A POPULIST CONCERT.

Raleigh, N. C., July 28.—On the east bound train was Harry Skinner and Buck Kitchin returning from St. Louis. Skinner said: "The democrats have got to vote for Bryan and Watson unless they think more of their party than they do of silver."

Kitchin said: "It is in the hands of you democrats now. The whole burden rests on your party, and if it has any sense it can carry the State. It has got to make concessions like clever fellows and gentlemen."

Kitchin was asked: "What do you mean by concessions?"

"Don't answer," shouted Skinner.

Kitchin then said: "Yes it is all in your hands. The power to carry the State and the nation is absolutely in democratic hands. We had the responsibility. It was on our shoulders, but we have shifted it on yours."

Skinner cried out loudly; "No, the power is in our hands. Reverse what Kitchin says."

"No," said Kitchin. "I know what I am talking about. I want the democrats and our people in the union and in the State to get together and agree on the electoral ticket and fix it so all silver men can vote it."

Skinner said: "Be careful, Buck, you will deny this."

"No I will not," retorted Kitchin. "Any man who wants to vote for silver can do so by going for what I have in my mind. If the democrats want to save State and country this is the way to do it."—Wilmington Messenger.

Carman-Gray.

In Littleton Tuesday July 28, 1896, at 11 o'clock at the residence of Rev. W. S. Black, Mr. W. E. Carman and Mrs. Pattie Gray were married, Dr. Black officiating. White it was known by their friends and the family of the bride that they were to be married soon, they sprung a surprise on all and were married at an unexpected time. They took a drive to Panacea Springs and returning stopped at Dr. Black's home and were married.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman left on the afternoon train for Ayden in Pitt county to visit the relatives of the groom.

Mr. Carman has been living in Littleton a few months and has been engaged with the newspaper of that place; and will continue with the paper, perhaps in the capacity of manager or editor. The bride is the relict of the late Chas. W. Gray, of Scotland Neck, and daughter of Mr. B. R. Browning of Littleton. She is well known here and the Commonwealth joins her many friends in extending every good wish for her happiness and prosperity as well as in congratulating the fortunate and happy groom.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Hottest July Days.

At Riverside Nursery a record of the temperature every day at noon kept. Ollen Warren has handed the REFLECTOR a list showing which were the hottest July days for the last five years, giving the day of month and temperature as taken at 12 o'clock. The record is as follows:

1892, July 30, temperature	93
1893, " 7 "	96
1894, " 29 "	87
1895, " 19 "	88
1896, " 29 "	94

The temperature about 3 o'clock P. M. is usually some higher than at noon, and on Wednesday it went to 97 at Riverside. At some points down town it reached 98 in the shade.

There are in Arizona about 10,000,000 acres of arid lands, which may be reclaimed by irrigation. Nearly 1,000,000 acres have been so reclaimed and are now producing bountiful crops of fruit, vegetables, grain, etc.

Weather Notes from Billville.

We rise with the thermometer now—not with the lark.

The sun has barbecued the cattle on a thousand hills.

This is the time when you can't possibly appreciate the melting notes of the mockingbirds.

The mayor's celluloid cuffs caught fire yesterday and burnt down the town hall.

Even the Democratic party in this neighborhood is in a blaze of glory.

Several candidates got overheated yesterday while running for office.

We don't go to church these hot days. We simply look at the thermometer and fall to praying.

TELEGRAPHIC SPARKS.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 28.—Sixteen men were drowned by the cloudburst last night in the vicinity of the Beadling mines. The men were coal miners and occupied one house.

New York, July 28.—The Democratic state committee at its meeting today decided to hold the state convention to nominate a state ticket and presidential electors at Buffalo on September 16th.

Louisville, Ky. July 28.—Every congressional district in the state is represented at a conference between sound money democrats who meet at noon. Prominent democrats are in attendance and it seems assured that a state convention will be determined upon.

Washington, July 28.—Secretary Herbert has arranged to leave here Thursday for Montgomery, Ala., where on Monday he will vote the straight democratic ticket.

