A DREAM OF ICE.

It's mighty cool in Greenland, and there we'd rather land
Than roam by Africa's fountains—by India's coral strand;
It's mighty cool in Greenland, and nice indeed, 'twould be
To play leapfrog o'er icebergs, and churn the polar sea!

For it's hot on high,
An' it's hot below;
An' the devil's in the weather
When the wind won't blow!

It's mighty cool in Greenland; an'
how'd you like to go
An' live for fifteen minutes in a perfect storm of snow?
It's mighty cool in Greenland, and mighty nice 'twould be
To hug a drippin' Polar bear, an' swim
the Polar sea!

For its hot on high.
An' it's hot below;
An' the devil's in the weather
When the wind won't blow!"

TELEGRAPHIC SPARKS.

Denison, Ohio, July 29.—The Denison Safe Deposit bank closed its doors to-day. No statement is made, but the liabilities are thought to be heavy.

Birmingham, Ala., July 29.—A Bryan club of 1,000 business and professional men of this city, with Hon. John W. Tomlinson as president, has been organized here.

New York, July 29.—The Herald's special from Kingston, Jamaica, says: A fire started in Port au Prince on Wednesday last and burned until Friday. More than 100 houses were destroyed. The loss will reach at least $1,000,000.

Baltimore, July 29.—Robert Garrett, ex-president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, died at the cottage of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, Deer Park, Maryland, at 3 o'clock this morning.

New Brunswick, N. J. July 29.—Under the advice of the United States district attorney of New Jersey, the secret service detectives stopped the manufacture of campaign buttons representing a gold dollar. The button is technically a counterfeit coin.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 29.—John C. Bullitt and George F. Bear, were to-day appointed a committee of the Philadelphia sound money democrats to attend the conference in Indianapolis on August 7th, when the advisability of placing a third ticket in the field will be considered.

Crawfordville, Ind., July 29.—About midnight a locomotive went through the Vandelia railroad bridge, over Walter Fork, killing three men. The run was being made to see if the track was safe after the heavy rain of last evening. Five men were aboard the engine when it went down.

Winston, N. C., July 29.—Hon. Cyrus B. Watson, democratic candidate for governor made his opening campaign speech at Wentworth, Rockingham county, to-day. A large audience greeted him. He discussed the present condition of the country, and argued strongly in favor of bimetallicism along the line of the democratic national platform. Mr. Watson will make his next speech at his native home, Kernersville, on Saturday. He is anxious to divide time with his republican competitor, Judge D. L. Russell, but the latter is debating the question whether or not he will take part in a joint canvass of the State.

Dull time advertising sometimes pays better than good time advertising, because some people are buying all the time, and they are more likely to buy of the man who advertises than of the man who doesn't.—Printer's Ink.

A Protest from Billville.

We notice a cartoon in an esteemed contemporary in which we are pictured as selling out to Wall street for $1,000. We repel the insinuation! It is a libel—not only on this paper, but on the metropolis of Billville, and the man who perpetrated it would be held personally responsible if the rope had not broken yesterday after prayer meeting, while we were lynching several enemies. No! Wall street has got down on its knees to The Billville Banner, while great drops of perspiration streamed from its brows; but its wealth had no influence over us, and we took our laundry and called our dog, and walked back to Billville, unpurchased and unpurchasable!

Therefore, we denounce the recreant hand that painted us selling out, with a long head and a gripsack. The picture does us an injustice all round, for having been married ten years, we have no beard at all, neither is there any hair on the top of our head. The Banner is unsold, and for free silver and a collection after each hymn!—Atlanta Constitution.

A Merry Gathering.

There never assembled a happier party of friends than at the home of Maj. H. Harding in Forbestown, Thursday evening, to do honor to Misses Annie Jones and Bessie Powell, of Raleigh, the guests of Miss Sudie Harding. Everything was done to complete the happiness of these lovely maidens. The occasion was under the management of Messrs. Hal Sugg, and James Harding, and they did not honor with great credit, but how could they help it, when they were surrounded by the sweet smiling faces of Greenville's most charming young ladies and gallant gentlemen. The music of the evening was rendered most charmingly by Miss Annie Jones and Miss Bessie Harding. At the close of the evening's pleasures when the hour of departure had arrived every one declared that their cup of joy had been full.

