But taterpone is comin' on,
En juicy 'possum meat!
Heah dat song?
You stay too long!
But Mister Winter's comin' strong!

WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

The weather during the week ending Saturday, September 12th, 1896, continued remarkably dry, almost no rain at all having fallen, except a very few light local showers in several Western counties. The first part of the week was cool (7th and 8th,) but during the latter part the temperature rose again above 90 degrees. The weather has been clear and favorable for cotton-picking, but was not otherwise beneficial. Streams and wells are reported to be getting very low.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

Extremely dry weather continues. No rain occurred since the morning of September 6th; rain is badly needed everywhere and water is getting scarce in streams and wells. Cotton is mostly open and in many places entirely picked out; about half the crop has been gathered. Corn almost dry, and some has been put in cribs. Field-peas are poor, vines bloomed without bearing much fruit. Very few farmers have a good stand of turnips; the seeds are not coming up, and plants where up are not growing. Mowing hay and pea-vines continues. Rice and sweet potatoes are being cut off by the drought. Peanuts are drying up, and only half matured, and hence will be short crop. Good crop of scuppernong grape

CENTRAL DISTRICT.

Another dry, clear week; wells failing. Some cool nights occurred first part of the week, but it became very warm again towards the end. A few local showers occurred in Forsyth and Granville, benefiting turnips and permitting some fall plowing. Cotton crop nearly all open in south, and will soon be in the north; much of it picked out; the hot weather has caused further premature opening. Cotton is being brought to market rapidly. Early corn is dry enough to gather and fair crop. Over half the farmers are through cutting and curing tobacco. Hay-making proceeds; grass and pea-vine hay poor. Pea crop short.

WESTERN DISTRICT.

Excepting very light local showers on the 11th at scattered points in five counties, the entire week was dry and clear. The 7th and 8th were cool, but higher temperatures prevailed at the close of the week. These conditions were favorable for picking cotton, which progressed rapidly; cotton is estimated to be from one-half to two-thirds open. The entire crop will be out at least three weeks earlier than usual. Field-peas are being gathered; pods were formed sparingly. Where rains occurred turnips are making fine growth but many farmers have planted turnip seed three times without securing a fair stand. Cane being cut, and molasses made. Pastures injured by drought also in western valleys.

THE UNIVERSITY.

The high water mark of attendance has been reached this week at the University. The first week closes with a total attendance of 504 in all departments. These are distributed as follows: Collegiate department 280, Law 45, Medicine, 25, Summer School 153. This means, if the experience of the past is carried out, a total enrollment of 600. The freshman class numbers thus far one hundred men.

The week has been an interesting one at Chapel Hill. Dr. Alderman made his formal opening address to the students on Tuesday in the presence of a large gathering, outlining the policy of the University and his own policy to the young men. The speech was received with great enthusiasm by the young men and partly as a result of it all the old classes of the University have voluntarily adopted resolutions prohibiting hazing, thus co-operating with the faculty in the first principles of self government. The new administration starts off with all the departments in thorough harmony. All the student organizations are forming and the great school is thoroughly started on its year's work. Commons Hall with arrangements for boarding one hundred or more open with tea next Monday night. It is one of the best equipped dining rooms in the state. Both this and the kitchen are due to the beneficence of Mrs. Frederick Baker, of New York. It is a great boon to all students. Five new men of talent in their departments have been added to the teaching force, an instructor each in Latin, Modern Languages, English, History and Scientific Physical Culture. While the last does not count on a course yet Mr. Mechling comes to the state thoroughly equipped to make intelligent physical culture practical, pleasant and profitable. The Young Men's Christian Association gives its annual reception to the new students with refreshments and short talks, music, &c., Friday night in Commons Hall.

Happy Hits from New York Journal.

The Republican newspapers are so sure that Bryan's speeches are making Republican votes that they have stopped printing them.

Now that Mr. McKinley is running for the Presidency on a Grover Cleveland platform, it is not at all strange he should seek to avoid all reference to his Toledo speech and all other utterances favorable to silver.

One of the ideas the Indianapolis Convention sought to fast on the country is that Mr. Cleveland appointed about all of the genuine Democrats to office. It is an idea that will experience considerable difficulty in its circulation department.

Making Bibles on Sunday.

