A RHYME OF POLITICS.

It's politics, politics, politics
From morn till the set o' the sun;
And "Who wants an office—an office?"
And just see the multitude ran!

Coroner,
Sheriff
And congressman,
Congressman,
Sheriff
And mayor;
The brass bands are playing,
The voters "hooraying"—
There's music galore in the air?

It's politics, politics
In the camps, in the courts, in the schools,
And hark! the brisk bids for the office—
The mortgages made on the mules!

Coroner,
Sheriff
And congressman,
Congressman,
Sheriff
And mayor;
The brass bands are playing,
The people "hooraying,"
And the world throws its hat in the air!

Brief Notes from Billville.

The rainy season is upon us and we have lost the election and our umbrella.

Our mule was struck by lightning yesterday. No doubt the lightning is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

We did not go as a delegate to Chicago. We walked home from the late world's fair, and we know when we are satisfied.

Several Billville veterans had to paw their cork legs to get home from Richmond.

We served through the late war and now our only consolation is that we can't have amputation in our wooden leg.—Atlanta Constitution.

Wife's Empty Purse.

"I never have five cents even for postage stamps without asking for it." The speaker was a young wife, who in her girlhood earned regular wages as a seamstress, and when married found her financial position changed. Even held the purse-strings and made plenty of money. But new machinery was often needed; improvements must be made; hired hands cost a good deal and so no allowance was thought of for the wife who had the position of "nurse, seamstress, housemaid, cook," with the added duties of motherhood.

"I always have a lump in my throat when I ask for a dollar," she said, "and I used to go to his pocketbook for spare change, for at the marriage service he said: 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow.' But when little Tom began to steal pennies because he wanted something and could not get it, I began to wonder if I had done wrong and the sin was visited on him."

It was a sad contrast, this little mother's tender conscience with a world of trickery and knavery.

Nowhere is this lack of pocket money felt so much as among farmers' wives and daughters. Many of them go from positions in the city, teachers, typewriters, sales women, with a regular salary—a good cook can earn $14 a month. She may marry a young farmer, and with all her life before her decide to be his helpmeet and money-saver. How they work and struggle to pay off the farm, to get the necessary improvements made. But when the fight is partly over, sometimes the young wife has a feeling of envy on Saturday nights, when her husband pays the "hands" who have worked for him, and has not a dollar for her; for she knows that they have been fed while she has served; that they have slept while she lost hours of slumber with the precious babe in arms, and that they can buy clothes that she would feel it extravagant to wear.—Montreal Witness.

Where Bicycles Come From.

It is a source of wonder where all the bicycles come from. A careful examination of the catalogues shows that there are more than 1,000 different makes of bicycles on the market. At some of these establishments as many as 100,000 wheels are made annually. Practically there are not patents on these machines, except on unimportant specialties, and so it is an easy matter to put a new wheel on the market. There is not so much difference in wheels as one is inclined to suppose. Few manufacturers make a whole machine in their own shops, but by far the larger number buy the parts from some maker, and simply put them together, finish them, give them a name, and put them on the market. For this reason a fully equipped bicycle manufactory can be put in running order for $5,000 or $6,000. Hundreds of wheels of different makes are produced, every piece of which is turned out of the same factory that furnishes the different parts, and all that the manufactory requires is a good master mechanic and some ordinary finishers and workmen. The bicycle is not an expensive thing to build, and the difference between the cost of the mount and the price it is sold for is so large that the manufacture of wheels has been enormously stimulated. But were it not for costly salesrooms, extensive advertising, and large commissions to agents, the price of the wheel would be very materially reduced to the purchaser. It is estimated that the present spring and summer at least 1,000,000 wheels have been sold in this country alone, which has involved an outlay of $50,000,000 by the wheelmen of the United States, and still the demand is unabated and bicycles are being marketed by the thousands every day.—Chicago News.

THE REAPERS.

The long day's toil was over,
A bird sang in a tree;
The sunshine kissed the clover
Goodby, and—she kissed me.

Then lovelier seemed the sunshine
And sweeter sang the bird,
And if the clover listened
My throbbing heart it heard.

