The Law—Enforce it.

Hardly any law we know of deserves to be more rigidly enforced than the statute designed to protect the brute creation. The following is a list of offenses under the present law designed for prevention of cruelty to animals:

"A half-starved horse under a burden; an over-loaded horse, mule or ox; the turning out of a disabled domestic animal to die of starvation; the over-driving of a horse, mule or ox; failure to feed, water or house domestic animals in winter; the carrying of fowls with their heads down (must be carried in the arms or in basket); the killing of birds of song or plumage, except such as may be of use as food; the robbing of birds' nest; mocking birds' young may be taken, but must be kept in clean roomy cages; the mairing or crippling of any bird or beast in sport. The offenses are punishable by fine and imprisonment."

The person who willfully mistreats the animal or fowl creation ought to be restrained, and a few sample cases in each community would soon set matters straight along this line. A law not enforced is really worse than no law at all. Let the scales of justice balance for those creatures and birds who are powerless to protect themselves.—Winston Republican.

For the Reflec.or.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Ashley D. Leggett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Leggett, of Columbia, S. C., (formerly of Greenville, N. C.) Who departed this life on September, 17th, 1896, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ada G. Lanier, of Charleston, S. C.

Slumber sweetly dearest Ashley,
On thy lowly couch of rest,
While we kneel and try to murmur
God does all things for the best.

God in his wisdom has recalled,
The boon his love had given,
And though thy body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

Thou thy spirit is in Heaven,
Where some day we will meet,
Thy memory we will love and cherish
Until our hearts shall cease to beat.

He leaves a father, mother, five brothers and four sisters, and many friends to mourn his loss.

Tom Dixon Writes His Father.

Rev. J. E. White, corresponding secretary of the Baptist State Convention, went up in Surry county today to attend the Elkin association. Mr. White was in Shelby yesterday where he learned that Rev. Thomas Dixon had written his father to the effect that he expected to make several speeches in North Carolina against the Democrats, and that Shelby was one of the places he was going to speak. Tom wrote his father that he only wanted one hour to convince him that he was wrong. They say that the old man, like the Baptists, has about lost all confidence in Tommy. The father is a Democrat.—Winston Sentinel.

Off for the Races.

R. L. Smith will leave tomorrow morning for the races at Norfolk, Richmond, Baltimore, Burlington, Fayetteville and Raleigh. He will carry Lucy Ashby, Birdseye, Mary Lee and Eloise. He has as fine a quartette as ever entered a race and somebody's horse must fly if they win any of the races.

Public Speaking.

Hon. Cyrus B. Watson, Democratic candidate for Governor, will speak at Kinston, Wednesday, Oct. 14. Snow Hill, Thursday, Oct. 15. Greenville, Friday, Oct. 16. Washington, Saturday, Oct. 17.

WHY SHOULD WE WEEP FOR THOSE WHO DIE?

Why should we weep for those who die?

They fall, their dust returns to dust
Their souls shall live eternally
Within the memory of the just.

They die to live, they sink to rise,
They leave this wretched mortal shore,
But brighter suns and bluer skies
Shall smile on them forever more.

Why should we sorrow for the dead?
Our life on earth is but a span;
They tread a path that all must tread,
They die the common death of man.

The noblest songster of the dale
Must cease when winter's frowns appear;
The reddest rose is wan and pale
When autumn tints the changing year.

The fairest flowers on earth must fade,
The brightest hopes on earth must die;

Why should we mourn that man was made

To droop on earth but dwell on high?

The soul, the eternal soul must reign
In worlds devoid of pain and strife;
Then why should mortal man complain

Of death which leads to happier life?

Oakley Items.

OAKLEY, N. C., Sept. 28, 1896.

S. H. Taylor went to Pactolus Saturday to hear B. F. Aycock and reports that he made a good speech.

The bulk of the cotton is picked out in this section and will be considerably under an average crop.

J. S. Gray who for several years has been living in Arkansas arrived at his old home Wednesday.

Grading tobacco is the order of the day.

We have just learned with sorrow that the little daughter of J. N. Taylor near here died last night after a lingering illness with typhoid. We extend to the bereaved family our sympathy.

Dixon's Platform.

Some years ago, Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., made himself some notoriety by declaring that he "could not be a politician and a Christian." He must have abandoned any effort to be the latter, or else discovered some process by which he can be both at the same time.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Laid at Rest.

The last sad rites were held over the remains of Miss Claudie Spain this morning at Mt. Pleasant church, four from town. Truly the friends and relatives join the REFLECTOR in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

The Review of Reviews for October continues its admiral record of the Presidential campaign. In the July, August, and September numbers the Republican, Democratic, and Populist conventions were reviewed, together with the careers of the nominees. In the October number the movement of the "sound-money" Democrats, culminating in the Indianapolis convention, receives similar attention. No other publication in the country offers in a single number such a wealth of political portraiture, or so wide a range of cartoon illustrations. Every noteworthy phase of the canvass is fully and impartially presented. Material is gathered from every source and carefully digested.

