Value of Determination.

Determination has quite as much as means or opportunity to do with giving one success. If a man is determined to do, he will be likely to do, whether things favor or oppose him. If a man makes up his mind that, as things are, he cannot do what he ought to, or would like to, he will not be likely to accomplish anything, however circumstances combine to help him. "Only Omnipotence can hinder a determined man," and Omnipotence will not oppose a determined man who is set in the right direction. It is not the opportunity that a man has or the tools that are available to him, but it is the determination with which he pushes on against unfavorable circumstances, and with which he uses such tools as are available, that settles the question of how much he amounts to and what he accomplishes in life.—Sunday School Times.

Bent on Assassination.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Joseph Maruska walked into the lower corridor of the city hall late yesterday afternoon armed and intent on killing Mayor Swift. Maruska asked in an exciting manner to be directed to the mayor's office. A policeman took him to detective headquarters, where the sergeant was introduced to him as the mayor. Maruska declared the mayor was a menace to society, and reached for his hip pocket. He drew a bullaog revolver but was disarmed.

Maruska swore he would kill Mayor Swift and then go to Canton and kill President-elect McKinley, both of whom he said must die before the country could prosper. He was handcuffed after a hard struggle and locked up.

Please Pay Promptly.

Our collector is out looking after subscribers to THE DAILY REFLECTOR and we certainly would appreciate it if no one would make it necessary to call on them the second time. The individual amounts are in the main small but the aggregate means something to us. If every one would think that it requires some money to run a newspaper, and that duaning is not always pleasant work, perhaps such items as this would not be seen in print often. The prompt paying subscriber is the one who gives most joy to the newspaper man.

Lost.

A small boy about the size of a man, barefooted with his father's shoes on, had an empty bag on his back containing two railroad tunnels and a bundle of auger holes. He wore a note head coat with bill head padding. He was crossed eyed in the back of his neck and his hair was cut long. When last seen he was on his way to the exchange office of the Greenville Telephone Co. Parties finding him will please return to the W. & W. R. R. Co., at House, N. C.

Promising.

The genial young man slapped the merchant on the back and exclaimed: "How's business?" "How's business?" the merchant repeated thoughtfully. Then he took a bundle of notes at anything from thirty days to six months from his pocket and, with an effort at cheer, exclaimed: "My boy, I never saw a time when business was more promising."—Washington Star.

Two important religious assemblies are now in session in this State, the Presbyterian Synod at Newbern, and Baptist State Convention at Morganton.

Early Closing.

We see from the Commonwealth that many of the merchants of Scotland Neck have entered into an agreement to sell no goods after 8 o'clock at night the year round, except Saturday nights, when they will close at 10 o'clock! That is a good movement and worthy of emulation in other towns.

Not This Time.

Mark Hanna has been indicted for bribery in Texas. The courts of North Carolina may have something to say which will also be of interest to the National Chairman of Republicanism.—Elizabeth City News.

With both the Superior and Supreme court benches of the State held down by Republicans? Well, hardly.

Immense Postal Fund Asked.

Washington, D.C. Nov. 10.—Postmaster General Wilson has submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury his estimates for the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898. These aggregate $95,515,411, an increase over the estimates of 1897 of $4,942,846. There will be a deficiency of $1,278,335 in 1897.

Democrats who hold positions in the internal revenue service in North Carolina under the civil service need not delude themselves into the belief that they will be allowed to retain their places after McKinley comes in. No matter what Mr. McKinley's personal opinion may be about the civil service the pressure on him for places will be so great that he cannot resist it, and sooner or later every Democratic Federal officeholder in this State, from the highest to the lowest, will be bounced.—Statesville Landmark.

Bryan got 25,000 more votes in this State than Hon. C. B. Watson, candidate for Governor. The populists polled about 20,000 votes, and as it requires 30,000 under the present election law for a party's existence to be recognized, it appears that the populists as a party are gone up, unless the next Legislature changes the election law so as to give them recognition anyway, which is more than probable.

The publisher is under no more obligation to his advertisers than the doctor is to his patient or the lawyer to his client. The business transacted is for mutual benefit. Each requires the assistance of the other. Without the newspaper great advertisers cannot exist; without the advertisers the newspapers of today would be impossible.—Printers' Ink.

An eighteen-year-old cigarette victim, a nine-year-old stabber, a sixteen-year-old drunkard and two ten-year-old robbers make a startling record of juvenile depravity for one day. Degeneration is playing a very strong game in this part of the world.—New York Journal.

The report of the chairman of the Railroad Commission shows that there are 3,439 miles of railroads in North Carolina valued at $26,576,006. The railroads now pay one-tenth of all the State taxes.

