Contented and Happy.

The easy contentment of the old-time country press is thus happily described by the editor of the Lawrenceville, Pa., Herald, who says:

"This paper will soon be sixteen years old. It is fairly prosperous as country papers go. The editor has been living on a minimum down to a science, the devil has long ago solved the problem of living without either food or raiment, while the business manager has joined the church and is so sure of his future that he doesn't care whether he lives at all.

"We've come out on our old hand press week after week without money and without price. We print a good newsy paper, hold our old subscribers and get a new one occasionally. We are happy and contented. We may not have much to live for, but, owing to the uncertainty of the future, we have nothing whatever to die for. We believe that our cheerfulness is reflected in the columns of our paper. If you want to participate in this carnival of cheerfulness we are now having it will only cost you a dollar a year. Just think of it; fifty cheerfulnesses for a dollar—joy is frightfully cheap these hard times."

Stockholders Meeting.

A stockholders meeting of the Wilmington and Weldon R. R. Company which was held in Wilmington yesterday, Mr. Warren G. Elliott was re-elected president, Mr. H. Walters, vice president and Mr. James L. Post, Jr., secretary and treasury. The following officers were re-elected.

Mr. Jno. R. Kenley, General Manager; Mr. T. M. Emerson, Traffic Manager; Mr. Jno. F. Divine, General Superintendent; Mr. W. A. Riach, General Auditor.

The report of the General Manager shows that the road with its branches and equipment is in excellent condition. Its net receipts for the year are $735,898.52, an increase of $82,466.93 as compared with the net receipts of the previous year. Many new buildings for stations and depots were erected and large expenditure was made for steel rails; the entire length of the main line between Weldon and its connection with the Florence railroad is now, with the exception of a mile at Weldon and part of a mile at Rocky Point, laid with 70-pound steel rail—Rocky Mount Argonaut.

Thanksgiving Services.

On Thanksgiving Day services will be held in the different churches. At the Methodist church Rev. N. H. D. Wilson will hold services at 10 o'clock, an hour earlier than the usual morning service. The collection will be for Oxford Orphan Asylum.

At the Baptist church Rev. E. D. Wells will hold services at 11 o'clock. Collection for the Thomasville Orphanage.

At the Episcopal church services will be conducted by Maj. H. Harding at 11 o'clock. Collection for the Thompson Orphanage.

Our people should be mindful of the many blessings they have enjoyed during the year and render thanks to Almighty God therefor. Attend service that day and remember the orphans liberally. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

People owing town taxes should read the notice of E. M. McGowan, town Tax Collector.

The difference between printing and publishing was aptly defined by a young lady who said to her lover: "You may print a kiss on my cheek but you must not publish it." With that he locked the fair form in his arms and went to press.

If You Wish to Help Your Town.

Don't make your money out of its citizens and spend it somewhere else.

Don't frown on every public improvement simply because it will cost you a dollar or two.

Don't sneer at the efforts of your fellow citizens to help build up the town, but lend a hand yourself.

Don't talk a great deal about what should be done and remain on the back seat waiting for some one else to do it.

Don't say a board of trade is "no good on earth" until you can prove it by statistics.

Don't say public schools are a failure because your boy has been upsetting the school's discipline and has been severely punished for it.

Don't let a good local paper that is the town's untiring champion abandon the champion business because of lack of deserving patronage.—Ex.

Must Take The Right of The Road.

A man driving a horse on the streets of Indianapolis the other day refused to take the right side of the road in meeting a bicyclist. The result was a collision, in which the bicyclist came off second best and was seriously injured. Judge Cox, before whom the case came for trial, held that the driver was in the wrong and that in not taking the right side of the road he was guilty of intent to commit assault and battery. The decision is of importance in view of the fact that drivers of vehicles are disinclined to observe the law of the road, so far as bicyclist are concerned, and as the wheel has come into common use it is necessary that the rider be protected by the law.

A small door key, folding, has been found and left at REFLECTOR office for owner.

Turkeys are selling at 5 cents a pound. At that price they are cheaper than chicken.

The usual Thanksgiving hunts are in preparation. It is not the best way to observe the day, however.

Some of the boys request us to say they will have another circus in Dr. James' yard on Thanksgiving Day, admission 5 cents. One ticket admits to side show, menagerie and main ring. Street parade thrown in free for good measure.

Some of the weather wise say it is going to snow, but Mr. Allen Warren says it will be fair tonight with a big frost in the morning.