London, July 28.—Peter Jackson, the colored heavy-weight pugilist, was arrested last night outside the Trivoli music hall for being drunk and disorderly. He was arraigned in the Bow street police court and fined five shillings.

Madrid, July 28.—A dispatch to The Impartial from Havana says that Captain General Weyler has issued a decree in which he promises to the captains of vessels the sums of $24,000 for each filibustering steamer and $9,000 for each filibustering sailing vessel they seize. The captains making seizures will be freed of all responsibility.

Savannah, Ga., July 28.—The first of the new cotton crop was received here today by Gandney, Crisp & Co., from Montezuma, Ga. It was classed as fully middling, weighed 510 pounds and was sold to Colonel T. F. Johnson at 7½ cents per pound.

It was shipped to-day by the steamer City of Augusta to New York, to be sold on the cotton exchange there. Colonel Johnson had the bale banded in gold and marked "first Georgia bale; crop 1896-1897, McKinley and gold; no 16 to 1 for us; no fiat money; our greeting to the empire state of the north—T. F. J., Savannah, Georgia."

The bale reached here seventeen days earlier than the first bale last season and one day earlier than in any previous season.

Since the bankers have shipped in and plugged up the hole in the gold reserve the gold organs are whooping very loud and exclaiming, behold how the reserve booms. This is a perfectly safe transaction on the part of the bankers. They turn in gold for greenbacks, knowing that all they would have to do if they should have use for gold is to present the greenbacks and get it back. It is business, but we fail to see any red-hot exhibition of patriotism in it.—Wilmington Star.

A REDUCTION.

The economizing period is here. Bright buyers are busy these days choosing from the heaps of bargains that abound throughout the store. There are good reasons—founded in the logic of modern merchandising—why prices do range so low right now.

We are on the verge of invoicing. That brings prices down. It is the sundown of the season. That brings prices down. Many departments contain remnants and broken lots. That brings prices down. We are organizing our trade forces for a triumphant fall campaign. That brings prices down.

In fine a score of sound causes are simultaneously influencing and affecting prices all in your favor. The single fact that we are daily selling the best qualities of many lines at and below actual cost, out-weighs and out-argues a thousand claims.

A Crank Demands $2,000,000 of Bonds.

Jersey City, N. J. July 28.—Superintendent William H. Peddles, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was called on yesterday by a man who demanded $2,000,000 in Central of New Jersey and Baltimore and Ohio bonds. The crank made the demand as he toyed carelessly with a heavy piece of iron, which protruded from his trousers pocket. Mr. Peddles succeeded in inducing the man to go to the office of M. Thompson, superintendent of motive power to get the bonds, and in the meantime notified Mr. Thompson of the stranger's advance on him. Thompson had a detective on hand, and while the man was talking to Mr. Thompson the detective sprang at him and pinioned his arms. The crank said he was Dennis M. Menihen, residing on Madison street, New York.

A Society for the Protection of Dogs has been formed in Winnipeg by certain gentlemen interested in sport. This is excellent in its way. Why should the dogs not be protected from poison and injury and their enemies punished? Perhaps the object of the society is more properly to protect men in their ownership of valuable dogs. Be this as it may, is it not time that gentlemen of means, leisure and influence in Winnipeg should form a Society for the protection of Boys, or for the Protection of Parents in the possession of their boys? Are dogs more valuable than boys? While it is exasperating to lose a valuable dog by poison or theft, it is heartbreaking to lose a boy, bright and beloved, in the Winnipeg gin-mills. By the score they are being poisoned and ruined. Were there as much devastation wrought among fancy bred dogs as there is among boys of our homes by the liquor traffic there would be a tremendous agitation. Protect the boys as well as the dogs from poison.—The Templar.

Couldn't Fool a North Carolinian.

Four inches of tangled yellow beard hung from his face and a patch of unkempt hair protruded through the crown of his black slouch hat, but he walked into the store of a Washington square merchant this afternoon with a bearing of confidence. The bottom of his frayed blue trousers were on distant terms with the tops of his brogan shoes, and he wore no coat. He was from North Carolina.

"Don't yer want ter buy some nice chickens today?" said the individual as he ambled to the proprietor's desk and toyed with the paper weight.

