CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE.

When a man knows how to match a ribbon,
When woman learns to drive a nail,
When man can thread a needle deftly,
When mice don't make a woman pale,
When woman gets off right from the street cars,
Instead of facing toward the rear,
When man stops smoking bad tobacco,
And drinking sour-smelling beer,
When woman doesn't block the sidewalk,
With spreading skirts and puffed out sleeves,
When man stops flirting with new charmers,
And to his lawful darling cleaves,
When man can understand the baby,
And woman, petting it, talks sense,
When man proposes a new bonnet,
And woman shies at the expense—
Phenomena like these, and others,
May strike surprised observers dumb,
But they will know, by these same tokens,
That the millenium has come.

FUN AT OCRACOKE.

Pienty of it for the Pleasure Seeker.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

HOTEL PONDER.
OCRACOKE, N. C. July 23rd.)

In my former letter I promised to make some report at next writing of what the "old man" could do a-fishing. The person who comes to Ocracoke and don't go fishing misses lots of fun. I have been out three times so far and "Uncle John" Cherry is the only one of our crowd who has gone ahead of the "old man" in point of numbers, and twice when "Uncle John" didn't go the "old man" led his boat. Dink James didn't care to have it told that he was the "Jonah" of the ship and caught only two, but it is too good to keep.

But talking about fishing, Louis Skinner holds the championship for catching the largest. He and George Harrison were out yesterday when Louis caught a 40 pound drum, and George landed one that weighed 25 pounds.

The fare at the hotel is the best I ever found here, and the attention to the guests is all that could be wished. The dining room is in charge of Miss Ella Houston, a Canadian, whose equal cannot be found. She can get around in more places to see that the guests are promptly served than any one I ever saw, and she is praised by all. Most of the waiters are white girls from the island and they make excellent ones.

I keep a pretty good eye open to see what the Greenville crowd is doing, as their movements will be of most interest to the home folks.

I have already told that a Greenville girl is the most popular one here. And the most all-around popular man hails from the same quarter in the person of Dink James. The young folks and the married folks gather around him every night and make him lead an old fashioned quadrille or two and call figures for them. No feature of the dances here seems more enjoyed than this. As I write now his clear, merry voice is heard ringing "swing corners all" above the lively strains of music and scraping of feet.

And another Greenville boy is distinguishing himself here too. Let me speak it softly for fear of giving him away, but Ed Flanagan can do courtship enough for the whole crowd. I have actually seen him making love to two girls at the same time, but one of them came off victor by showing Howard it is to have a narrow rival. Will James runs Ed a close second.

Last night the 4-11-44 camp from Winston, gave a dinner complimentary to Misses Lillian Cherry, of Greenville and Bessie Williams, of Newbern. There were several invited guests and the young men entertained them handsomely. The spread was superb and the bill of fare would have done credit to Delmonico.

Proprietor George Credle don't let the guests grow dull around Hotel Ponder. If there seems to be a lull in other lines of amusement he gathers a crowd around him and keeps them in an uproar with his dry, witty jokes.

There are bathing and sailing parties out every evening, and Ocracoke is truly delightful. Every boat brings new arrivals.

Three young men from Newbern came here on their bicycles this morning and made a remarkable trip. They are R. S. Primrose, Thos. Daniels and Ellis Williams. They started from Beaufort at 9 o'clock last night making the run by moonlight along the beach, covering the distance of 63 miles in four hours. With the wind fair behind them they made the last 30 miles in one-and-a-half hours. They arrived at Portsmouth at one o'clock and got a boat to bring them across the inlet.

Ed Flanagan distinguished himself in another particular also. Just after an early supper one evening, following out his record for "rushing" two girls at a time he took a couple of them out rowing. Seating the pair of fair ones on the stern of the boat, Ed took the oars and rowed away with as pompous an air as if he had been captain of the Yale crew. With a strong flood tide and a brisk wind both in his favor Ed shot the boat away at a 3 minute gate. The little craft flying off so rapidly before the tide and wind riveted the attention of a crowd gathered on the hotel balconies, for they well knew the young man was going to catch it when he turned about to come back. And their surmising was right. Little more than half a mile out the boat turned, and Ed made a few strokes with as much grace as when he was going out, but seeming to stand perfectly still he looked around to see if something was holding the boat and began pulling harder. Still it wouldn't come and the oarsman grew serious and the girls began to look anxious. Taking in the situation Ed realized if that boat got back somebody had to do some pulling. He tugged away awhile longer and shed his coat and the crowd at the hotel began to smile. Ed stuck up for nearly an hour when he managed to reach a yacht lying at anchor in the harbor and hired one of the crew to row the party ashore. It don't do to ask him too often how he likes rowing.

