The Charge Not True.

The following is taken from a report of Watson's speech at Wentworth, in Webster's Weekly:

It has been charged that he was instrumental in securing the repeal of the Alliance Charter. It was not true, but was started by some ill-disposed persons to injure him with the farmers. The facts were that he was asked one day by Judge Allen, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House, to meet with that committee to consider a question that was then of vital interest to Alliance members of the Legislature. One of the Superior Court Judges in an Eastern county of the State had held that the Sub-Alliance was responsible for the debts of the Alliance stores. By request he attended and for the first time in his life he heard the Alliance Charter read. In common with the Committee he was driven to the conclusion that the opinion of the Judge who had passed upon the case was right. A new charter was proposed as the way out of it. He took the position that an amendment to the charter was all that was necessary. He left at once and went to his work and heard nothing further until one morning two bills were introduced in the House, neither of which he had ever seen or heard of. One was to repeal the charter and the other to recharter the Alliance. The two bills passed the House without a roll call, he voted against both. Bills went to the Senate where the one to repeal the charter was tabled, and the amendment, he had suggested in conference with Judge Allen's committee was engrafted on the bill. In that shape it passed the Senate, came back to the house and was concurred in. That was the whole of the matter and for verification he referred to Judge Allen of Goldsboro.

Advertising Saloons.

We have been requested by a few of our patrons to drop a certain advertisement from the columns of the Dispatch. It was publishing a temperance organ or prohibition paper, the ad. would never have appeared in it, but as a matter of business our columns are open to the public for the advertisement of any legitimate business, and we hope that more good than harm may come to all parties concerned by this course. At the same time we are sorry if it offends any of our patrons. A newspaper does not necessarily endorse the business of every advertiser in its columns. We do nothing more than the secular press generally, and the ethics of the Dispatch is not set above the average. We would not be understood as attempting to vindicate either side of the temperance question.—Lexington Dispatch.

We do not question the right of the Dispatch to publish advertisements of whatever character it chooses. That is a matter for it to decide for itself. We object, however, to its statement that "we do nothing more than the secular press generally." We do not believe there are two dozen secular newspapers in North Carolina that would insert a saloon advertisement. The times does not wish to pose as a "holier than thou" paper, but we wish to say that we would not insert an advertisement of a bar room or beer saloon at any price. And we believe that a large majority of the secular press of the State occupy exactly the same position.—Gopcord Times.

The Times expresses our sentiments exactly. There are a great many papers in North Carolina that do not publish saloon advertisements, the Reflector being among the number.

The First Week.

One week of the new season of the Greenville tobacco market has gone by. There was nothing spasmodic about the opening, all the warehouses advising farmers to hold their tobacco for cooler weather and better prices, still the business started off in a way that indicates a large and prosperous season. The first day's break was only about 40,000 pounds and it held up about the same all through the week, there being not less than 30,000 pounds on any day. Prices were much lower than the opening a year ago but are as good as could be had anywhere.

A Surprise.

English newspapers have been very severe in their denunciations of the Democratic declaration in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, regardless of the action of any other nation. It was hardly to be expected that these papers would do otherwise since the fact is apparent that English wealth has grown fatter and more powerful through the present single gold standard policy of the United States.

But here comes the London Financial News, which is considered an authority in matters of finance, with the following surprising statement with reference to the silver movement in this country:

"There is a plain moral in the remark that if the United States would venture to cut herself adrift from Europe and take outright to silver she would have all America and Asia at her back and the command of the markets of both countries. The barrier of gold would be more fatal than any barrier of a custom house. The bond of silver would be stronger than any bond of free trade. There can be no doubt about it that if the United States were to adopt a silver basis tomorrow British trade would be ruined before the year was out. Every American would be protected, not only at home, but in every other market. Of course the United States would suffer to a certain extent through having to pay her obligations abroad in gold, but the loss of exchange under this head would be a mere drop in the bucket as compared to the profit to be reaped from the markets of South America and Asia, to say nothing of Europe. The marvel is that the United States have not long ago seized the opportunity. It has been a piece of luck that it has never occurred to the Americans to scoop us out of the world's markets by going on a silver basis, and it might serve us right if, irritated by the contemptible apathy of our government toward the silver problem, the Americans retaliated by freezing out gold. It could be easily done."