For all day long a-reaping
In fields of silver shine,
I felt her heart a-creeping
And cuddling close to mine.

And lighter seemed the labor,
And winsomer the wheat
That spread its golden tresses
For the falling of her feet.

And when the toil was over
A bird sang in a tree;
The sunshine kissed the clover
Goodby, and—she kissed me!
—Frank L. Stanton.

The Microbe of Insanity.

The New York Journal is authority for the almost incredible statement that insanity has been found by Dr. Warren L. Babcock, of the St. Lawrence State Hospital, to be a contagious disease. It even publishes a letter from Dr. Babcock, in which he describes, in the most minute technical manner, how he drained the watery fluid from a spinal marrow of an acutely delirious maniac and succeeded in straining and isolating the germ of insanity. Furthermore, he claims to have positively identified this germ with that hitherto found in cases of croupous pneumonia and certain forms of meningitis. By reinjection of the germ-laden fluid he is said to have caused rabbits to become insane. All of which, on the mere face of it, is a sort of doubly tested demonstration of the truth of the contagiousness of insanity.

Dr. Babcock is so far convinced of the correctness of his theory that he intends to treat the insane with drainage injections of the aseptic or salt solutions which have power to destroy these germs or their toxins, supposed to press injuriously on the nerve centers of the brain or cortex. But aside from the seemingly dangerous character of this new operation, it would still seem to be an open question whether these isolated germs are those of insanity, after all.—Philadelphia Record.

Notes and Opinion.

The new Duchess of Marlborough has already become a favorite with the townspeople round about Woodstock and with the tenants and servants.

The Queen has ordained that the sister of the Duke of Hamilton shall enjoy the same rank as if their father had survived his kinsman, the late Duke.

The secret marks on Bank of England notes by which forgeries are so readily detected, are constantly being changed. The microscope will reveal many such peculiarities to an observant eye.

It is announced that "the Kaiser has confided his latest artistic efforts, 'After Sedan' and 'The Charge of the Guard at St. Polvat,' to the well-known battle-painter, Herr Roehling, who will put a few finishing touches to the imperial masterpieces."

With few exceptions the Boers are a community of stock farmers, and though no other place on earth is so rich in diamonds and precious stones as the Orange Free State and the South African republic, which they inhabit, they never engage in mining.

Whether kissing be unhealthy or not it is sometimes dangerous. A man in New York last Sunday, says the Wilmington (N. C.) Star, who had just been reconciled to his sweetheart after a miff, was instantly killed by a thunderbolt while in the act of kissing her, for rather while being kissed by her. The young woman was knocked unconscious, but survived. But the average lover will continue, as usual, to take chances on the lightning.

All Right in Theory.

"Have you read that book on the training of children?" he asked.

"I have," she replied. "I have read it through carefully as you requested."

"And you will be guided by it?"
"That is for you to say," she answered. "For me!" he exclaimed. "I am not the one who looks after the children."

"But you are the one who furnishes what is necessary to the nursery to carry out your theories in regard to bringing up children."

He looked a little dubious, but finally he asked what was necessary to have in order to carry out the provisions of the latest book of instruction for mothers.

"A maid or nurse for each child," she replied.

"Great mackerel!" he cried. "Three servants for the children!"

"It would be impossible to live up to the rules laid down by this book with any less," she answered, "and in addition to that we must have a governess and a dancing master."

"Throw it away," he said gloomily.

"It's like all the rest of them written to tell people who don't have to take care of their children how it should be done."

An enterprising summer resort man in Pennsylvania, who understands his business, offers "special rates to young men." Where the young men are the girls are bound to go.

His Art Gift.

She was visiting at the house of the eminent politician.

"I hear," she said, "that you have a valuable addition to your art collection."

"My art collection?" he repeated.

"Yes. I take it for granted that you must have one."

"I have ever striven, madam, to cultivate an appreciation of the beautiful."

"And wasn't it beautiful in the voters to remember you as they did?"

"I don't quite follow you, ma'am," said the eminent politician, growing red in the face.

"Why, I was told that they gave you a beautiful marble heart, and I am just dying to see it."—Wash.

