BUTLER AND SKINNER.

The Fight Between Them Continues
—What Does it Mean?

On Saturday morning the fight of the night before in the Populist convention was continued. Mr. Butler withdrew the name of Walser for Attorney General, and this office together with one elector at large, and one Justice of the Supreme Court, was left in the hands of the executive committee.

Mr. Caldwell then came forward and proposed the following as an executive committee: A. S. Pease, Hal W. Ayer, John Graham, J. K. Pigford, J. B. Lloyd and S. Otto Wilson. Then came the sharpest contention of the convention.

Col. Skinner arose and said:

"I want to analyze the situation. Why the complexion of such as that named by Mr. Caldwell? There are three men there who mean one man. Why is Dr. Thompson, or myself, left from the ticket? Why? Because I have dared to face Marion Butler and tell him when he's wrong. You are going to do it because it is his wish, and he wants to retire from the Populist party every man of influence. The central committee should be representative and men should not be named who are absolutely under the control of one man."

Mr. Butler then came forward and said:

"Last night I sat on this platform and heard insinuations regarding my integrity that I would not have stood from any man except for the good of the Populist party. Now I am ready to compare character with any man in this convention. If not that, then epithets, if he wishes. Let me recall a few things. When you asked me to take your banner, I made up my mind that no slurs, no charges, no rotten eggs would make me lose my head. But when these charges come from the back and from those who should be my friends, it hurts ten thousand fold more. I put my record beside that of any man, I think I have done my duty, and will continue to do it."

He read the names proposed by Caldwell and said, when a man said three of those men were puppets, he states what is not true!"

I regretted to say that, but either I had to say this, or every gentleman named here would have to arise and denounce the statement. I have never had to use such language before. But I say it now and I have nothing to take back."

Col. Skinner replied as follows:

"If Senator Butler means to say, or would dare to say that I told an untruth about anything, anywhere at any time, we would have a quick and another day of meeting."

The time has come, when, having entrusted all to him, we must inquire if Senator Butler is a safe party leader. I say he is a party wrecker. At St. Louis he tried to turn over and deliver that convention to the Democrats. Look at his record in the State.

Let us look at this committee. Have you any doubt how Hal Ayer, editor of Butler's paper, the Caucasian, will vote in that committee? Have you any idea how Jim Lloyd, who holds a position in the Senate, given him by Marion Butler, will vote? Have you any idea how J. K. Pigford, of Samson, Butler's devoted disciple, will vote? Don't you think that will fill Butler's wants? Will not that committee do Butler's bidding?

The time has come when we should know how much power we have put into the hands of this one man. Does this putting of the affairs of the convention in the hands of the committee mean electoral fusion with Democrats? I want to say that it means what Butler wants, whatever that is.

And now I am going to make a motion to nominate this whole committee of Butler's by acclamation."

John Graham withdrew and Cy Thompson was elected in his place. Hal W. Ayer was then elected chairman of the committee.

On Thursday J. C. Cobb & Son will begin moving back to their old stand in the Elliott Block which is just being completed for them, and they invite REFLECTOR readers to call and see their splendid line of goods. They will sell cheap.

Colored Man Shot.

Saturday night at the store of Mr. C. T. Savage, about eight miles from town, a colored man got so fussy that Mr. Savage put him out and closed up the store. The man got some companions to join him, broke down the store door and started in, when Mr. Savage fired into them wounding the leader right badly. Mr. Savage came to town Sunday and had a warrant issued for the leader.

To Democratic Committees.

The several Democratic Precinct Executive Committee will immediately after their appointment elect a chairman of their body, and the chairman so elected, being by virtue of his office a member of the county Executive Committee, is requested to meet with the other members of the County Committee at Greenville on Thursday, Sep. 10th, 1896, immediately after the adjournment of the County Convention for the purpose of completing the organization of the party.

Greenville Boys' Success.

At the competitive examination held in Edenton on the 12th for a free scholarship at Bingham School, Charlie Latham, of this town, won the appointment. He has been for three or four years a student in the Male Academy here under the supervision of Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, who says Charlie is a bright boy and will be an honor to the school in which has won a scholarship.

Two years ago at a competitive examination for West Point held in this district, Mr. Harry Harding, from this same school won second place. It gives us pleasure to chronicle the success of the boys and commend what we deem one of the best preparatory schools in the State.

MR. BRYAN'S SPEECH.

Reconstruction of Society is Not Being Sought.

EQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW.

Income Tax and Free Coinage.

THE INCOME TAX.

"The Chicago platform has been condemned by some because it dissents from an opinion rendered by the Supreme Court declaring the income tax unconstitutional. Our critics even go so far as to apply the name anarchist to those who stand upon that plank of the platform. It must be remembered that we expressly recognize the binding force of that decision so long as it stands as a part of the law of the land. There is in the platform no suggestion of an attempt to dispute the authority of the Supreme Court. The party is simply pledged to use all the constitutional power which remains after that decision or which may come from its reversal by the court as it may hereafter be constituted. Is there any disloyalty in that pledge? For a hundred years the Supreme Court of the United States has sustained the principle which underlies the income tax. Some twenty years ago this same court sustained without a dissenting voice an income tax law almost identical with the one recently overturned. Has not a future court as much right to return to the judicial precedents of a century as the present court had to depart from them? When courts allow rehearings they admit that error is possible. The late decision against the income tax was rendered by a majority of one after a rehearing.