This is a straw showing that the quickest and shortest cut to international bimetallicism, which even the Republican party professes to favor, is by the adoption and execution of free coinage of both silver and gold by the United States.

There May Be a Difference.

The Kinston Free Press in replying to the article in Wednesday's DAILY REFLECTOR says one of the warehouses in Kinston contains 21,360 feet and the other 20,000. But the Free Press failed to give the dimensions each way of the buildings, so we are unable to say whether it included a large cellar under one of them in the count or not. Greenville's 53,105 feet is all under sky-lights, no cellars or storage rooms included.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 8TH, 1896.

Congressional Convention.

The Congressional Convention of the Democratic party of the First District is hereby called to meet in Washington on Tuesday August 25th at 12 m. for the purpose of selecting a candidate for Congress, an elector and such other business as may come before it.

By order of the Committee.

W. B. RODMAN,
Chairman.

The Republicans of the first Congressional district of Maine held their convention on Thursday and nominated T. B. Reed by acclamation. This is the successive time he has been nominated.

The New York World says that Senator D. B. Hill has declared his intention of supporting the nominees of the Chicago convention. He will not follow some of the Gold Democrats who bolt the ticket though they tried hard indeed to get him to do so.

Out of the total of $793,392,590 worth of exports the past year $540,000,000 worth were products of the farm. And yet the gold people talk of the "business" interests of the country as if an industry which supplies $540,000,000 of our exports was no business at all.—Wilmington Star.

Cy Watson stands for the people and against the grasping trusts. He says: "If the people are wise, they will see to it that no man goes to Congress who is not unalterably opposed to trusts, root and branch. The man whose garments are defiled by them should be driven into retirement as the lepers were of old."

A Year of Disaster.

The present year so far, has been one of the most remarkable of a remarkable age. The record so far of great casualties resulting in the loss of life and property has never been equalled in the eventful history of the race. Cyclones have swept both land and sea, leaving desolation brooding like chaos in their paths. Earthquakes have shaken the strongest buildings until they toppled like reeds and fell to the earth. Ships have gone down with cargoes of human beings. Railway trains have almost daily dashed into chasms and added to the fearful holocaust. Mines have collapsed entombing hundreds who toiled for bread in rayless caverns of the earth. The full record of death from casualties in the present year if compiled, would outnumber the dead of many great wars recorded in history. The world itself is in a great mad rush, that men call progress. The living march on unflinching and undeterred to scenes of danger and death. They exult to-day upon the spot where stood the funeral pyre of yesterday. And such is human life.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7th, 1896.

Senator Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, found himself called upon very early in the game to pay the penalty of prominence in a National campaign. In addition to having been maliciously lied about and misquoted he has been directly attacked and charged with mismanaging the campaign. It isn't Senator Jones that these people are injuring, but Bryan and Sewall, whose prospects are looking entirely too bright to please their enemies. As to the misquotation of his interview concerning the Southern populists, Senator Jones said before going to New York, where he will probably remain until after the National Committee meeting and the big Bryan and Sewall notification meeting, next week: "I did not say that Mr. Bryan would not accept the populist nomination, for I have no authority to say that. I did not say that as a general rule the southern populists were not a creditable class. On the contrary, I said that most of them were patriotic men who were working for a cause; that they were populists because they had believed they could promote their cause best through a new party and that now they would support Bryan because it was shown that their patriotic objects could be attained only through his election. That is what I said of the Southern populists as a rule. As an exception I spoke of the class who were not creditable. I said there were some who were populists merely for their personal advancement; some who had become populists through selfish, and not patriotic motives. I spoke of these as the exceptional class who would not support Bryan. I said that as a rule the populists in the South would follow the patriotic course and support Bryan, that there were some who, for selfish motives, would not do so, but would prefer to have McKinley elected."