FALSE REPORT.

MR. EDITOR:—Please publish the enclosed letter from the Richmond Stove Co., which explains itself.

Truly,

D. D. HASKETT.

RICHMOND, Va., July 29, 1896.
MR. D. D. HASKETT,
Greenville, N. C.

DEAR SIR:—We learn that certain parties are circulating the report that we have failed and gone out of business and can no longer furnish repairs for the stoves of our make that you handle. We are glad to say that this report is so absurdly false as hardly to be worthy of notice, yet for the benefit of those who do not know us we will say that you have handled our stoves and repairs for years and sold them largely, and that we are still able and willing to supply to you any and all the stoves and repairs for the same, that we make, as we have always done.

Yours truly,

RICHMOND STOVE CO.
R. J. RENNOLDS, Sec'y. and Treas.

Sunday School Chataqua.

The Baptist Sunday School Chataqua will be held at Morehead City next week, beginning on Tuesday the 4th. This body bids fair to be a power in the State for the advancement of the Sunday School work. The Atlantic Hotel gives a $1.00 per day rate, and the railroads one fare for the round trip. Greenville will be well represented at this session of the Chataqua. We think the fare from here to Kinston is 50 cts. for one first class passage and from Kinston to Morehead it is $2.25. If this is true the round trip will be only $3.15, from Greenville to Morehead via Kinston.

A REDUCTION.

The economizing period is here. Bright buyers are busy these days choosing from the heaps of bargains that abound throughout the store. There are good reasons—founded in the logic of modern merchandising—why prices do range so low right now.

We are on the verge of invoicing. That brings prices down. It is the sundown of the season. That brings prices down. Many departments contain remnants and broken lots. That brings prices down. We are organizing our trade forces for a triumphant fall campaign. That brings prices down.

In fine a score of sound causes are simultaneously influencing and affecting prices all in your favor. The single fact that we are daily selling the best qualities of many lines at and below actual cost, out-weighs and out-argues a thousand claims.

FRIDAY, JULY 31ST, 1896.

The large daily papers that are advising Democrats to vote for McKinley, and of whose influence we hear so much should remember that free silver has gained grounds right along in all the states, notwithstanding the fact that same dailies have for the past twelve months been waging relentless warfare against free silver. Is their influence to be more potential now than it has been, or what power are they to exert that they have not already attempted? Have not organized "sound money" leagues flooded the country with their literature, and a subsidized press promulgated their prophecies in vain? Go dam up the Nile with bullrushes, and then stay the tide that is sweeping McKinleyism.—Durham Sun.

Watson Should Refuse to Accept.

Senator Butler says for the sake of the free coinage of silver Mr. Sewall should come down from the mast head of Georgia, the populist nominee. That is just like Mr. Butler to want Mr. Sewall to come down. Mr. Sewall was chosen as a running mate by the convention, also nominated by the silverites' convention. The populist party says we are satisfied with Mr. Bryan, but we don't care about Mr. Sewall can't trust these moneyed men, etc. Hanna's republican campaign money played a prominent part in the doings of this convention, and was largely instrumental in nominating Watson. Mr. Watson, previous to his nomination, came out in his paper and openly refused the nomination should it be tendered him. Now if Mr. Watson is a true friend of silver he will firmly stick to his former allegation, and in a formal way withdraw his name in favor of the gentleman from Maine—Mr. Arthur Sewall.

Will he do it?—Wilmington Dispatch.

Professionals in Government Service.

Few people stop to think how many professional men there are in Uncle Sam's departments," said a thoughtful young man as he came out of the State, War and Navy building at lunch time. "I graduated in law from one of the local colleges three years ago, and two months later was admitted to the bar. I was in the department then and am yet.

"I took the pains to count the number of professional graduates in our division the other day. There are ninety-five men there. Forty of them have studied law and graduated from some law school. Twelve started out to become physicians. Three are graduated pharmacists and two are dentists. One studied for the ministry. Out of the ladies in the same division I know that two of them studied medicine for a time. Of course, most, if not all of them, had their positions before they took their degrees. While studying, ninetenths of the law students expected to begin practicing as soon as they left school, I'll warrant. But they all stayed to make a little more money to start on, and they are still here. What is true in our division is true through the department, though the percentage may not be quite so high throughout." Washington Times.