One of the toughest stories that has come recently even from New York, was brought out in the investigation by the Brotherhood of Bookbinders of the strike of the employees of the International company.

This company has a contract for 150,000 Bibles and in making them it has resorted to the meanest methods it could devise. Its work has been given to sweat shops where starvation wages are paid and where labor is seen in its most unhappy and degraded condition. The best wages paid for work on these Bibles was 50 cents a day and the men were required to work on Sunday. In the greatest city of a Christian nation men employed in the manufacture of Bibles ground down by miserly employers and made to work on Sunday. What a picture!

The Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer reports the following interview with chairman Manly, of the Democratic Executive Committee, as to his opinion of the recent deal between the Populists and Republicans:

"I cannot say how long the people will let the action of the managers stand. It is believed that in the Populist party there is a powerful element and a strong hand that will stop this sacrifice of their rights and repudiate such trading and trafficking of their votes. I noticed an interview with Republican Chairman Holton, in which he claims the State by 75,000 majority and that he says further the Democratic party stole 30,000 votes last election. Such boastful statements are ridiculous. There is no basis on which such calculations are made. The small majority of last year affords no such basis for such boastful statements. These statements and charges of Republicans are either idle vauntings of men who have a pocketful of Hanna's money or are started for a purpose. Look at the facts: Thirty-five thousand Democrats who did not vote in the last State election will vote this year; of 12,000 or 15,000 former Democrats who voted the fusion ticket in 1894 many have become disgusted with the trading and sales now going on between their leaders and the Republicans over the spoils of office, and the utter abandonment of the cause of financial reform. These men will this year vote the Democratic ticket. We will get out our full vote and with these accessions elect our ticket, State and national, by a safe majority. Candidly, the only fear well-posted Democrats have about the result in North Carolina is the success of the well-known scheme on the part of the Republicans to debauch the ballot box with money, being supplied and to be supplied by Mark Hanna and his syndicate of gold-bugs. But let our people understand the truth. The charge of Democratic fraud is false and is meant to divert the public from these Republican fraudulent purposes and practices. A deep scheme seems now to be laid by the Republican politicians. The rank and file frauds and most corrupt practices will be a temptation to them and are now maturing. Look out for votes of negroes under aliases, registering minors and voting ex-convicts. In the registration they propose to do their deviltry. By such corrupt methods the Republicans hope to count 25,000 to 35,000 votes, but they are sowing what they will never reap. The people of the State understand this. And I can say to our enemies, beware of trying the scheme. If such deviltry is attempted it will not be successful. The Democrats of North Carolina do not propose that a handful of white men shall so manipulate that part of the negro vote of which they will have absolute control in this State as to debauch the ballot and cheat the white people of the State out of their votes by offering them false and counterfeit ballots. The Democrats have never been more in earnest. The party will cast this year more votes than before in its history. This statement is verified by information coming from every part of the State."

The Marriageable Age.

Regarding the coinage question as substantially settled and the tariff question postponed, the New York Herald has addressed itself to the discussion of the great social problem. "At what age should women marry?"

This, however, appears to us a question that admits of a very easy answer. A woman should marry at whatever age she has an opportunity to marry with advantage. Such an opportunity may come early or it may not come till late: it does not often happen that the woman can select the occasion according to her idea of the proper age, and for that reason we should doubt the utility of the discussion.

It is doubtless true that the average age of marriage has advanced within a generation or two. This is partly because a girl's education is extended over more years than formerly, and partly because the men are not ready to marry as soon. It takes longer to make a start in life or to reach the point where a man feels that he can undertake a domestic establishment. At the same time the young women have acquired more interests and opportunities and do not always think of marriage as the one essential end, so that the roses often remain ungathered much longer than our grandmothers would have thought fit.

Now, how can anybody undertake to say at what age "women" should marry? It is a question for the individual woman. Assuming that she has reached maturity, and that she has not passed into senility, the proper time for her to marry is when she is sought in marriage by a man whom she surely loves, whom she honors and respects and who will give her love, honor and respect in turn, together with a fitting maintenance. If such a marriage comes to her early, so much the happier; if late, it may be happier still. The proper sort of a woman is always at the proper age.—Philadelphia Times.

BEN FRANKLIN'S KITE.

The Instrument With Which the Great Philosopher Faced Possible Death.

