy. "He got some money turday, so he's gone over tur git some groceries."

"Your father told me the brook was stocked," I said fiercely.

"So 'tis."

"I don't believe there's a trout in it over an inch long."

"I don't, nuther," said the boy. "Pa didn't stock it tell las' summer."—New York World.

Some philosopher has observed that "a man sometimes obtains a reputation for being close because he pays all his debts and hasn't any money left to get a reputation with for being liberal." We all know the folks who get a reputation for liberality by subscribing largely to all benevolent purposes but never pay the subscriptions; and we all know others who subscribe liberally and pay but pay with somebody else's money—that is, with money they honestly owe. They are seen of men and applauded while often the fellow who pays his honest debts and therefore has little to spare is called a skin flint because he doesn't defraud his neighbors by giving money away that he owes to them. But such is life. The Statesville Landmark says it, and it is so.

A MASCULINE WEAKNESS.

Every Man Carries His Favorite Remedy Always with Him.

It is customary for men to sneer good-naturedly at the physical weakness of the opposite sex, but women would doubtless be surprised could they know how generally the medicinal remedy habit permeates the ranks of their masculine friends. Think over your list of male acquaintances and pick out the few who have no ailments and carry no bottles, powders or preparations. They will be very few indeed, unless your list includes but very few young men, says the New York Herald.

It has been said that every woman knows the best face wash on earth and is willing to part with her secret only on compulsion, but will try anything else suggested by a friend. But men are the most obstinate believers in sovereign remedies. Every man carries at least one remedy in his inside pocket and is willing to unload it on anybody who will listen or dare to test its infallibility. I have known four or five healthy-looking men in a group, not one of whom would be suspected of ever being ill, draw concealed vials or pellets and little unsuspected boxes of pills and astonishingly worded prescriptions from their confidential hiding places, and discourse most learnedly upon their miraculous power.

In every case of this kind there has been at some time, more or less remote, an apparent justification of merit claimed, from which time and henceforth forever that particular individual goes contentedly and even boastfully bound to that medicinal chariot wheel.

Railroads in India.

A good deal of public interest attaches to the Ahmedabad-Parantij railway line from the fact of its being the first railway constructed by private enterprise in India with rupee capital.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—Washington is noted for the beauty of the trees which line her sidewalks, and the reason lies in the fact that for many years past she has made the care of them a municipal duty.

Boston has solved the tramp problem by requiring the "Weary Willies" to work for everything they receive at the Wayfarers' lodge, and indignant men of leisure are boycotting the place.

—The latest fashionable ailment in New York is "ammonia colds." According to the doctors who do business with the "400" they are caused by overindulgence in artificial ice rinks. The "shopping face," the "golf straddle" and the "bicycle hump" are not in it with this latest affliction.

—Nini Novgorod, in Russia, was almost obliterated by fire in 1864. All the buildings and bazars in which were held the annual fair of merchants from all parts of Europe and Asia were blotted out, and that year most of the trading was done in tents or temporary structures.

—Of every 1,000 clergymen between the ages of 45 and 65 only 15.93 die annually, but of every 1,000 doctors between the ages of 45 and 65 no fewer than 28.93, it is said, die every year. Some statisticians attribute the high rate of mortality among medical men to the harassing nature of their duties.

—Last June James Bridgeford lost his fine $75 gold watch while plowing on his farm near Kelso, Wash. He hunted the land over at different times, drawing harrows and even forking most of it over, but never could find the watch. The other day George McClellan came through the field and picked the watch up.

—A Frenchman named Villon has invented a novel method of sealing champagne bottles. The loss and deterioration of champagne due to the escape of gas, long, he says, made some process of perfect air-tight sealing desirable. M. Villon accomplishes this by covering the cork and part of the neck with a thin layer of copper electrically deposited.

AT A WIDOW'S WEDDING.

Etiquette Which Governs This Highly Momentous Event.

Etiquette governing the wedding of a widow has been recently reorganized and temporarily, at least, is finding high vogue among certain great ladies who are making second matrimonial ventures. The widow's engagement ring is now a peridot, which in reality is an Indian chrysolite, and a deep leaf-green in color. The peridot ring is set about with diamonds, and when it arrives the lady gives her first engagement ring to her eldest daughter and her wedding ring to her eldest son.

One week before the wedding a stately luncheon is given to the nearest and dearest of the old friends of the bride to be. After the engagement's announcement she appears at no public functions. At the altar her dress may be of any subdued shade of satin. To make up for the absence of veil and orange blossoms, profusions of white lace trim the skirt and waist of the bridal gown en secondes nocces. Even the bonnet is of white lace and the bouquet is preferably of white orchids. And up the aisle the lady goes, hand in hand with her youngest child, no matter whether it is a boy or girl. The little one wears an elaborate white costume, holds the bride's bouquet, and precedes the newly married pair to the church door. Where there is a large family of children and a desire on the widow's part for a trifle more display than is usually accorded on such occasions, all of her daughters, in light gowns and bearing big bouquets, support their mother to the altar.

An informal little breakfast now follows the ceremony. Such a breakfast is scarcely more than a light, simple luncheon, served from the buffet, wound up by a wedding cake and a toasting posset, but the bride of a second marriage does not distribute cake nor her bouquet among her friends. Her carriage horses do not wear favors, either, though shoes and rice can be freely scattered in her wake, and, to the comfort and economy of her friends, she does not expect anything elaborate in the way of wedding gifts.—N. Y. Sun.

To Steady Pictures.

The dealers in upholstery hardware are frequently asked for some scheme to steady a picture on a wall, especially small pictures. A housemaid with a duster is everlastingly setting askew small pictures, and the average room, after dusting, looks sadly awry. All sorts of picture hooks have been invented which are supposed to so grip the picture cord that it will always hold the picture evenly on the wall. Then, again, corner clamps have been brought out, one for each corner of the picture, the clamps being driven into the wall—but everything of that sort has some objection. The simplest and most infallible way of holding a picture immovable is by making a small gimlet hole in the extreme lower point of the inside of the frame, where it touches the wall, and at this point drive a small brad into the wall, leaving about half an inch protruding. The hole in the frame caps this brad like a socket, and the ordinary dusting of the pictures does not move it in the least.—Chicago Tribune.

Twinkings.

Brown—"Does your wife keep her temper very well?"

Jones—"Um—um—er—pretty well; but I get most of it"—Answers.

The Nasty Cynic—"Love," sighed the fair thing, "is very, very blind."

"And marriage," said the nasty cynic, "is a truly marvellous oculist,"—London Judy.

"Sir, allow me to shake hands with you, just by way of showing that I know somebody here."

"With pleasure, sir: as I am precisely in the same boat as yourself,"—Le Ga'lois.

"Oh, dear," said the girl with the X ray gane, as she looked at her bashful lover, "here's Jack come again tonight and not brought his backbone with him."—Bazar.

Gloomy Future for Lambs.—Only think of it—it is said that in 100 years the lion will be extinct! Then the poor lamby probably will have to lie down all by its lonesome self, isn't it awful to think of?—Boston Transcript.

A New York orchestra of thirteen pieces is going on a strike because thirteen is an unlucky number. They want the manager to hire a piccolo player to increase the number; he is thinking of discharging a meddlesome bassoon player, to make the number lucky and less.
