Thanksgiving Proclamation by the Governor.

The observance of one day in the year as an occasion of "solemn and public thank giving to Almighty God for past blessings and of supplication for His continued kindness and care over us as a State and nation" is a beautiful and time-honored custom of a Christian people and should be perpetuated among us and observed in a dignified and religious manner.

The people of North Carolina have much for which to be thankful to the "Giver of every good and perfect gift." Although the past year has not brought so great prosperity or the land yielded so abundantly, still our people have enjoyed a proportionate measure of these blessings and have escaped the dire calamities which have befallen some less favored commonwealths.

Therefore, in accordance with the laws of this State, I, Elias Carr, Governor of the State of North Carolina, do hereby designate and appoint Thursday, the 26th day of November, 1896, as a day to be set apart by our people for public thanksgiving to God for the many blessings vouchsafed to us. To this end let our people assemble in their usual places of worship or around their firesides and give thanks in prayer and praise.

On that day let us remember in our prayers and with substantial offerings, the poor and needy, the widow and orphan, the noble charitable institutions of the State and the disabled soldier who more than ever needs, in his declining years, the strong arm of the State and the assistance of her patriotic citizens to protect him from want.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State of North Carolina to be affixed. Done at Raleigh, this 12th day of November, in the year of Our Lord one thousand, eight hundred and ninety six, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundredth and twenty-first.

ELIAS CARR.

By the Governor:

S. F. TALFAIR,
Private Sec'y.

The lithograph title page will contain a bird's-eye view of the exposition grounds, and at the top of each page of music will be an original design of one of the buildings. The North Carolina Baptist Association, with only two dissenting votes, has reaffirmed its opposition to State aid to higher education, for the reason that the people are inadequately provided with public schools for their children. Such a protest is in the nature of a higher education in common sense and honesty for legislators everywhere. Expenditure of State funds for the finishing schools while the primary schools are unprovided for is an injustice and a piece of folly. It is Budensieck building, and can only end in a collapse.—Philadelphia Record.

Social Ostracism.

Rev. Charles C. Baldwin is an honest and industrious colored man who formerly lived in Chatham county, but is now a resident of Raleigh.

Correcting Children.

The parents who beat their child for his faults, without explaining to him why what he did was wrong, usually do him more harm than good.

It generally brings out the suliness, the cruelty, the vindictiveness, the malice, the hatred of the boy who has to suffer it.

But not by angry scolding or loud and passionate invective can they instruct their son, but by patient explanation, quiet reasoning, tender appeals to his better nature, and by prayerful desire to show him what is true and beautiful, can they succeed

ALL SORTS.

The society man is primping up.

Woman is a delusion, and every man is prone to hug a delusion.

The cyclist with a hump on his back is evidently bent on getting there.

Early rising isn't what it is cracked up to be. In fact, it's often a frost.

It is not at all to a man's credit when he overdraws his bank account.

The young man with a strong face shouldn't mind a few falls from a bicycle.

"I'll make you suffer for this," exclaimed the little brown jug to the man who was punishing it.

Spain's Awful Deathtrap.

English sympathy with Spain in her efforts to retain some of her historical power must be weakened by the tale of horrible cruelties in the Philippines.

Large Cargoes of Cotton.

The Wilmington Messenger says that a few days ago the British steamship Ormidale cleared from Wilmington with 11,739 bales of cotton, which was the largest cargo ever shipped from that port.

How the Darkey Prayed.

Governor Vance said he owned an old darkey named John. One morning the governor was in the back yard doing a little swearing, and old John reproved him saying: "Mars Zeb, it hurts dis ole darkey powerful bad to hear his young marster cussin' dat way, an' I prays for you ebery night, too."

Vance said to him: "Uncle John, do you pray for me by name?"

John replied: "No, Mars Zeb; I jes tumps you in wid de balance of de sinners."—Morganton Herald.

Gospel!

The talk about free silver enabling some men to pay their debts is all moonshine. We know a few who are in no haste when firewood will be accepted as currency, and they would still likely be slow in payments if rocks were converted into dollars.

Senator Butler tells Senator Pritchard, in reply to a question, that he is against him for re-election, and gives the reasons why.

When William Hunts. When the German emperor goes hunting he arrays himself in such gorgeousness that the game ought to be proud to fall before so magnificent a conqueror.