How to Work.

The advocates of the gold standard say that salaried men, and all others who do not produce anything on the farms, can buy more for his money than ever before. More of what. More of the necessities of life, such as bread and meat.

Who does he buy it from? From the farmer, of course. Well, if he buys it from the farmer, the farmer is making less on his produce than he ever did before.

The farmers are not fools, and when they see that they are year by year getting less for their work and the salaried men are year by year getting more for their work, by reason of the increased purchasing power of his money, will it not be natural for the young men on the farms to at once go to the city and hunt for some of those paying positions?

Is he not capable of performing the duties that are incumbent on the lower class of salesmen, and from that point will he not rise to the capability for higher accomplishments, and will there not be two, three and four men hunting one position? Is it possible that employers will hold the price of labor up when so many willing employees offer to work for less. How long will wages stand?

The true progress of every strata of society is ultimately dependent upon the progress of the producers. Destroy the profits that are derived from the production of raw materials, and you discourage and discredit the production of raw materials. Discourage and discredit the production of raw materials and you destroy the foundation upon which the superstructure of genuine prosperity exists, and we have left only uncertainty, stringency and lack of confidence, which makes hard times.—Durham Sun.

A Goldbug Cornered.

"Uncle" Tommie Willard lives below Wauhtown. He is one of Forsyth's best citizens. He is as good a silver man as Frank Brown and occasionally propounds some knotty question for the gold standard people to answer.

Several days ago "Uncle" Tommy came to town to get some medicine from his physician. His doctor happens to be a "goldbug" while "diagnosing" the case the doctor began lecturing the old farmer about his views on finance. "Uncle" Tommy was attentive to every argument. At the conclusion of the lecture, the farm tiller queried his physician and called for answers. He first asked the doctor if he did not remember his first visit to his house some thirty years ago. The doctor replied that he did.

"Well," continued Uncle Tommy, "you will no doubt call to mind that you charged me $2.50 for the call—the same price you charge now." The doctor "remembered."

"Now," said Uncle Tommy I want to tell you that it only took two and one half bushels of my corn to pay you for your first visit, while now it takes over seven. Will you please tell me what's the matter?

The doctor was too busy to "diagnose" the question and Uncle Tommy went home telling his friends how he had cornered one "goldbug."—Winston Sentinel.

Some queer wills get into court sometimes. One of these got into a San Francisco court recently, where a contest was made over a will that was written on a shingle by an old miner who left a big pile of money to some one who had helped him in his day of need. A will on a shingle looked somewhat odd, but the court held that it was straight and O K.

Greenville N. C.
Dear Sir:—I hold accident policy No. 9787 in your Company.
On the 23rd day of June, 1896, while superintending work at my saw-mill my arm was crushed between two logs.
On the 27th day of August I filed my claim with your company for indemnity for two weeks, claiming $25.
Your company, noting that my disability was for a period longer than I claimed, sent me their check dated Sept. 1st, 1896, for $26.78. This is a striking contrast with companies which prefer to scale a claim instead of paying the full amount.

I thank you and your company for this prompt and generous settlement, having paid me more than I claimed.
I commend your excellent company to those desiring the best insurance.
Yours very truly,
W. E. PROCTER.

WOMEN DISLIKE STINGY MEN.

Especially When the Latter Invite Them to a Restaurant.

If there is one object of dislike to a woman, it is a stingy man. Now, by this we do not mean that the fair sex are anxious for a man to spend more than he can afford, but they do feel that it is due to them when they are invited out to have the privilege of selecting what they want from a menu without being prompted by their host to select what he prefers.

The man doesn't have to say, "You must take this, or you mustn't take that." A woman is quick to recognize the saving keynote when he says: "What will you have? I think I will have a sandwich," and though she may loathe sandwiches she feels it her duty to say, "Well, then, I will have one too." Some mean men know that they can easily bulldoze a woman this way, and it would serve them just right if their guest were to say, "Well, for my part, I prefer terrapin, some fresh mushrooms, a canape Lorenzo and some Nesselrode pudding."

Oh, no, we never do say that. We are guided by the inflection in the man's voice and take whatever he wants us to, whether we like it or not. Now, we don't object one bit to a man being economical. It is a praiseworthy trait, but for goodness sake don't have him practice it when he takes a woman out to luncheon, dinner or supper. If he really can't afford anything she might ask for, he has no right to invite her. Let him do the elegant less frequently and do it right when he is about it.

The woman of the world will perhaps order a more extravagant meal than he would desire, but she won't break him if he entertains her but once in decent style, instead of three or four times in poverty stricken fashion that makes his guest want to pass her purse across the table to him to help him out of his difficulty. There is no pleasure in eating under such circumstances, and a woman would feel much more pleased with a man if no such suggestion were made and she thus escaped an exhibition of his meanness. Let it be said right here that the really poor man is not the one to get into such a predicament. He knows he can't and he stays out of trouble by not inviting you to a swell restaurant and then looking pained if you order something beyond what he had expected. It is the man who wants to make a show of being a "thoroughbred" who too often proves conclusively by some episode of this sort that he is not.