[This letter was intended to be published in Friday's REFLECTOR, but owing to the rather meager mail facilities at Ocracoke it failed to reach here until today.]

The Populist Convention at St. Louis nominated Thos. E. Watson, of Georgia, for Vice-President, and W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, for President. It is not known yet whether Mr. Bryan will accept. After giving the same powers to the National Executive Committee that the convention would have in session, the convention adjourned Saturday evening sine die.

The Silver Convention in session in the same city unanimously endorsed Bryan and Sewall, the Democratic nominees, with an enthusiasm second only to that at Chicago. This convention was composed of fully 600 delegates who had formerly been Republicans.

A REDUCTION.

The economizing period is here. Bright buyers are busy these days choosing from the heaps of bargains that abound throughout the store. There are good reasons—founded in the logic of modern merchandising—why prices do range so low right now.

We are on the verge of invoicing. That brings prices down. It is the sundown of the season. That brings prices down. Many departments contain remnants and broken lots. That brings prices down. We are organizing our trade forces for a triumphant fall campaign. That brings prices down.

In fine a score of sound causes are simultaneously influencing and affecting prices all in your favor. The single fact that we are daily selling the best qualities of many lines at and below actual cost out-weighs and out-argues a thousand claims.

HISTORY TO REPEAT ITSELF

"N" In Bryan's Name Propitious.

Since it is difficult to arrive at any very satisfactory conjecture as to who shall be elected President to enter upon the duties of that high office with the beginning of its 109th year—whether Bryan or McKinley—all calculations being made from past records are more or less uncertain and defective as indicating future results. Let us be more "nergetic" of resources, from whence to derive information and consult the no more fortuitous records of favorite and fortunate letters.

Of the 23 men who have filled the presidential office since 1789 the names of ten of them have "N" as the final letter, to-wit: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, Van Buren, Harrison, Buchanan, Lincoln, Johnson and Benjamin Harrison—these held the office for 53 years, as against the other 13, to-wit: John Adams, Monroe, J. Q. Adams, Tyler, Polk, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, who on March 4th, 1897, will have held the office for fifty-five years. No candidate, the final letter of whose name was "N," ever failed to reach the presidential chair, either previous to or following a defeat, except De Witt Clinton and Geo. B. McClellan, and these were defeated by Madison and Lincoln—two "N's" contesting in each case. Jefferson was defeated by John Adams, who in turn was defeated by Jefferson, the latter following his discomfiture by holding two terms. W. H. Harrison was defeated by Van Buren—another case of two "N's" contesting, the former defeating Van Buren for next term, and dying soon after inauguration in 1841. It's death to beat "N." Disdaining to sport with that event which was one of our greatest national disasters, it follows curiously enough that Lincoln was assassinated very soon after entering upon the term for which he had defeated McClellan. Tilden, as is now almost unanimously conceded, was elected, though he did not enjoy the office, and since which time we have usually written "nation with a little 'n,'" and truthfully Hayes has continuously borne the approbrium of a usurper.

Of the 23 Vice Presidents, 10 have names ending with the lucky "N," to-wit: Jefferson, Geo. Clinton, Calhoun, Van Buren, R. M. Johnson, Hamlin, Andrew Johnson, Wilson, Morton and Stevenson. These also serving as Vice Presidents their respective chiefs whose names were adorned by the final "N," save Jefferson, who was Washington's first Secretary of State, and Wilson and Stevenson, with whom good fortune has not lingered, since their chiefs, Grant and Cleveland, however great did not bear the enchanted letter.

