Weekly Crop Bulletin.

The reports of correspondents of the Weekly Crop Bulletin, issued by the North Carolina Climate and Crop Service, for the week ending Saturday, June 13th, 1896, indicate a continued favorable progress in growth of crops. The only really unfavorable reports come from the north-east portion of the State and a few localities in the central portion, where there was too much rain, and crops are very grassy. The temperature was nearly normal during the week, but the nights have been too cool for cotton. Sufficient rain occurred everywhere; the amount of sunshine was about fifty per cent. The next week is likely to be dry and warm.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

The weather was generally favorable this week, except that the nights were too cool for cotton, and in some of the northern counties (Halifax, Gates, Northampton, Hertford and Currituck) there was again too much rain, which prevented farm work and injured crops slightly. It is still dry over portions of Craven county, but generally sufficient rain has fallen. Cotton continues fine, though not growing as fast as it would with warmer weather; some lice reported. Corn crop especially fine; nearly all old corn hilled; roasting-ears in market. Tobacco doing well; laying by and topping begun; worms not so numerous. Wheat-cutting and housing still in progress; all sweet potatoes have been set; peas and pea-nuts doing well. Peaches and apples of an inferior quality in market.

CENTRAL DISTRICT.

The past week, though too cool for cotton, was generally favorable, except where too much rain fell, where work has been interrupted so long that crops are getting grassy and need work badly. Considerable damage by a severe hail-storm occurred in Johnston county on the 9th and heavy rains locally in other counties on 9th and 13th. It is too cool for cotton, and lice are damaging it. Blooms have been seen in the south, indicating unusually advanced stage. Where clean and cultivated cotton is vigorous and healthy. Corn being laid by in good shape; some reports of damage by chinch bugs, in general crop better than for years. Tobacco doing well; early-set being laid by. Wheat harvest about over and much of it has been housed; thrashing just beginning. Oats being cut. Many peas have been sown in stubble and are up and growing nicely. Blackberries ripening.

WESTERN DISTRICT.

Reports are nearly all favorable from this district, though the weather has been a little cool in the west and north portions. Fine rains occurred everywhere and nowhere in excess. All crops are growing well. Cotton is larger than usual at this season; first blooms reported on June 10th in Gaston county; very little trouble from lice. Corn is making good stalk. Tobacco is growing off finely. Farmers about through cutting wheat (except in extreme west and north), and are ready to begin thrashing. Oat harvest on hand; spring oats improved. Chinch bugs on many farms have gone from the wheat fields to the corn and are damaging it. Many peas were sown this week. Blackberries are ripening and will be abundant; other fruit poor, except grapes, which are in good condition. Some farms are grassy, but the majority in this district are clean and well cultivated.

KINSTON vs. GREENVILLE.

Score 19 to 4 in Favor of Kinston.

The Kinston base ball club came over on the morning train to play a game with the Greenville club. Our boys met them at the depot and entertained the visitors at Hotel Macon.

The game was called at 3:15 o'clock with Ed Parker and H. C. Hooker umpires. The players of the respective clubs and their positions as follows:

KINSTON.	GREENVILLE.
W. B. Coleman, c.	Earnest Forbes,
B. E. Stanley, p.	G. J. Woodard,
Jesse Herbert, 1b.	Ola Forbes,
Frank Lewis, 2b.	R. M. Moye,
J. Hickson, 3b.	John Stokes,
C. Oettinger, ss.	J. B. Jarvis,
E. Wooten, cf.	J. I. Smith,
W. W. White, lf.	Gus Forbes,
H. D. Stanley, rt.	James Moore,

Kinston got the drop on things and piled up 10 runs on first inning, while the home boys were shut out when they went to the bat. Our boys watched their work better next time and let the visitors make only one run but got nothing themselves in return. The third inning gave Kinston a cipher, and Joe Jarvis made a run for the home boys. Kinston made three on fourth and Greenville came off blank again. The visitors took another egg on fifth inning and the home boys the same.

In the sixth Kinston added four runs and Bob Moye, George Woodward and Gus Forbes gave Greenville three more.

In the seventh Kinston pulled down one more and Greenville came off with nothing. The eighth gave the visitors another egg, and the home boys the same. In the ninth and last inning Kinston wound up with another cipher and Greenville came off likewise.

The result of the game was 19 to 4 in favor of Kinston.

The home boys played well considering that they had had no practice and would not have been beaten so badly but for their fumbling in first inning. Still they are not a match for Kinston.

The Kinston club are exceedingly clever boys and we would be glad to see them over again.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matters Of Interest Over the State.

Wake county had a severe hail storm on Sunday. The damage to crops is estimated at $20,000.