The charge of mismanagement against Senator Jones falls of its own weight, for the very good reason that there has been practically nothing to manage and will not be until the meeting of the National Committee in New York City on the 11th inst. when the membership of the executive committee will be announced and the general plan of the campaign mapped out and adopted. This charge was accompanied by a demand that Senator Gorman's services be requisitioned. That really explains one of the main objects of those who made the charge—to upset the extremely cordial relations existing between Senator Jones and Gorman, thus depriving the National Committee of the advice which Mr. Gorman has promised to give during the campaign in lieu of accepting the chairmanship of the executive committee which was offered him.

The gold Democrats of New York may be quite the patriots they claim to be, but since it became known in Washington that they tried to make a deal with Mark Hanna to cast their votes for the McKinley electoral ticket in exchange for Republican votes in the New York legislature for one of their number as Senator to succeed David B. Hill, they are classed as plain, everyday disgruntled politicians, more bent upon getting office than upon defending principles.

Unless all the reports from West Virginia are wrong, which is not at all likely, that state will certainly give Bryan and Sewall a large majority. Among the West Virginians in Washington this week was Chairman Chilton of the Democratic State committee. He says it is only a question of how large a majority the state will give the Democratic ticket, as the Republicans are flocking to the support of Bryan and free coinage—in one county alone 722 Republicans have joined Bryan and Sewall clubs.

The size of the Democratic majority in Alabama indicates with unerring certainty that the most of the populists in the South will return to the Democratic party, thus realizing the prediction made when Bryan was nominated

It also increased the difficulty of Tom Watson putting up a claim for democratic recognition which will receive any attention. The South will be practically solid for Bryan and Sewall, although Maryland may be lost on account of the moneyed and corporate influences of Baltimore being thrown for McKinley and the gold standard.

CATARRH.

His Worst Enemy Defeated by
P. P. P., Lippman's
Great Remedy.

FOR THREE YEARS HE SUFFERED--COULD HARDLY BREATHE AT NIGHT--ONE
NOSTRIL CLOSED FOR 10 YEARS.

Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of DeLeon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch, glad for the nights coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him. He could not sleep on either side for two years. P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him in quick time.

DE LEON, TEXAS.
Messrs. LIPPMAN BROS., Savannah, Ga.
Gents: I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crow of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily.

I have not slept on either side for two years; in fact, I decided to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position at night.

I am 50 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally.

Yours respectfully,
A. M. RAMSEY

THE STATE OF TEXAS—County of Comanche.—Before the undersigned authority on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine is true.

A. M. RAMSEY.
Sworn to and subscribed before me this August 4th, 1891.

Animals Which Vary the Monotony of Existence For Jack Tar.

Three things, writes a naval contributor, there are which do more than anything else to lighten the burden of existence such as it is borne by Jack Tar, says the Westminster Gazette. These three are grog, the hornpipe and a pet animal, and the pet animal is the greatest solace of the three. There is scarcely a vessel afloat, from one of our line of battleships down to a canal-boat, that has not a two or four footed pet on board. Sailors proverbially make pets of almost any animal they are shipmates with—elephants, bears, sheep, goats, monkeys, gazelles and raccoons among the mammalia, bantam cocks, parrots, cockatoos, magpies and sea gulls among bipeds, and even inhabitants of the ocean, such as seals and turtle, have been laid under contribution to provide amusement for our bluejackets! An elephant seems "a large order" as a sailor's pet aboard ship, but who of the senior naval officers does not remember the vessel called by the nickname of H. M. S. Menagerie, and the elephant on board of that paddle wheel frigate when they were on the Indian station. The elephant was regularly stationed and harnessed to the jib halyards, and when the order was given to "Make all plain sail," he made a triumphant bellow and ran along the waist until the pipe was sounded to "Belay!" to the delenda est Carthago of any toes that got into his way!