"While the money question overshadows all other questions in importance, I desire it distinctly understood that I shall offer no apology for the income tax plank of the Chicago platform. The last income tax law sought to apportion the burdens of government more equitably among those who enjoy the protection of the government. At present the expenses of the Federal government, collected through internal revenue taxes and import duties, are especially burdensome upon the poorer classes of society. A law which collects from some citizens more than their share of the taxes and collects from other citizens less than their share, is simply an indirect means of transferring one man's property to another man's pocket, and while the process may be quite satisfactory to the man who escapes just taxation it can never be satisfactory to those who are overburdened. The last income tax law, with its exemption provisions, when considered in connection with other methods of taxation in force, was not unjust to the possessors of incomes, because they were compelled to pay a total Federal tax greater than their share. The income tax is not new, nor is it based upon hostility to the rich. The system is employed in several of the most important nations of Europe, and every income tax law now upon the statute books in any land, so far as I have been able to ascertain, contains an exemption clause. The collection of an income tax in other countries does not make it necessary for this nation to adopt the suggestion, but suggests the moral language of those who denounce the income tax as an assault on the well-to-do.

"Not only shall I refuse to apologize for the advocacy of an income tax law by the National Convention, but I shall also refuse to apologize for the exercise by it of the right to dissent from a decision of the Supreme Court. In a government like ours every public official is a public servant, whether he holds office by election or by appointment; whether he serves for a term of years or during good behavior, and the people have a right to criticize his official acts. Confidence is everywhere the parent of despotism; free government exists in jealousy and not in confidence—these are the words of Thomas Jefferson, and I submit that they present a truer conception of popular government than is entertained by those who would prohibit an unfavorable comment upon a court decision. Truth will vindicate itself; only error fears free speech. No public official who conscientiously discharges his duty as he sees it will desire to deny to those whom he serves the right to discuss his official conduct.

MONEY THE PARAMOUNT QUESTION.

"Now let me ask you to consider the paramount question of the campaign—the money question. It is scarcely necessary to defend the principle of bimetalism. No rational party during the entire history of the United States has ever declared against it, and no party this campaign has had the temerity to oppose it. Three parties—the Democratic, Populist, and Silver Parties—have not only declared for bimetalism, but have outlined their specific legislation necessary to restore silver to its ancient position by the side of gold. The Republican platform expressly declares that bimetalism is desirable when it pledges the Republican Party to aid in securing it as soon as the assistance of certain foreign nations can be obtained. Those who represented the minority sentiment in the Chicago Convention opposed the free coinage of silver by the United States by independent action on the ground that, in their judgment, it would retard or entirely prevent the establishment of international bimetalism, to which the efforts of the government should be steadily directed.' When they asserted that the efforts of the government should be steadily directed toward the establishment of international bimetalism, they condemned monometallism. The gold standard has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Take from it the powerful support of the money-owning and the money-changing classes, and it cannot stand for one day in any nation in the world. It was fastened upon the United States without discussion before the people, and its friends have never yet been willing to risk a verdict before the voters upon that issue.

"There can be no sympathy or co-operation between the advocates of a universal gold standard and the advocates of bimetalism. Between bimetalism—whether independent or international—and the gold standard there is an impassable gulf. Is this quadrennial agitation in favor of international bimetalism, conducted in good faith, or do our opponents really desire to maintain the gold standard permanently? Are they willing to confess the superiority of a double standard when joined in by the leading nations of the world, or do they still insist that gold is the only metal suitable for standard money among civilized nations? If they are, in fact, desirous of securing bimetalism as a system. If, on the other hand, they are bending their energies toward the permanent establishment of a gold standard, under cover of a declaration in favor of international bimetalism, I am justified in suggesting that honest money cannot be expected at the hands of those who deal dishonestly with the American people.

Mr. Carlyle.
It soon became a habit to watch for the familiar carriage and either to welcome Mrs. Carlyle for a visit or to go with her for a drive. She often came to me on Sunday afternoon. One wet and dreary day I was sitting alone when the bell rang. I gladly ran to answer it and saw a strange gentleman standing there, but looking beyond him I saw the dear free smiling at me from the carriage window. I was eagerly dashing forward, but was peremptorily waved back, with orders to get my bonnet and come out. Mr. George Cooke was our companion, and in spite of the wind and rain we were all very bright and merry, Mrs. Carlyle taking my hand and holding it in hers for a great part of the time.

The day she and Miss Jewsbury came I had seen Punch's Christmas Almanack, and on its cover were likenesses of all the principal literary people, very comical and funny, with absurd doggerel couplets describing them. Among these I spied Carlyle and Tyndall together. Carlyle was in full Scotch costume. In one hand he carried a child's spade and pail, and with the other he was throwing pens and ink over his shoulder, and the lines were these:

Carlyle, having finished "Friedrich" altogether, is off to Scarborough to spend the summer weather.