The foregoing historic facts might well decide the high destiny of our Chicago nominee, though an adverse omen in "letterology" (patent applied for) appears in the somewhat ill-fated letter "B," but one candidate, Buchanan, with that letter at the beginning of his name, having succeeded. Unless we compromise, now that compromises are made to order, and count Van Buren as a lucky "B," making two, by means of a straddle that was successful that is not needed to work out and foretell the destiny of Mr. Bryan since the name of his State begins with "N"—Nebraska—and the name of his city concludes with "N"—Lincoln, Neb. This city, too, named in honor of our greatest President. Jas. G. Birney, John Bell and Black were defeated in their turn, having no "N" at the other end to back them up as did Buchanan and Van Buren when they "took the cake." To make assurance doubly sure, no candidate was ever elected whose name concluded with a "Y," portentous for McKinley. Pinckney defeated twice, each time by the mystic letter "N" in the persons of Jefferson and Madison. Clay was defeated thrice. Once by Jackson, our heroic letter again asserting itself, and yet again in the defeat of Birney by Harrison, and both Clay and Birney finally retired by Polk. Need we refer to the fact that Greeley was not in it by a large majority? This will be readily granted. No Vice President ever wrote his name with a final "T." This looks bad for Mr. Hobart, though his odds are even with Mr. Sewall, since no Vice President ever concluded his name with "L." Cleveland's victory over the mystic "N" in the last campaign rather argues against our forecast, but his name sounds as if it ended in the fateful letter, although really closer, like his career in the restless time-serving brain or many, with a big, big "D." Is one of these names an exception to all rules or theories? And the curses and hisses that go out after his name to damn his career will in the future of yarse be the boomerang of curses, returning to damn his assailants, even though their names conclude with "N." A mightier word concluding with "N" suggests itself in their respective cases, and "all's well that n's well."

This is possibly the most accurate forecast as to who will be our next President, and I lay claim to all first premiums offered therefor and hope the friends of Mr. Bryan and the Chicago ticket will enjoy the comfort and assurance that it brings. J. G. HALL.

Hickory, N. C., July 15, 1896.

The Power of Saying "No."

Somebody has said that to give a young man the power to say "No" is a grander gift than giving him a thousand pounds. There is a large family of the pliable in existence—folks born without backbones. I like a youth who can look one in the face, and if a thing is a lie, say so, and if it is true hold to it, though all the world is against him. You will get such boys as these from Bands of Hope, for if they say "No" in connection with drink, they can say "No" in connection with other things. I will give you an illustration of what I mean:

A little fellow who had been brought up a staunch teetotaler was about to be apprenticed. The foreman offered him a glass of beer. The little fellow said: "I never touch that stuff."

"Halloa, youngster," replied the foreman, "we have no teetotalers here."

"If you have me you'll have one," returned the boy.

The foreman was irritated, and holding up the glass of beer, he said:

"Now, my boy, there's only one master here; you'll either have this inside or outside."

The little fellow said, "Well, you can please yourself. I brought my clean jacket with me and a good character. You may spoil my jacket, but you sha'n't spoil my character.—Sel."

This is a campaign of principle versus boodle. Bryan has the principle and McKinley the boodle.

Political Points.

It is announced that the gold Democrats will nominate Mr. Cleveland for President.

The American, a Republican paper published in Philadelphia, comes out for Bryan and Sewall and the platform of the Chicago convention.

Herr Most's as a goldbug somehow calls to mind the historic tramp who arrived at the conclusion that his proper resting place was in Mr. Astor's spare bedroom.

A great many Republicans in Charlotte, says the Observer who will vote for McKinly, will support Watson and the Democratic ticket. Most of them are Northern people and believe in Democratic government in the South.

Well Timed Puns.

A well known clergyman in a southern state is an inveterate punster. He often says that while he is well aware that puns belong to the lowest order of wit he is seldom able to resist the temptation to make one when opportunity offers.

On one occasion after preaching an eloquent sermon he was met by two friends, one of whom began to praise his discourse in enthusiastic terms. When he paused for breath, the other man said, with a laugh:

"Well, doctor, can you stand as much soft soap as that?"

"Indeed I can if there isn't too much lye in it," returned the minister quickly.

At another time he was present at the marriage reception of a young couple of the name of More. The occasion was somewhat stiff up to the time of the minister's entrance, and he quickly discovered the state of affairs.

"Madam," he said, with his radiant smile, addressing the awkward young bride, "how fortunate you are! There are so few people who can say with truth, 'The More I want the More I have.'"