The New Dollar Bill.

The new one dollar silver certificates issued by the government are now in circulation. Nothing like the new notes has ever before been issued by the government. The design is most elaborate and is the work of Will H. Low. The face of the note is an allegory entitled "History Instructing Youth." History is depicted as a woman reclining, and youth as a semineude lad. The background gives a representation of the city of Washington, with the Washington Monument, the Capitol and the malarious marshes of the Potomac as conspicuous objects. There is also in the design an open book, containing the introductory words of the Federal Constitution.

Around the margin of the note are the names of celebrated Americans, enclosed in chaplets or wreaths of laurel. The names are selected somewhat at random. They are Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Adams, Hamilton, Jackson, Clay, Calhoun, Fulton, Perry, Marshall, Webster, Morse, Grant, Sherman, Lincoln, Farragut, Bancroft, Hawthorne, Emerson, Cooper Irving and Longfellow.

The reverse of the note bears beautiful vignette portraits of George and Martha Washington. The note has been severely criticised by persons who were free to admit its artistic excellence. The prevailing opinion is that it is not suitable for currency that must stand the heaviest wear and tear of all denominations in circulation. It is said that it can be more readily counterfeited than a less elaborate piece of work.

The old silver certificates will be retired in favor of the new certificates.

The Wife of the Democratic Candidate.

Mrs. Bryan has been almost as deep a student of public questions as her husband. While his chief interest lay in the practice of the law she studied law and aided him in his office. When, following the natural inclination of his mind, he turned to politics and statecraft, she too took up the questions of the day, and investigated them intelligently and exhaustively. Mr. Bryan frankly confesses the aid she has given him in preparing his addresses—for, like most good speakers, he seldom goes before an audience on an occasion of importance without careful preparation. During his term in the House of Representatives she never failed to be in the gallery when he was to speak, and her presence stimulated as her aid before had prepared him. At the Chicago convention she sat prominently on the platform throughout the sessions, noting with a mind trained to grasp public affairs the varying moods of the great gathering. She saw the wonderful outburst of enthusiasm that followed his speech, and sat through the four ballots which ended in his nomination. Since the convention she has been constantly at his side, traveling with him and sitting on the platforms from which he makes his speeches. In the event of his election, she may be expected to be more than merely mistress of the White House. Her impress already upon his public utterances is apparent to those who know her, and should her husband be called to the first position in the republic American womankind might feel more than ever before that their sex had a positive part in the government of the nation.—From "William Jennings Bryan: a Character Sketch," by Willis J. Abbot, in August Review of Reviews.

Mr. Carlyle.

It soon became a habit to watch for the familiar carriage and either to welcome Mrs. Carlyle for a visit or to go with her for a drive. She often came to me on Sunday afternoon. One wet and dreary day I was sitting alone when the bell rang. I gladly ran to answer it and saw a strange gentleman standing there, but looking beyond him I saw the dear face smiling at me from the carriage window. I was eagerly dashing forward, but was peremptorily waved back, with orders to get my bonnet and come out. Mr. George Cooke was our companion, and in spite of the wind and rain we were all very bright and merry. Mrs. Carlyle taking my hand and holding it in hers for a great part of the time.

The day she and Miss Jewsbury came I had seen Punch's Christmas Almanack, and on its cover were likenesses of all the principal literary people, very comical and funny, with absurd doggerel couplets describing them. Among these I spied Carlyle and Tyndall together. Carlyle was in full Scotch costume. In one hand he carried a child's spade and pail, and with the other he was throwing pens and ink over his shoulder, and the lines were these:

Carlyle, having finished "Friedrich" altogether, is off to Scarborough to spend the summer weather.

Oh, how she laughed, and how delighted she was! "The first time Punch has taken any notice of him," she said. Another time Mrs. Carlyle said: There is something in the carriage for you. Run and look." I found there a large blue china plate, still happily in my possession.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Keen Witted Woman.