Admiral Sir G. W.— told me that when he commanded an Indian troopship a full grown tiger was embarked for passage to England as a present from some Indian prince to the queen. It was a magnificent animal, and for many years afterward was exhibited at the zoological gardens. One morning, about 5.30, the captain was awakened by a messenger, who said, "Please sir, the tiger has broken loose!" His reply was, "Lock my cabin door, and call me when he's in his cage again." It appears that in cleaning the cage, the men being then washing decks, the door of the cage had been unfastened and the beast had escaped, causing a regular stampede, the bluejackets forward running up the rigging and the soldiers taking to the hammock nettings and the hurricane deck. The tiger ran aft; the men had not heard of its escape and were throwing buckets of water about. The scene appeared to puzzle the tiger. At any rate, an old quarter-master realized the situation, and taking his lantern flashed it full in the face of the tiger. He then took the animal by the scruff of the neck, ran it forward to its cage and slammed and fastened the door in a jiffy.

Here is another anecdote of a real pet, this time in the same ship. There are several officers now alive who can vouch for the truth of this story. The first lieutenant had a very jolly little monkey, quite a general favorite. One evening, just before dinner, on a guest night, the ship being in harbor, the first lieutenant went into his cabin with the monkey, and, opening a box of very choice Havana cigars rather hastily, by accident smashed two of them—the parts of which he threw overboard out of his cabin port. Then, filling his cigar case, as dinner was already on the table, he left the box on the table and hurried to mess.

It had been the custom for his monkey to follow him and wait by the table for a morsel of food now and again. This evening, after some little time had elapsed, and the monkey did not appear, his owner, excusing himself for a minute, ran back to his cabin to see what his pet was doing, knowing besides, having a strong imitative trait of character, it was generally up to some mischief or other. Alas, he was too late! The monkey had only too well imitated his master, for as the first lieutenant entered the cabin, he was just in time to see the last of his cherished weeds taken out of the box and thrown out of the port overboard.

Bitter Jerrold.

Among the sayings attributed to Douglas Jerrold is a very bitter one he applied to Mark Lemon, then editor of Punch. Lemon was deeply attached to Dickens and showed it in a very open fashion, which perhaps aroused the great satirist's jealousy. At all events, as Jerrold was walking out one day with Lemon and another friend, and Dickens with several more behind them, Lemon suddenly dropped away and turned back. "What has become of Punch?" asked Jerrold's companion. "Did you not hear Dickens whistle?" was the cynical reply. "Dickens pays the dog tax for Lemon."

A Good Name is Worth Money.

A good name is worth money to any wide-awake man. He can transact business upon it, buy and sell upon it. A man with a good rating for his word and honesty by R. G. Dun & Co., or Bradstreet's Commercial Agency, can walk into the best establishment of Chicago or New York, be received into an office with velvet carpet on its floor, be bowed out with courtesy and asked to call again. A man who breaks his word and dishonors his credit for the sake of keeping a few dollars in his pocket may think he is playing a sharp trick, but men of sound business sense know how foolish and short-sighted he is.—Money-Maker.

Way of the World

As an exchange says, did you ever notice the people, the world, in fact; when it doesn't rain for a week they don't think it is going to rain any more and when it doesn't rain for two weeks they know that it will never rain again and they begin forthwith to look around and make arrangements for their future starvation? Some become resigned to their fate and even tell about it calmly. Then it unexpectedly rains and disarranges their plans. This is one curious world. Let it rain a few hours and such a howl of disapproval goes up on all sides. The Lord has a hard job pleasing some people.

Will Power.

The Monroe Enquirer says that that old preacher in the western part of the State who took for his text, "every tub must stand on its own bottom," had a great theme, and, although, he acknowledged that he did not know exactly in what book, chapter and verse his text was found, yet he showed that he had a good idea of the meaning of his text when he applied it to human life. It is provoking to hear that old cry of bums and miscreants, "Bad company brought me to my present condition." It is simply trying to shift responsibility. God has given no one the power to destroy your character. Every man who is destroyed is self destroyed. The man who goes with bad company goes on his own account and surrenders his will power with very little effort. If that same crowd of companions had attempted to have robbed him of his purse he would have fought them to the death, but he freely and willingly submits his will power and his moral courage to them, because he is so inclined. No man can honestly say that his companions are the sole cause of his ruin. Such an excuse will not stand before the Judge eternal. "Every tub must stand on its own bottom."