"I really can't say whether my wife needs any fowls to-day or not, but I will ask her," said the merchant as he approached the telephone and rang up his residence. After a short conversation he turned to the man from the Old North State, who had closely watched the proceedings, and whose countenance was a study for an artist.

"My wife tells me that she bought a lot of chickens this morning—enough to last for several days. I'm sorry, but I can't buy any chickens of you today."

"That's all right, Cap'n. Yer don't have ter buy any of my chickens if you don't want ter, but why didn't you say so at first. Yer needn't play me fur a haysed and try to make me believe you've got yer wife locked up in that little box. I reckon I've got some sense left if I am from the country. You can't fool me. Besides, yer needn't act so stuck up like. We people around home is going ter quit farming and sport some, too, just as soon as the free silver law is passed and the stuff is sent 'round."—Norfolk Virginian.

SING A SONG OF IT.

Sing a song of weather—fire-brands and all,
 Sunshine streaming, gleaming twenty miles from fall;
 Sing a song of weather—birds too faint to fly,
 And azure acres craching in the broad and burning sky!

But keep your faith, believers!
 For still there's hope for all;
 Might's well melt in summer
 As freeze to death in fall.

Sing a song of weather—never saw the like!

Watch the steeples tremble, and see the lightning strike!

Sing a song of weather—see the steaming rills,

While runs the rain like lava from the breasts of blazing hills!

But keep your faith, believers!
 For still there's hope for all;
 Might's well melt in summer
 As freeze to death in fall.

Sing a song of weather—lily lifts its cup
 In vain—in vain to catch the rain and drink the dewdrops up!

Sing a song of weather—but earth's a paradise,

For round the blazing corner he comes—the man with ice!

So keep your faith, believers!
 For still there's hope for all;
 Who burns to death in summer
 Will never freeze in fall.

Some Georgia Scenes.

When Colonel F. E. Grist, the prince of game fanciers, resided in Blakely he owned a very fine game cock on which he proposed to bet $100 to $50 that it could whip anything in town that wore feathers. A friend took him up and the time and place were quickly set for the snakebag fight. Precisely to the minute both met with their "birds" in bags. A large crowd of interested spectators had gathered and in the presence of these the terms of the agreement were rehearsed, the only condition being that what each man had in his sack wore feathers.

First Pitting—Out they poured them, when lo! one was a great bald headed eagle; but on to him the cock flew, only to be caught by the eagle's talons as quick and tight as if in the grasp of a steel trap. The pitters pulled them apart, the cock with a bleeding neck and broken wing.

Second Pitting—Fiercer than before the eagle stood in a pecking attitude, but the cock with a savage rush landed one gaff in the eagle's breast and drove the other through his beak just below his eyes and again got caught, losing one eye and all his tail feathers.

Third Pitting—Thoroughly desperate both rose high and meeting at least five feet in the air, "buckled up," when the cock got in his work by driving the keen bright steels through the eagle's brain, bringing him down with a heavy thud—dead. And then he strode around and with a conqueror's air stepped upon the eagle's breast and crowed—

"To all who beheld him, not a beautiful thing,
 A little disfigured, but still in the ring."

Economic Value of Birds.
The economic value of birds is told. This fact might be placed beyond dispute if it were possible to prepare two tables—one showing how many wireworms it would take to destroy a mile of turnips, how many grubs to ravage the wheat harvests of a dozen farms, how many insects to strip the leafy blades of a forest bare, how many to spoil the fruits of wide orchards, the other recording the fact that these very numbers of insects are eaten by a few humble birds in the course of the year. That the result would be conclusive evidence of the birds' value may be safely foretold by a glance at a few facts which have already been brought to bear upon the question.

In the spring, when there are clamorous young birds in the nest, the house sparrow returns every three or four minutes, each time bearing spoils in the shape of insect food. Calculated at its lowest possible value—that is, allowing only one insect to each journey—this thankless task represents tens of thousands of captured insects as the work of one pair of birds in one month. Swift fliers like the swallow that hawk for food in the air may rank higher. They slay hundreds of thousands.—Fort nightly Review.