We are request to state that the sale of refreshments by the Sunbeam Circle of the King's Daughters, announced for Friday night, has been postponed.

Newbern has taken lead and organized a Democratic free silver club for 1900. This is a good step and other towns should fall into line.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 12TH, 1896.

Ransom Moore, an old citizen of Beaufort, died last week leaving an estate worth $10,000 to his aged wife, and at her death to go to the Thomasville Orphanage.

A Kansas editor says that when the merchant of his town, and other fellows, want a little advertising or job work done, they go around and solicit bids for the same, and the lowest bidder gets the work. The editor is now ready to receive sealed bids for a sack of flour, a pair of pants, a hat and a cord of wood and the pulling of an aching tooth—also a pair of brogans for a six months old baby.—Exchange.

The Ladies Home Journal tells of a concert on board of an ocean steamship, at the close of which the saloon passengers attempted to sing "My Country, 'tis of Thee," the national air of America, and "God Save the Queen," the national air of England. There were two hundred and eightysix American passengers and twenty-four of English birth. Out of the large number of Americans there were not enough familiar with our national air to sing the words through the first stanza; but when the English air was struck up every single one of the twenty-four, men and women, knew the words and sang it through with delight. This is rather a sad comment on our American pride.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Wise and Otherwise.

If some people would laugh more their doctor bills would be less.—Ram's Horn.

"And now, little children," said the Sunday school superintendent "If you are good children, some day you may wear a golden crown." "Paw's got one on his tooth now" chirped the smallest and newest boy.—Indianapolis Journal.

When a girl tells a young man that she dreamed about him the night before it is past time for him to begin to be very careful.—Somerville Journal.

The more a young man notices how his girl's hair is done up the less he loves her.—Syracuse Post.

The average man thinks that his reputation as a kind father has been firmly established if the baby cries to come to him.—Atchison Globe.

"Well," remarked the wife of the man who has changed his mind about coming to Congress, "you have a clear conscience anyhow." "I know that," was the comfortless reply; "but a clear conscience isn't what I was running for."—Washington Star.

Judge Graham Creates a Stir at Wilson.

His Honor Judge Graham caused a sensation in court Wednesday. The regular jury was empaneled in the case of State vs. Neverson Williams, who was charged with selling liquor to minors. The judge told the jury that if they believed the witnesses "he is guilty. Retire and make up your verdict." The jury retired and on their return announced a verdict of not guilty, whereupon the judge discharged them for the term saying, "You are utterly incompetent to sit on a jury; sheriff, summon me a jury of men of good moral character." Sheriff Crowell replied, "I don't know that I could find a better jury." Mr. John E. Woodard said: "It is as good a jury as we can get in the county." The affair created a decided sensation, as it was by far over an average jury, and his honor has been severely criticised by our people.—Wilson Times.

Longevity in this State.

North Carolina enjoys the reputation of being a very healthful State, and one noted for the longevity of people. A striking illustration of this is furnished by the registration lists of the recent election, which showed 360,000 names.

The forthcoming Auditor's report shows that there are only 273,612 persons in the State subject to a poll tax, or only that many reported, of whom 171,915 are white and 65,697 are colored.

This gives 112,388 persons who have lived beyond the poll tax age, which is proof conclusive that the climate and good living in North Carolina are conducive to longevity, especially to the longevity of the colored brother, who shows up much more numerous on the registration lists than he does on the tax lists.—Wilmington Star.

The Banner County.

Johnston county is still the banner county of North Carolina's temporarily terrified Democracy. While the Democrats in other counties may be terrorized or terrified the Johnston quality is as game as of old.

Johnston has held the banner for the past four years and to the Democrats of Johnston is the honor four more years.

Johnston gave Cy Watson 1,600 majority, which is the largest given by any county to the Democracy's courageous standard bearer. Several other counties have disputed with Johnston the claim of being the banner county, but Hon. E. W. Pou informs us that Johnston leads all other counties and will keep the banner in her possession.—Raleigh Press-Visitor.

Unsafe Criticism.

It is not quite safe to criticize Americans in the "higher circles" of British society, unless the critic has studied thoroughly the pedigree of those whom he addresses, so many American girls nowadays are becoming a part of the "effete" aristocracy of the old world.

Not long ago at a reception given in Rome at the British embassy, an Italian baron, who was presented to the Duchess of Manchester, sighed deeply, as with relief, and said to her:

"Ah! How glad I am to get from those Americans there! We come across them everywhere, don't we, duchess? You can't imagine how happy I am to converse with you; there is such a contrast between the manners of English and American women!"