The laugh which followed put the company at ease.—Youth's Companion.

Probably.

Probably a woman would be a bride to her husband longer if she would continue making company of him. Most women begin to save their jam for visitors when they have been married three months.—Boston Post.

This Is Different.

"Love makes the world go round." The world seems to go round, but loves makes your head swim. That's the explanation.—Boston Transcript.

PENNSYLVANIA IN 1683.

From an Unpublished Letter From William Penn to Duke Ormonde.

I thank god I am safely arrived in the province that the providence of god and Bounty of the King hath made myne, and which the credit, prudence and industry of the people concerned with me must render Considerable. I was received by the ancient Inhabitants with much kindness and respect and the rest brought it with them; there may be about four (f. 215b) thousand souls in all, I speak, I think within compass; we expect an increase from France, Holland and Germany, as well as our Native Country.

The land is Generally good, well water'd and not so thick of wood as imagin'd; there are also many open places that have been old Indian fields, the trees that grow here are the Mulberry, white and red, walnut, black, gray and Hickory, Poplar, Cedar, Cyprus, chestnut, Ash, Sarsafraz, Gum, pine, Spruce, oake, black, white, red Spanish chestnut and Swamp which has a leafe like a willow, and is most lasting. The food the woods yeild is your Elks, Deer, Racoons, Beaver, Rabbets, Turkeys, Phesants, heath-birds, Pidgeons and Patredges, innumerable; we need no setting dogs to catch, they run by droves into the house in cold weather. Our Rivers have also plenty of excellent fish and water fowl, as Sturgeon, rock, shad, herring, cadfish, or flatheads, sheeps-heads, roach and perch, and trout in inland Streames; of fowle, the Swan, white, gray, and black goose, and brands, (f. 216) the best duck and tel I ever eate, and the Snipe and the Curlue with the Snow-bird are also excellent.

The Airo is sweet and cleare which makes a screen and steady sky, as in the more southern parts of France. Our Summers and Winters are commonly once in three years in extremes; but the Winters Seldom last above ten weeks and rarely begin till the latter end of December; the days are above two hours longer, and the Sun much hotter here then with you, which makes some recompense for the sharpe nights of the Winter season, as well as the woods that make cheap and great fires. We have of graine, wheat, maize, rye, barley, oates, severall excellent sorts of beans and peas, pumpkens, water and mus melions, all englesish roots and Garden stuff, good fruit and excellent Sider, the Peach we have in divers kinds, and very good, and in great abundance. The Vine (of severall sorts and the signe with us of rich land) is very fruitful, and the not so sweet as some I have eaten in Europe, yet it makes a good wine, and the worst, good vinegar. (f. 216b.) I have observed three sorts, the Great grape that has green, red, and black, all ripe on the same tree, the muskedell and black little grape, which is the best, and may be improv'd to an excellent wine. These are spontaneous. Of Cattle, we have the horse, not very handsome but good. Cow Cattle and hogs in much plenty, and sheep encrease apace.

Our town of Philadelphia is seated between two navigable rivers, having from 4 to 10 fathom water, about 150 houses up in one yeare, and 400 country settlements, thus do we labour to render ourselves an industrious Colony, to the honour and benefit of the Crown, as well as our own comfort and advantage, and lett there not be separated, say I.—Notes and Queries.

Thomas C. Platt.

Mr. Platt never smoked a cigar except once, when he was a stripling in Owego. He had just left Yale college and started a drug store in this now famous town of Tioga county. This was in the first days of the Republican party. He then wrote the songs for the Fremont campaign, later for the Lincoln contests, and later still for the Grant boomers. He has two trunks at his old home in Owego full of these campaign songs. All through New York state there are happy geniuses with a predilection for writing verses. But Mr. Platt has a record in this respect which is marvelous. A few years ago he was the guest of the newspaper men of the Fellowship club. He was called upon for a speech. He looked round the board and saw politicians of the two parties, literary critics, artists and dramatists. All expected a speech from him. Instead he recited an original poem which he composed that afternoon at his office, 49 Broadway, telling of the ultimate fate of a mischievous yet enthusiastic pig. Mr. Platt's poem was the speech of the evening and was received with roars of laughter.—New York Sun.