"My boy will know how to order when he grows up," said a young mother the other day. "if I have to write out the menu for him every time he takes a young lady out. There won't be any 'what will you have' about it, but he will select a dainty little meal that will relieve her from the embarrassment of selection, but won't be made up of the cheapest things in sight, and will, therefore, give her a chance, if she does not care for his choice, to make a change in one or more dishes without feeling that she is an up to date Jack Sheppard who has lured an unhappy victim into a restaurant just to rob him."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A DESPERADO'S NERVE.

His Affability Toward the Man Who Had Come to Hang Him.

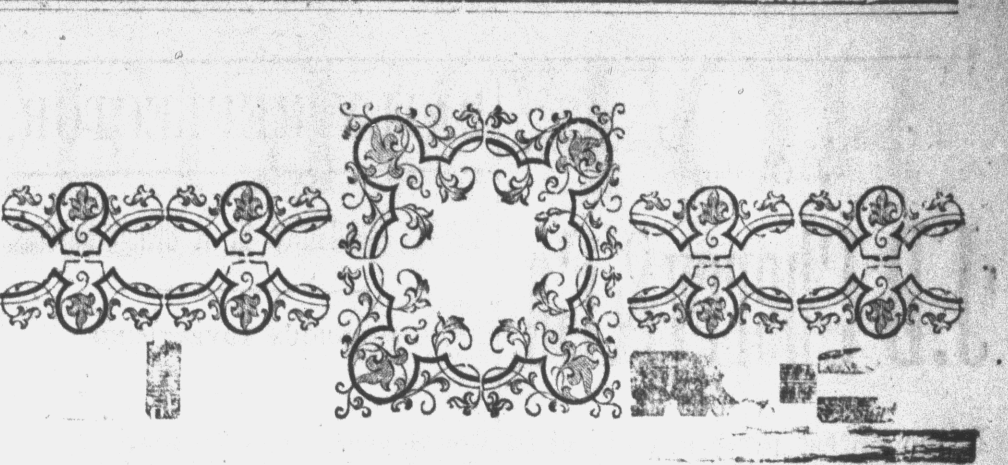

J. K. Chambers, Union depot ticket agent, when in a reminiscent mood, can tell many interesting stories of the west in early days.

He was in the service of the government at Sydney when that town was the toughest place in Nebraska, if not in the west, and whence persons bound for the Black Hills started.

A few days ago Mr. Chambers was sitting in the Milwaukee city office, and the conversation turned to early days in the transmissouri country and bravery.

The First American Book.

The "Bay Psalmbook," which was published at Cambridge, Mass., in 1640, was for many years supposed to be the very first book printed on the American continent. Of late it has been discovered (by persons who ought to have been acquainted with the facts from the beginning of the controversy) that books were printed in Mexico a long century before the Cambridge ever saw a copy of the "Bay Psalmbook." Fernandez's "Ecclesiastical History," published at Toledo, Spain, in 1611, plainly states that the first book published in America was a copy of Antonio d'Ispanola's "Devotional," printed in the City of Mexico in the year 1535.—St. Louis Republic.

RICKS & TAFT,

The Ladies Bazaar.

Novelty Suits.

The collection is great and varied, our own exclusive styles, and but one of each. You are free to touch, handle, examine and criticise them. Note particularly, we don't say "buy." That's another question, the goods are at your 'option.' Our thought now is to interest you.

Serges.

Neat and quiet effects that assume but little and are brimful of honest wear and worth. Gayety and gravity about equally divide the dress goods taste. Hence Serges are prominent on the latter side. Our selections of qualities and colors aggregate far beyond any competition.

Plaids.

Plaids are powerful. We forsook their popularity and provided accordingly. They vary from the charming shepherd check to the bold criss-crossing. West of England as well as the Highlands are represented here. Come see us.

Lang Selis Cheap.

Wilson Air-Tight Heater.

With Patent Automatic Smoke Doors.

The Wilson Heater, which is a stove for house heating, is the most remarkable that has ever been patented.

In the first place it radiates more heat than any stove known, and will save 25 per cent. in fuel over any stove made.

Second, with two or three ordinary sticks of pine stove wood it will keep the fire from 36 to 48 hours, and with ordinary care the fire will never go out.

Third, being entirely closed at the base there is no danger of fire, and it is the cleanest stove in use. It is not necessary to remove the ashes oftener than once a month. These stoves are made in different styles—the small one, which is made for bed-rooms, is specially recommended for health as well as comfort.

The Wilson Heater has a great advantage over any similar stove, because it has Patent Automatic Smoke Doors, which prevent the smoke from coming into the room when you take the top off to put in the wood. These doors are so constructed that they can be taken off and put back on in one minute. These stoves can be seen our store, come and look at them.