The duchess let him go on as long as he liked in this way, and then said, with a gracious smile:

"Perhaps you are right, baron, but being myself an American I am, no doubt, incapable of judging." The baron wished that the floor would swallow him up and reflected that he should have known, as every one else did, that the Duchess of Manchester was a New Yorker.—

THE GARDEN GATE.

The garden gate is broad and low,
And, swinging back, discloses
A wealth of bloom, a lower sweet,
A paradise of roses.

At morn upon my way to town
I linger there a minute,
To greet the mistress of this bower,
The fairest flower within it.

She pins a rose upon my coat,
"To make the town seem brighter,"
Her smiles, her kiss, her parting words
All make my toil seem lighter.

And when at dusk I leave the town,
With all its dust and noises,
My spirit, like an uncaged bird,
Mid country fragrance poises.

I sing along the budding lane
That leads where my true love waits,
Ah, there 'mongst the bloom of roses,
She's leaning upon the gates.

—Philadelphia Times

The Microscope.

The illumination of opaque objects for the microscope has, for high powers, been hitherto almost impossible. M. Ch. Fremont has described an extremely ingenious method of carrying out the desired end. Inside the body of the microscope is fixed a concave mirror, which reflects the bundle of rays of light received through an aperture in the side, and rendered parallel by an interposed prism, through an object glass, on to the object under examination. It is difficult, without seeing the contrivance, to understand how the eye, and at the eye piece end, can see the object. This is clearly provided for by the simple expedient of boring a hole through both mirror and prism in the track of the rays passing from the objective. From this device great service is anticipated in the chromo photographic study of the movement of microscopic beings.

Stage Realism.

One of my best friends in Plymouth was Benjamin Haydon. His son, the artist of celebrity, was at that time a spirited and intelligent little fellow about 10 years of age, who used to listen to my songs and laugh heartily at my jokes whenever I dined at his father's. One evening I was playing Sharp in "The Lying Valet" when he and my friend Benjamin were in the stage box, and on my repeating the words, "I have had nothing to eat since last Monday was a fortnight" little Haydon exclaimed in a tone audible to the whole house: "What a whopper! Why, you dined at my father's house this afternoon."—Bernard's "Retrospection of the Stage."

Rotten Row.

It is a royal prerogative, belonging exclusively to the reigning sovereigns, to drive down the middle of Rotten row, London. The queen has only availed herself once or twice of the right. From this ancient privilege came the name Rotten du Bois, whence the corruption "Rotten row."

Disguised.

A certain German professor of music to be met with in English drawing rooms is an entertaining old gentleman. To him recently a lady said, when one of his compositions had just been rendered by one of the guests:

"How did you like the rendering of your song, professor?"
"Was dot my song?" replied the professor. "I was not know him."—London Tit-Bits.

The Pronunciation.

There are so called cheap stores in Jersey. I happened to be in one of them. In the back part of the store I saw a tub stenciled "Butterine." I asked the clerk whether he pronounced the "ine" like the "ine" in "nine," or like the "een" in sixteen.
"Oh, no, we do not pronounce it at all," was the smart answer. "We call it butter."—Retail Grocers' Advocate.

Sure to Be True.

"You know, George," she was explaining, "I was brought up without any care."
"Marry me, my darling," said George, "and you shall have nothing but care."—Westchester Globe.

The first idea of method is a progressive transition from one step to another in any course. If in the right course, it will be the true method; if in the wrong, we can not hope to progress.—Coleridge.

Some chemists affirm that the ideal ink consists almost exclusively of gallate of iron and that the nearer the liquid approaches this substance the more perfect the ink.

Properly there is no other knowledge but that which is got by working. The rest is all yet a hypothesis of knowledge, a thing to be argued of in schools, a thing floating in the clouds, in endless logic vortices, till we try to fix it.—Carlyle.

THE FIRST PSALM IN SCOTCH.

Blest is the man that ta's nae stock In what the godless say; Wha wadna trock wi' sinfu' folk Nor walk within their way; Wha sits na in the big, bow chair The scornfu' like to fill, But mak's his care eye mair and mair To work the Maister's will; Wha never times it frae his sight At home or far awa, But in daylight an in midnight Keeps thinkin on God's law.

That man shall flourish like the tree That grows beside a burn; Whaur fruit we see eye hingin free As simmer days return; Whase sma'est leaf shall ne'er be lost Tho' ither trees hae mair; An blithe may boast thro' sun an frost A glossy robe o' green. That man may gang to sell or buy An still good luck comman; Ye may rely whate'er he try Shall prosper in his han.

But wae the men that hellwards lean, Wi' satan's rule conform; They'll stouter roun till they gang doon Like stooks afore the storm; Nor will ae rascal be allo'd In paradise to dwell; For God hath voo'd nane but the good Shall sit beside himsel'.