Oh, how she laughed, and how delighted she was! "The first time Punch has taken any notice of him," she said. Another time Mrs. Carlyle said: There is something in the carriage for you. Run and look." I found there a large blue china plate, still happily in my possession.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Keen Witted Woman.
Lord Waterford used to tell some good stories of his experience as an Irish magistrate. One of them referred to the case of a woman whom he had to sentence for a breach of the peace. He let her off on condition that she found two securities of £10 each that she would keep the peace for six months.
"Thank ye, my lord," said she, moving toward the door.
"No, no," said Lord Waterford, "you must name your securities that I may see whether they are satisfactory."
"Faith, and who would I name," she answered, "but your lordship's self? Yer good enough for two," a retort which not only showed the sprightliness of the Irish character, but in addition the feeling of friendly confidence which the Irish peasantry who knew him cherished for the Lord of Curraghmore.—Pearson's Weekly.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The Schenectady Locomotive works are using for certain parts what is called "steeled iron," a mixture of 70 per cent. good iron and 30 per cent. steel, of which the castings obtained are about 25 per cent. greater in strength than common cast iron.

—North Carolina has a mica output of 100,000 pounds a year. New Hampshire produces about 25,000 pounds, South Dakota 18,000 pounds and New Mexico 1,000 pounds. The mica of North Carolina is of the best quality and brings the highest price.

—Our exports of iron and steel and their products for the first nine months of this year amounted in value to about $32,000,000, the largest by over $4,000,000 in the history of the country. Included in this sum were 135 locomotives, which were mostly sent to South America.

—The world's record for lumber cutting is claimed for the Port Blakely mill of Port Blakely, Wash. During the ten months of this year up to the end of October 83,676,212 feet of lumber had been cut at this one mill, and it is estimated that the total output for 1895 will be at least 105,000,000 feet. Loaded in regular car lots, this amount would make a train more than 60 miles long.

—An apostle of physical culture, according to the Medical Record, says that nervous headache may be cured by the simple act of walking backward for ten minutes. "It is well to get in a long, narrow room, where the windows are high, and walk very slowly, placing first the ball of the foot on the floor, and then the heel. Besides curing the headache, this exercise promotes a graceful carriage."

—"The large part played by alcohol as a cause contributing to insanity receives fresh confirmation in the 40th report of the commission on lunacy," says the British Medical Journal. "For the five years ending 1893 alcoholism was the predisposing or exciting cause in 20.8 per cent. of male and 8.1 per cent. of female lunacy. Intemperance is credited with 25.6 per cent. of male and 19.9 per cent. of female general paralytics."

DEER HUNTING BY LOCOMOTIVE

The Reason Some Adirondacks Railroad Men Didn't Feast on Venison.

Once in awhile the engineer of a train on Dr. Seward Webb's Adirondack railroad has a race with a deer. Sometimes it happens that the frightened deer won't leave the track and is killed. One night in September, when Pat Cummings was pulling the through train down to Utica, he walked back to Conductor Clarke, while his fireman was taking water at Nehosene, and said:

"Bill, I killed a deer back there by the river. It was a fine big buck. He run ahead of me for a long piece, and I could see him plain. When I hit him he went up over the pilot higher'n he ever jumped before in his life, I bet. He landed just out there in the ditch, and I had a notion to stop and get him, but I was afraid you'd kick."

"I wish you had stopped," said Clarke. "The next time you catch a deer that way you stop. It won't take so long to get him, and we can easily make up the time. Deer meat is too scarce and too high to let it go like that."

Cummings said he surely would stop the next time, and Clarke got the agent to telegraph to the agent at Horseshoe to send the section men down to the river with their hand car to get the deer. It was after 11 o'clock, but the section men started out, and after a smart pull got down to the river. They looked a long time, but could find no deer. Up and down the track they went, and at last were just about to give up in disgust when one of the men found it. It lay out on the bank of the ditch beside the track. It was a fine large yellow dog.

Now if you ask Pat Cummings if he has killed a deer lately you want to be ready to dodge, and dodge mighty quick, for Pat is a husky citizen.—N. Y. Sun.

Waste of Happiness.

There is nothing which we waste more than happiness. Even those who are thrifty and prudent in other directions are careless here. They stint and plan to save a halfpenny, but they are often indifferent about the loss of days of happiness. We do not enjoy our friends until they die or we lose them in some other way. The early spring and summer days pass without our realizing their beauty. We rush through a holiday trip and miss half the scenery, because we are in a hurry, or cross or anxious about worthless trifles. Nearly every old or even middle-aged man who looks back honestly on his life will admit that, however wretched he may be now, opportunities of happiness were given to him. A French writer recorded what most of us know from experience to be true when he said that many people could be made happy with the happiness which is lost in the world. We lose happiness because we often scorn calm, quiet pleasures, and seek only for those that excite. Or we make the mistake of thinking that happiness lies only in big sensational events instead of in the small, trifling incidents of daily life. Or we seek for it in the future rather than in the present, which is like a man looking for his hat when it is all the time upon his head.—Home Queen.