Lord Waterford used to tell some good stories of his experience as an Irish magistrate. One of them referred to the case of a woman whom he had to sentence for a breach of the peace. He let her off on condition that she found two securities of £10 each that she would keep the peace for six months.

"Thank ye, my lord," said she, moving toward the door.

"No, no," said Lord Waterford, "you must name your securities that I may see whether they are satisfactory."

"Faith, and who would I name," she answered, "but your lordship's self? Yer good enough for two," a retort which not only showed the sprightliness of the Irish character, but in addition the feeling of friendly confidence which the Irish peasantry who knew him cherished for the Lord of Curraghmore.—Pearson's Weekly.

A DOCTOR'S STORY.

Showing the Ability of a Somnambulist to Use His Eyes.

A Star writer was asking the physician a great many questions and getting answers to them, while the physician wasn't getting a cent of pay for the part he was performing. "By the way," inquired The Star man, "do you think that a somnambulist can see?"

"Do you mean when he is awake or when he is somnambulizing, so to speak?" smiled the physician.

"While he is somnambulizing, of course. I'm not talking about blind men."

"Well, I won't answer your question directly, but I'll tell you a story which may go as an answer. About ten years ago I had a roommate, a young fellow who was a student in the medical college, and a bright young fellow he was too. He was fond of shooting, and to keep up his practice he had a fine airgun, and he converted the hall on the third floor, which we occupied, into a shooting gallery. I used to take a hand myself every time I had a chance, and sometimes for an hour at a time he would be banging away at the target he had fixed at the far end of the hall.

"One morning I came in from a patient's about 3 o'clock and found the whole upper story dark. I lit the gas in the front room, which we used as a sitting room, and was about to go out and light the gas in the hall, when the young fellow came walking in from our sleeping room, attired in his nightclothes and with his eyes wide open. I spoke to him, thinking something was the matter with him, but he did not answer, and in a minute I saw that he was walking in his sleep.

"This was not altogether unusual with him, but I had never caught him in the act before and concluded I would watch him. He came directly across the room, going around a chair and a table that stood in his path, and opening a drawer where he kept the airgun he took it out, and then he loaded it, getting the small bullets we used out of a box on the mantelpiece. This box he stuck into what would have been his coat pocket, if he had had a coat on, but as he hadn't the box fell to the floor, which he took no note of.

"Then he went into the dark hall, carefully avoiding all furniture in his way, and going as straight to the door as if he had been awake. I followed him cautiously into the hall, and when he had reached the usual point from which we did our firing he stopped, took careful aim and fired. The slight snap and shock of the gun seemed to have quite a different effect than either my voice or the bright light in the room, for on the instant he dropped the gun, made a half step forward and fell into my arms, just about as he would have fallen out of bed if he had waked suddenly on its edge.

"He was wide awake in a minute and began laughing and asking me what had happened. I told him, and we at once lit the gas in the hall and examined the target. The target had been repainted after we had had our last practice, so that we could see plainly where his bullet had hit, and I assure you he had made almost a center shot. Now," concluded the physician, "in the lighted room he missed all the furniture in his way, and in the dark hall he had hit the target. Do you think he could see, or couldn't he?"

The answer wasn't quite satisfactory as an answer, but it made a problem to wrestle with, and the physician kindly consented to let his questioner figure it out to suit himself.—Washington Star.

Why He Ceased Whistling.

One day as Field Marshal Wrangel and the late Emperor Frederick were walking in Berlin they met an apprentice boy who was whistling a lively tune, but stopped as they came nearer and doffed his cap with a pleasant smile.

Wrangel was highly gratified with the civility of the lad, and said to the crown prince:

"There, your royal highness can see how loyal these apprentice lads are. How delighted they seem to be when they come across a member of the royal family!"

"Wrangel," said the crown prince, with a touch of merriment, "just ask the boy why he has stopped whistling."

"Here, my lad," exclaimed Wrangel. "Tell us why you ceased whistling."

"Whenever I see you," replied the boy, "I can't help laughing, and then a fellow can't whistle, you know." And, so saying, he took to his heels and promptly disappeared.

As much as has been said on the subject, and as apparent as the need is, does it not look like Greenville would have had a Board of Trade ere this? One properly conducted could do much to advance the town.