The Most Crowded Spot on Earth.

The most crowded spot on the earth's surface is that portion of the city of Valetta, island of Malta, known as the "Manderaggio." In the whole of Valetta the proportion is 75,000 human beings to the square mile, but in the Manderaggio there is one locality in which there are 2,574 persons living on a plot of ground less than two acres and a half in extent. This would give no less than 636,000 persons to the square mile, or 1,017.6 to the acre. In Liverpool, the most crowded city in Britain, the most densely populated portions have only 116.4 to the acre.—St. Louis Republic.

A Ready Answer.

The editor of the Public Men of Today Series when a little boy at Uppingham was detected at a Greek Testament lesson with a Bible on his knee, from which, of course, he was cribbing. His class master stalked up to him. "What have you there, my boy?" The boy, seeing that no escape was possible, brazened it out with, "A book, sir, of which no one need be ashamed."

A Shrewd Fruit Dealer.

An ingenious device for attracting custom was that of a fruiterer in a midland town. Instead of ordinary plate glass a large number of rough magnifying glasses formed the window. Seen through one of these panes, an orange looked as large as a pumpkin, and cherries as large as apples. A great disadvantage attaching to this novelty was the fact that at the distance of a few yards from the window it was quite impossible to see into the shop. Everybody knows that you must hold a magnifying glass very close to the eyes to see anything through it. Nevertheless, for some time, at all events, the enterprising shopkeeper did a splendid trade.—Liverpool Mercury.

Boston's Famed Brown Bread.

For one large loaf of bread use three pints of sifted cornmeal, three pints of rye flour, one cup of good hop yeast and one cup of molasses. Mix very soft with warm water, pour the mixture into a round pudding tin and allow it to stand until light. Bake with a steady fire for three hours.—Ladies' Home Journal

An Unfortunate Little Girl.

Dear Mr. Editor—I have written a novel in 3 volumes, and if you will take great care of it and not let it get dirty, you may read it. As it is a sycological (sic) novel, and I have taken great pains with it I think you ought to pay me something large for it—perhaps 5 pounds. I want a new frock, and the money would be nice. I have tried before to write, but the world is dreadfully unkind to me, and indeed I have sometimes suspected that there is a conspiracy against me. But I thought, Mr. Editor, that you would be fair. My life has been of no use up to now, and I am 15; so, dear Mr. Editor, please write soon to your little friend.—Good Words.

Asbestos.

As asbestos comes from the mine it is of a greenish hue, and the edges are frayed with loose fibers. The more nearly white asbestos is the better its grade. The length of fiber is also of great importance, the longest being the most valuable. From the mines the asbestos is taken to the manufactories in the United States.

In a Dream.

In Lough Erie, near Carrick-on-Shannon, Ireland, an ancient black oak canoe, without nail or rivet, was lately discovered in a strange way. A Mr. Mulligan dreamed that he saw a canoe at the bottom of the lake. The lake was dragged and the canoe found.

Thomas Carlyle on Justice and Success.

In this God's world, with its wild whirling eddies and mad foam oceans, where men and nations perish as if without laws and judgment for an unjust thing is sternly delayed, dost thou think that there is therefore no justice? It is what the fool hath said in his heart. It is what the wise in all times were wise because they denied and knew forever not to be. I tell you again there is nothing else but justice. One strong thing I find here below—the just thing, the true thing. My friend, if thou hadst all the artillery of Woolwich trundling at thy back in support of an unjust thing and infinite bonfires visibly waiting ahead of thee to blaze centuries long for thy victory on behalf of it, I would advise thee to call halt, to fling down thy baton and say in God's name, "No!"

Thy "success?" Poor devil, what will this success amount to? If the thing is unjust, thou hast not succeeded. No, not though bonfires blazed from north to south, and bells rang, and editors wrote leading articles, and the just thing lay trampled out of sight to all mortal eyes an abolished and annihilated thing. Success? In a few years thou wilt be dead and dark—all cold, eyeless, deaf, no blaze of bonfires, dingdong of bells, visible or audible to thee again at all forever. What kind of success is that?—Thomas Carlyle, "Past and Present."

A Trying Moment.

Justice—Call the next case, bailiff. Bailiff—The next case, yer honor, is a case o' liquor.

Justice—Let the case be opened, an if it ain't any better than the liquor we've been havin roun' here I'll fine the whole business for contempt o' court an adjourn till Sunday.—Atlanta Constitution.

In human life there is constant change of fortune, and it is unreasonable to expect an exemption from the common fate. Life itself decays, and all things are daily changing.