The Fate of a Message.

We weighed anchor on Oct. 31, and when close to the south shore sent off two boats in search of seals. On this occasion one of the boats, being swamped in the surf, was immediately crushed against the rocks, its crew having a rather narrow escape from drowning. One of the men fought bravely in the breakers for half an hour, without relinquishing his grasp on his rifle.

With scrupulous care we now composed a letter upon which each of us carefully inscribed his signature. Having placed it in a small bladder which had been given to us for the purpose by the Norwegian consul in Melbourne, we consigned it to the waves and leaned over the bulwarks to see the mail depart. Much to our chagrin, a large albatross hove in sight, and before our message had gone many yards the huge bird gobbled it up. "The First Landing on the Antarctic Continent," by C. E. Borchgrevink, in Century.

A Rare Disease.

Diphtheria of the skin, a very rare disease, was cured by the use of antitoxin in a little 2½ year-old Berlin girl recently. She had been badly scalded with boiling water, and as the skin was healing she was kissed by her mother on the wounded spot. The mother had diphtheria, and thus communicated it to the baby's skin. The throat was not affected.

There is no real elevation of mind in a contempt of little things. It is, on the contrary, from the narrow views that we consider those things of little importance which have, in fact, such extensive consequences.—Fenelon.

A tobaccoist named Farr had the following painted above his door, "The best tobacco by Farr." Arrival tobaccoist, at the other end of the street, painted up, "Far better tobacco than the best tobacco by Farr."

Bronze Turkeys.

John Chamberlin, the epicurean hotel keeper, prides himself on the discovery to the outer world of the superior excellence of the Rhode Island turkey in firmness and sweetness of flesh and delicacy of flavor. These celebrated birds are the progeny of ancestors imported from England, and the hue of their plumage has given them the other name of "Bronze turkeys."

Some of the Northern doctors are quoted as saying that there is no such thing as genuine rabies from the bite of a dog, that it is purely a nervous disease and that when death results it is from brooding and imagination doubtless have much to do with the fatalities in such cases, but how will they account for the deaths of cattle, hogs and other animals from the bites of dogs? It may be said they do not die from these bites, but if so what is it that kills them with such horrid suffering.

IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Matters Of Interest Over the State.

Rev. J. D. Hutham, of Shelby, has been called to the Baptist church of Henderson. The Gold Leaf says he has not yet announced his decision.

G. B. Alford, of Raleigh, has announced himself as an independent candidate for Congress in the fourth district on a gold platform.

Gov. Carr has re-appointed the old board of directors of the North Carolina Railroad.

Josephus Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer, has been elected as the member for North Carolina of the Democratic National Executive Committee.

The town of Lexington had a $7,000 fire Tuesday.

THE CONVENTION.

The news that has come from the National Convention to-day has been about no news at all. A few bulletins managed to find their way to the telegraph office here, but they contained about as near no information as it was possible to get in them. About all that could be boiled down from these bulletins was that the committee on platform presented their report and the day was consumed in discussing this, the silver plank being the chief cause of wrangling. The wildest confusion has prevailed, every speaker being cheered by his admirers, while his opponents or those holding different views filled the hall with hisses, groans and cat calls.

Hill presented a minority report, taking exception particularly to the free coinage plank, precipitating a hot debate between himself and Tillman which was carried on amid an uproar. The proceedings of the convention were brought practically to a standstill, the chairman being unable to maintain order. There were intervals when quiet was restored and some one would begin speaking again, soon to be followed by another outbreak of confusion.

And, according to the aforementioned bulletins, this is about the sum of today's proceedings of the convention.

Work is moving along well on Rountree, Brown & Co's large prize house. It will be a three-story building with brick ordering and grading rooms in basement.

In the report of the commissioners meeting it will be seen that the amount paid to J. W. Smith, Superintendent of the County Home, is much larger than usual monthly payments. This, Mr. Smith tells us, is due to the building of two new houses at the Home.

Take Warning.

All Taxes on dogs and goats must be paid within the next twenty days or I shall proceed to collect them according to law. E. M. McGOWAN, Tax Collector.