The first through train of the Southern Railway from Norfolk to Chattanooga, killed a colored man and his daughter just before reaching Raleigh. The man was trying to get his little daughter off the track upon which they were walking when the train killed them both.

The hands at work on the ditches for the water mains, a few days ago, came across the old pump logs used in conveying the water to town 70 years ago. In one of the logs was found a squirrel's store of about a peck of hickory nuts and acorns in a good state of preservation.—Rutherfordton Democrat.

Pleased With the Trip.

As John Ricks had his say in yesterday's REFLECTOR about Seven Springs, Jake Higgs says he is entitled to a "round" too. Jake tells us they were very much improved by their trip to these noted springs, and that they found everything there very pleasant indeed. In fact, with such a proprietor as Mr. J. H. Fonville it could not be otherwise. He says they made some acquaintances among the fair sex that John says "money would not buy."

KEEP COOL.

We show the grandest assortment of Fancy Cheviot Business Suits ever brought to Greenville. A superb collection of the choicest patterns and fabrics in ultra fashionable styles. ## A NEW TOBACCO PEST.

A Warning to Tobacco Growers.

A small caterpillar has been discovered mining the leaves of growing tobacco. The caterpillar is about one-half inch long, greenish with a dark brown head. It makes an irregular or blotch mine by eating the green matter or parenchyma of the leaf, leaving the skins intact and the leaf transparent. The caterpillar is extremely voracious and as several usually mine one leaf the leaf is soon rendered worthless. The insect belongs to the sub-family of Tineid moths, whose best known representatives are the clothes and fur moth and the Anguimoid grain moth. This particular species is yet unnamed.

REMEDIES:—Being protected by the skins of the leaf, no ordinary poison or insecticide will destroy this pest, nor can it be hand-picked without destroying the leaf. The only treatment is to watch for leaves showing transparent blotches and when found to remove and burn them. So far this pest has been reported only from one locality in North Carolina, but it behooves tobacco growers everywhere to look out for it and destroy it as soon as it appears. If it becomes common it will greatly harm the tobacco industry of the State.—Gerald McCarthy, Entomologist, N. C. Experiment Station.

MY ANGELIC HUSBAND.

There are husbands who are pretty,
There are husbands who are witty,
There are husbands who in public are as smiling as the morn;
There are husbands who are healthy,
There are husbands who are wealthy
But the real angelic husband—well, he's never yet been born.

Some for strength of love are noted,
Who are really so devoted
That when'er their wives are absent
they are lonesome and forlorn;
And now and then you'll find one
Who's a fairly good and kind one.
Yet the real angelic husband—O, he's never yet been born.

So the woman who is mated
To a man who is rated
As "pretty fair" should cherish him forever and a day;
For the real angelic creature—
He has never been discovered, and he won't be, so they say.

—T. B. Aldrich, in the Forum.

'Tis here we pledge perpetual hate
To all that can intoxicate.

TEMPERANCE DEPARTMENT.

Little Prohibitionists.

"Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth itself aright."—Proverbs 23:31.

DEAR CHILDREN:—You are wondering what that big word means. A Prohibitionist is one who does not drink wine, or anything intoxicating. A Little Prohibitionist is a child who will not touch cider, wine, or any strong drink. From now on I wish to show you why little children ought to be Little Prohibitionists.

"The little boy who never learns to taste liquor, to utter an oath, or pollute his lips with tobacco, will make the best kind of a Temperance man."

UNCLE TED.

"Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink not wine nor strong drink."—Judges 13:4.

DEAR CHILDREN:—I send you today a little poem entitled, "A Little Boy's Resolve." Let us all make this resolve, so we will all grow up to be temperance men and women.

UNCLE TED.

A Little Boy's Resolve.

I'll cough not, taste not, handle not,
Nor on it cast my eyes,
For in the sparkling wine-glass
A deadly serpent lies.

Cold water is the drink for me,
'Tis God's own gift, most kind.
No hidden power in it lies
To steal away my mind.

"For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty."—Proverbs 23:21.

DEAR CHILDREN:—Today I have a story for you about Tim and Tot who took a trip around the world one day. What lots of misery they found, to be sure, in all those countries on account of strong drink; and how glad they must have been to find themselves once more back to their temperance homes.

UNCLE TED.

A Trip Around the World.

Dear Tim and Tot, one summer day,
A banner white unfurled.
Said Tim, Let's take this temperance flag

A trip around the world.

So they played t at the garden was the world, and all the bushes were countries. They found that in all these countries strong drink was made, and that it did much harm to the people. In each country they waved their flag, and bade the people be sober.