An Amateur Postmaster.
A member of the government was visiting the other day at a hall in the neighborhood of Doncaster. Having a pretty wide correspondence and there not being any postal delivery in the village, the lady at the hall took a bundle of letters to the church on the Sunday evening and gave them to the churchwarden, thinking he would be able to get them sent to the Doncaster post-office.

He, not catching what she had said about them, came to the conclusion that they were something for him to distribute in the church. The lady took her seat at the organ. Then the churchwarden commenced to take them from pew to pew as far as they would go.

One young person, looking at hers, said to him that it was a stamped letter and did not belong to her. He said: "Hold thee noise and put it in thee pocket and read it when thee gets home. There's something in it that will de thee good."—Pearson's Weekly.

CHEFS OF NEW YORK.

Important Personages in Clubs—Valuable Wives Who Are Cooks.
Cooks were men of high pay and much distinction in old Greek days, and they have come to be persons of consideration in modern New York. When a man, lunching at a club the other day, found a particular dish especially to his taste, he asked, with some hesitation, whether the cook could be persuaded to reveal the secret of its composition. The head waiter thought he might and undertook to be the diplomatic intermediary between the dining room and the kitchen. There came in reply an inquiry from the gentleman below stairs as to whether the gentleman above stairs could read French, and when this query had been answered in the affirmative there came from the nether region the recipe, neatly written and well expressed in that language, upon the note paper of the club. The club member sent his respects and acknowledgments to the invisible potentate of the kitchen, and thus an agreeable incident came to an end.

Nearly all clubs and considerable hotels have French cooks, male, of course, though it is usual in small clubs to employ as second cook a woman. The chef in a large club has as many assistants as he demands and is a personage of the highest consideration, well paid, much deferred to, and, as far as possible, conciliated. Cooks maintain their ancient reputation for ill temper, and the company in the luncheon room of a Fifth avenue club was startled one day to see some sort of kitchen underling burst into the apartment, actively pursued by the raging cook, butcher knife in hand, bent upon doing execution upon the frightened offender. A good club cook costs from $750 to $1,200 a year, and there are some who receive much higher salaries.

One finds in some of the smaller French restaurants a woman cook, perhaps the wife of the proprietor, a tireless creature who labors late and early and manages by her peculiar gift to confer a special reputation upon the place. A wife such as that is an unspeakable treasure to any restaurant keeper, for not only does she do the work of a skilled and well paid man and keep it up for twice as many hours as he can be induced to stay in the kitchen, but, above all, the cooks that are at the same time wives, whatever their peculiar traits and however ill their tempers, do not "give notice." The services of such a wife can hardly be valued in money, and widowed indeed is the man that loses her.

A pleasing feature of a restaurant that has now, alas, deserted the old French quarter for the new was the occasional presence of the cook, clad all in white, his paper hat on his head, in the dining room among the guests. He knew some of the regular patrons, and it was his custom to honor one or another by taking a seat at his side and entering into conversation. The chef in most clubs, hotels and restaurants is an object of awe to all his fellow servants, if indeed the cook may, even by implication, be called a servant. His moods are watched; his moments of rage are indulged. The waiter that must carry to the kitchen a dish that has been rejected in the dining room sneaks in with fear and trembling and endeavors to propitiate him whose art has been called in question. The cook comes in for a large share of the Christmas box at every club. Though he may be unknown by sight to any member of the club, and a stranger even to the house committee, he is known by his deeds, and he stands firmly for all his rights and privileges. To dismiss so great a man is a duty that few care to take upon themselves, and to admonish him is the most delicate and diplomatic of tasks.—New York Sun.

A Tongue Twister.
Try it yourself, very slowly and carefully, until you can say it easily; then pass it along to your friends. Here it is:
"She stood at the gate, welcoming him in."
Ten to one a person trying to pronounce the sentence for the first time will fumble it laughably. These tongue twisting sentences, however, are good elocutionary exercises. They give you control of your vocal organs, so that you can enunciate properly, just as finger exercises on the piano or organ give control of the fingers.

What an immense amount of mechanical practice does it require to establish anything like a close sympathy between the brain and the physical organs!