THE "CUNGER BAG."

How the Negroes of the South Protect Themselves.

One of the most remarkable mysteries connected with the life of the southern negro, especially those of Georgia and Florida, is the wonderful and abiding faith they have in the power of the "cunger bag."

"Cunger bags" are of two kinds. The one made of yellow flannel is to ward off evil spirits, the other of red flannel is supposed to insure good luck, or bring to pass some cherished desire of the owner.

The doctor hears the visitor's story, and, after deciding what the remedy shall be, selects a small bag of the proper tint of red or yellow, and puts into it something like the following:

A piece of hair or whiskers; some earth that the right or left foot has trod at the hour of midnight at a certain designated spot; a relic of a dead friend; a clipping of the applicant's finger or toe nail; a piece of money from the person, or belonging indirectly to the candidate, which must be soaked so many hours in vinegar, alcohol or whisky; a few watermelon seeds; a little gunpowder, perhaps, or maybe a pinch of snuff or a piece of "Little David root" will do the business.

Among other things that an applicant is told to do is to place a piece of this root in his or her mouth. It is almost immediately dissolved into a kind of soft paste, and when pressed between the palms the future can be as easily foretold as if read from so many pages of typewritten manuscript.

There is now living in a suburb of Atlanta, Ga., a fine, fat negress, weighing 250 pounds or more, who has the reputation of being the most successful voodoo doctor in these parts.

Among other things her supply of "cungers" is unlimited, and these are sold to visitors (unbelievers included) at an average rate of 50 cents each.

Deaf Mutes' Ideas.

The testimony of educated deaf mutes regarding some of their ideas before instruction is very interesting. Some fancied the wind was blown from the mouth of an unseen being.

When William Hunts.

When the German emperor goes hunting he arrays himself in such gorgeousness that the game ought to be proud to fall before so magnificent a conqueror.

WOMAN AS A MAHOUT.

The Views of One of the Drivers of Elephants.

She can do her best work in the world by turning her own talents to account to smooth the path of a man whom she can sway and who has all the possibilities before him.

It is therefore because woman is essentially a looker-on that she is so invaluable as an adviser to man. To many a great man the advice of an Egeria, even an Egeria of an obviously inferior intellectual caliber to himself, is almost essential.

VARIABLE WEATHER MALIGNED.

Physical Ailments Not Caused by Eccentricities in Temperature.

According to the best medical authorities changeable weather, or what is known as "unreasonable," is not so bad in its effects as generally supposed. It applies to summer, but especially to winter. "Whenever the temperature during any of the winter months rises to an endurable height, and it is possible for one to go out of doors without acute suffering, we always hear prognostications of sickness and death which are sure to result from a green Christmas and an open winter. But the truth is it is the 'good, old-fashioned winter,' the 'seasonable temperature,' that kills. The incorrectness of the popular idea is well shown by the vital statistics for the first quarters of 1895 and 1896 in England and Wales, which we find summarized in the British Medical Journal of May 16. These two periods of time formed a great contrast in so far as the general temperature of the air was concerned. In the former year the mean temperature of three months was 35.2 degrees Fahrenheit, which was 3.7 degrees Fahrenheit below the average, while in February it was no less than 9.9 degrees Fahrenheit below the mean of that month. In 1896 the temperature of the three months was 42.3 degrees Fahrenheit, or 3.4 degrees Fahrenheit above the average. The public health fully reflected those noteworthy differences in temperature. In 1895 the deaths in the first quarter amounted to 170,501 and the death rate was 22.8, or 1.1 above the average. In 1896 the deaths in the corresponding period numbered 130,895, and were in the proportion of 17 deaths annually per 1,000 persons living, which rate was 2.9 below the average. The increased mortality in 1895 was chiefly among persons aged 40 years and upward, of whom 60,457 died, giving a death rate among such persons of 10.90, or 15.4 in excess of the mean. In 1896 32,298 persons aged 40 and upward died in January, February and March, and the death rate was 6.1, or no less than 20.2 below the average. The statistics furnish the true evidence of the killing power of frost and of the beneficent influence of a mild temperature. But popular beliefs are not to be overthrown by statistics, and if we are blessed next winter by a mild temperature and absence of snow there will be plenty of physicians whose surprise will be equalled only by their disappointment that there is not more for them to do."—Medical Record.