They went to Great Britain, and found the folks making rye into whiskey. Next they crossed to France, and saw them turning grapes into brandy. In Spain they used their grapes for wine; in Italy they made wine of grapes; in Germany they made beer of hops and barley; in Russia they made strong drink of rye and corn; in India they were making whiskey of palm juice and fruit; in China the rice was turned, not into food, but into strong drink.

They crossed to Alaska and found the poor people making rum of molasses. In the United States the apples, peaches, corn, rye and hops were turned into strong drink. Down in Mexico the agave plant was made into a foul drink which made people drunk and crazy. In the West India Isles sugar was turned into rum. In South America the folks used fruit, rice, sugar and grain for cruel drink. "What a crazy place this world is!" said Tim. "Folks spoil good stuff to make bad stuff." I think said Tot that it must make God sorry, and the angels cry, to see so much trouble down in the world.

Delirium Tremens.

The nature of delirium tremens is a most interesting study, and the comprehension of the subject might scientifically be the means of deterring many a man from strong drink. Alcohol has a great affinity for the brain, and it plays with harsh and dreadful note upon the nervous system. (And yet people are continually taking it to quiet their nerves.) In the brain of the drunkard alcohol may be found without change or assimilation, and the brain being the very seat and centre of the nervous system, this most delicate part of our organism is directly and immediately affected by this most powerful and dangerous stimulant, which always intoxicates when used in sufficient quantities. The nerves are thus paralyzed, and hence the brain, having lost the medium by which it communicates thought and emotion to the senses, becomes unconscious in a state of intoxication. In the repeated effects of alcohol upon the nervous system, and especially when this long-repeated effect is suspended, these paralyzed nerves begin to violate with a force which makes the whole body tremble; and in their disordered and abnormal violation they convey confused and distorted conceptions from the brain to the senses; and hence, at intervals, the victim of habitual drink imagines as present the hell of his vice in all the horrid shapes by which the confused brain plays upon the nerves. Fancy and imagination takes the throne of reason.—Character Sketches.

A Fatahar Scene.

Just at this moment the outer door was pushed open with a slow, hesitation motion; then a little pale face peered in, and a pair of soft blue eyes went searching about the room. Conversation was instantly hushed, and every face, excited with interest, turned towards the child, who had now stepped through the door. She was not over ten years of age, but it moved the heart to look upon the saddened expression of her young countenance, and the forced bravery therein, that scarcely overcame the native timidity so touchingly visible.

"Father!" I have never heard this word spoken in a voice that sent such a thrill along every nerve. It was full of sorrowful love, full of a tender concern that had its origin too deep for the heart of a child. As she spoke, the little one sprang across the room, and laying her hands upon the arm of Joe Morgan, lifting her eyes, that was ready to gush with tears. "Come, father! Won't you come home?" I hear that low, pleading voice even now, and my heart gives a quicker throb, poor child! Darkly shadowed was the sky that bent gloomily and suffered the child to lead him from the room. He seemed passive in her hands, I noticed that he thrust his fingers nervously into his pockets, and that a troubled look went over his face as they were withdrawn. His last sixpence was in the till of Simon Slade!—Ten nights in a bar-room.

At a temperance celebration in New-market, a little lad appeared in the procession bearing a flag, on which was inscribed the following: "All's right when daddy's sober," a sentence which has been aptly described as "a volume in a line."

D. Charles Jewett, while arguing for prohibition, once said: "Why not pour the rum into the gutter? It is destined to the gutter at last; why not pour it there at once, and not wait to strain it through a man and spoil the strainer in the work?"

"It is computed that the aggregate wealth of eight millionaire brewers of New York city is $52,500,000. The money spent by workmen to help provide these eight men with palatial residences would furnish 52,500 of their families with pretty $1,000 cottages."

Six-year old Georgie heard his father and aunt talking about a neighbor who had beaten his wife while drunk. A short time after he asked his aunt why whiskey was called liquor. His aunt replied she did not know. Georgie said, "I think I do. It is because men drink it, and then go home and lick their wives; so it is called 'lick her'."

A WAR NOTE.