It was a square kite, not the coffin shaped affair shown in story book pictures. To the upright stick of the cross Franklin attached his pointed rod—a sharp wire about a foot long—and provided himself with a silk ribbon and a key, the ribbon to fasten to the string after he had raised the kite as some possible protection—how much he did not know—against the lightning entering his body, and the key to be secured to the junction of the ribbon and string to serve as a conductor from which he might draw the sparks of celestial fire if it came. When the thunderstorm broke, he went out on the open common near Philadelphia and faced death—faced the tremendous power of the lightning stroke, before which all people of all ages had quailed in terror, faced what most of the world then believed to be the avenging blow of an angered God. True, he believed that electricity and lightning were the same thing and therefore had no different properties or effects, but he did not know it.

The best existing theory which accounted for electrical phenomena at that time was his own. The laws of electrical conduction or resistance, now so familiar, were not even suspected. Who could predict that the lightning would obey any law? Besides he had produced tremendous shocks with his Leyden jars in series and had killed birds with them. More than that, he had been terribly shocked himself by the same means—stunned into insensibility and nearly killed. He had said again and again that an electric shock, if strong enough, would blot out life, though without a pang. If his idea was correct, if his conviction was true, he was now about to face an electric discharge beside which that of the most powerful of man made batteries would seem weak and insignificant.

All the world knows what happened. The kite soared up into the black cloud while the philosopher stood calmly in the drenching rain watching the string until finally he saw the little fibers of the hemp raise themselves. Then without a tremor he touched his knuckle to the key—and lived. For the spark crackled and leaped to his finger as harmlessly as did that from his old familiar electrical machine and allowed him to charge his jars with it with the same impunity.

He sent the story of what he had done abroad without a particle of trumpeting. He was not a discoverer for revenue. No stock markets awaited the announcement of his claims; no newspaper stood ready to blaze forth his achievement in the interest of the money jugglers. His own narrative rarely fills one of the little columns of The Gentlemen's Magazine for Oct. 19, 1752, and it has at its end only the initials B. F.—Park Benjamin in Cassier's Magazine.

Diane de Poitiers.

While the abbess of Soyons, being still untried by the stress of battle, went sinless upon her still orthodox way there lived just across the river on the manor of l'Etoile a sinner of a gayer sort—Diane de Poitiers. The castle of the Star dates from the fifteenth century, when Louis XI dwelt there as governor of Dauphiny and was given lessons in how to be a king. Diane the beautiful—"the most beautiful," as Francis I gallantly called her—transformed the fortress into a bower and gave to it (or accepted for it) the appropriately airy name of the Chateau du Papillon. There she lived long after her butterfly days were over. There, even, she received the visits of Henry II, her dead lover's son. And in a way, although the Castle of the Butterfly is a silk factory now, she lives there still, just as another light lady beautiful, Queen Jeanne of Naples, lives on in nearby Provence, for Diane's legend still is vital in the countryside, and the old people still talk about her as though she were alive among them and call her always, not by her formal title of the Duchesse de Valentinois, but by her love title of "la belle dame de l'Etoile."—Thomas A. Janvier in Century.

President Wright, colored, of the Georgia State Agricultural college has this anecdote told of him: At the close of the war General Harris addressed the pupils of a negro school in Atlanta. "What shall I tell them in the north when I go back?" he said. A negro boy sitting in the front row jumped to his feet and cried: "Tell them we are rising!" That boy is now President Wright.

Wilson Air-Tight Heater.

With Patent Automatic Smoke Doors.

The Wilson Heater, which is a stove for house heating, is the most remarkable that has ever been patented.

In the first place it radiates more heat than any stove known, and will save 25 per cent. in fuel over any stove made.

Second, with two or three ordinary sticks of pine stove wood it will keep the fire from 36 to 48 hours, and with ordinary care the fire will never go out.

Third, being entirely closed at the base there is no danger of fire, and it is the cleanest stove in use. It is not necessary to remove the ashes oftener than once a month. These stoves are made in different styles—the small one, which is made for bed rooms, is specially recommended for health as well as comfort.

The Wilson Heater has a great advantage over any similar stove, because it has Patent Automatic Smoke Doors, which prevent the smoke from coming into the room when you take the top off to put in the wood. These doors are so constructed that they can be taken off and put back on in one minute. These stoves can be seen our store, come and look at them.