Col. John A. Cockerill's Happy Retort to a Boastful Britisher.
Representative Mercer, of Nebraska, met the late Col. John A. Cockerill during his trip through Japan about a year ago, says the Washington Post. Cockerill was then acting as war correspondent for the New York Herald. Representatives of all nations gathered at Yokohama, many of them tourists and others on business. It was at this time that Cockerill ran across a cockney Briton, who was boasting about the great prowess of his country, and making rather slighting allusions to the United States. His remarks aroused Cockerill's war spirit, and he told the Englishman that inasmuch as the United States had twice whipped England it could probably do so again.
"O—ah—my deah sah!" said the doughty Briton, "you ah mistaken, surely. If I remembah the history of my country we took yah capitol and burned it, don't you know?"
"Yes," said Cockerill, "you did take the capitol. And if I remember the history of my country you also took Bunker Hill. But you didn't take it very far. You let go of both of them like a red-hot brick, and at last accounts they were still in our possession. But let me tell you what we'll do next time we have a war with you. We'll go over there, tow your snug little island across the Atlantic, and haul it up the bay to New York for a wharf."
The Englishman did not continue the argument.

THE PRINCE OF MONACO.

Proprietor of the Famous Gaming Resort Receives President Faure.

Attention is called to that interesting person the prince of Monaco by the fact that the president of the French republic has just paid him a visit, says the New York Journal. Monaco is a principality within the borders and under the domination of a republic, and its internal government is at the same time a despotism compared to which the prince has himself said that of the czar's is mild.

His revenues from the gambling tables of Monte Carlo are very large. The principality is eight square miles in extent and includes the old and picturesque town of Monaco and the wicked but beautiful Monte Carlo. The prince legislates with the aid of such advisers as he chooses and a law goes into force by his decree solely. The name of the royal family is Grimaldi and it has reigned for 900 years. The present prince, Albert, is 48. He married first a sister of the duke of Hamilton. Eleven years later he was divorced for reasons that are not publicly known, the pope consenting to annul the marriage, a very unusual proceeding. The prince afterward married the widow of Duc de Richelieu, who is also a kinswoman of the poet Heine.

HOW TO WRITE A PLAY.

It Is Easy Enough If You Follow This Outline.

As a general thing the plays produced at the theaters these days are enough alike to create the impression that one man wrote all of them. The heroine, says the Acheson Globe, a foundling, is adopted by people who once had a daughter who ran off and disappeared. The villain discovers that the foundling is in reality the grandchild of her foster parents, and makes up his mind to marry her to get the old folks' money. He plots to get the hero, with whom the heroine is in love, out of the way. He charges him with murder, or with forgery (there the writer has a chance to vary his plot a little bit; he can have forgery to-night and murder to-morrow night) and the hero is put in jail.

The soubrette and the funny man unearth the plot, liberate the hero, accuse the villain, who confesses all, and in the last scene the old people find their grandchild, the heroine and her lover are united, the soubrette and the funny man agree to tie up, and the villain shoots himself.

Those who are ambitious to become play-writers will find in these details all the ingredients necessary to mix up for a popular play.

THE MUSTACHE.

How It Became a Symbol of Liberty and Fraternity.

The mustache, that questionable adornment of a man's upper lip, is trembling in the balance. The fashionable man of the hour who eschews this time-honored ornament will tell you that it is a crying and unnecessary evil, and is bound to go. And where can one find a better criterion of such momentous subjects than the fashionable man of the hour? In years to come the grandchildren of a beardless race may have to turn to their encyclopedias to find out what a mustache was. Anticipating this, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, a sort of advance sheet may be found in the following:

The home of the mustache is in Spain. After the Moors first invaded the country the Christian and Moslem population became so mixed that it was difficult to say which were Moors and which were Spaniards.

The Spanish then hit upon a means by which they could at once distinguish their brethren. They did not shave their lips any longer, and they allowed a tuft of hair to grow below the mouth, so that their beards formed the rude outline of a cross.

Thus the mustache became a symbol of liberty and fraternity.

She wanted the Lightning to Strike and It Complied Promptly.

Quite a singular fulfillment of a wish occurred Thursday afternoon near Trappe Md. on board the regular steamer on the trip up the Choptank river during the thunderstorm in Dorchester and Talbot counties, but in a way not in accordance with the desire of the person who made the wish. It was a lady, who was watching the play of the fierce lightnings and the other exciting accompaniment of the storm. She said she "would like to see the lightning strike somewhere" meaning of course that she wished to see the effect of the display in some harmless way. But she no sooner uttered the wish than the lightning did strike on Chancellor's Point, in Talbot county, as was mentioned in the Sun's Cambridge dispatch this morning. Almost instantly the barn and stables on the farm of Mrs. Lyda Hughlett, on Chancellor's Point, were in flames and a number of horses and much provender and other stores were destroyed. The spectacle was most impressive, but the lady who made the wish to see the lightning strike somewhere, was horrified as soon as the wish had been gratified. The loss of stock and produce fell on Barton merriek, the tenant, and the loss on the building is sustained by the owner. The lady who made the wish says she will never entertain such a taought again, if she can help it.