You can't tell just what will come out of this weather, but it would not be bad policy to see that your wood house or coal bin are supplied.

The late A. T. Stewart said: "If you have two bushels of potatoes to sell, spend the price of one bushel advertising the other." This advice is not adapted to narrow-gauge men, who expect to sell four bushels from a peck's worth of advertising.

Senator Marion Butler, of North Carolina, who knows so well how to run the finances of the government, seems to be unable to manage the financial affairs of a weekly newspaper.—Richmond Times.

Is our esteemed contemporary so guileless as to think that it is a difficult job to run the United States government? There is not a Populist statesman in the pine woods of North Carolina who cannot give the Times valuable information on the subject. Congressman Martin, of this district, says that any ten-year-old boy of average intelligence can master the financial question in ten minutes. And that's about half of the business of government. It is much easier to run the government than a weekly newspaper.—Charlotte Observer.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 23RD, 1896.

The Rotation of Parties.

Attention has been directed to the curious fact that for twenty-four years the people of the United States have chosen their Chief Executive alternately from the two parties. In 1872 Grant, Republican, was elected; in 1876 Tilden, Democrat, (though counted out); in 1880 Garfield, Republican; in 1884 Cleveland, Democrat; in 1888 Harrison, Republican; in 1892 Cleveland, Democrat; in 1896 McKinley, Republican.

This shows several things. It shows that the people do just as they think best and that they do their own thinking, and when, they change their minds, or are dissatisfied with the existing order of things or a proposed change, they say so peacefully at the polls and there is an end of it. The two parties have opposite policies upon several vital questions, and yet the change from one party to the other has never produced any violent upheaval or lasting social disturbance. The wheels of the republic continue to revolve and things go on pretty much as usual.

The facility with which the policy of the government is changed from time to time by the change of the party in power also goes to illustrate the strength of our government and the permanence of our republican institutions. In many so called republics a change of administration means war. The old administration it may be, refuses to accept the result and give up, or the defeated candidate charges fraud and there is a resort to arms to decide the matter.

Here in the United States a change of parties by the people is the occasion usually of nothing more dangerous than a torchlight procession.—Baltimore Sun.

"The Old Guard dies but never surrenders." Disfigured, but not dismayed, defeated, but not discouraged, with our battle lines broken but not routed, with the old Democratic banner still floating in the breeze, we fling defiance at the victors, and serve notice upon them that we will "meet them at Philippi" four years hence. The Democratic party is indestructible, because its principles are founded upon truth and right, and they must and will prevail, and the matchless leader we have will yet lead us to victory.—Exchange.

She feared to make the avowal. "Edwin," she faltered, when she could no longer postpone the inevitable, "my father has failed in business."

He shivered. "Alas!" he sighed. "Now that you are become rich I suppose our fond dream of love is at an end.—Detroit Tribune.

The Next House.

Notwithstanding the defeat of the Democratic party in the recent Presidential contest, there is still some measure of victory in the fact that several congressional districts have been redeemed, and that the Republican majority in the next House will be considerably reduced.

So far as the returns from the various States have been officially counted the Democrats have made the following gains: California, 1; Colorado, 2; Delaware, 1; Idaho, 1; Indiana, 3; Illinois, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Michigan, 1; Missouri, 6; Nebraska, 3; Ohio, 4; Pennsylvania, 1; Tennessee, 2; Utah, 1, and Washington, 1, making a total of thirty Democratic members gained. The Republicans have made gain in only four States—New York, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maryland, 3; and Virginia, 1—making a total of six. The Populist gains have been as follows: California, 2; Illinois, 2; Indiana, 1; Kansas, 4; Michigan, 1; Missouri, 1; Montana, 1; North Carolina, 3; and Washington, 1, making a total of sixteen. With these changes the next House will be divided as follows:

| States. | Rep. | Dem. | Pop. |
|----------------|------|------|------|
| Alabama | 0 | 8 | 1 |
| Arkansas | 0 | 6 | 0 |
| California | 3 | 2 | 2 |
| Colorado | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| Connecticut | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| Delaware | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Florida | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| Georgia | 0 | 11 | 0 |
| Idaho | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Illinois | 17 | 3 | 2 |
| Indiana | 9 | 3 | 1 |
| Iowa | 11 | 9 | 0 |
| Kentucky | 4 | 7 | 0 |
| Louisiana | 1 | 5 | 0 |
| Maine | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| Maryland | 6 | 0 | 0 |
| Massachusetts | 12 | 1 | 0 |
| Michigan | 10 | 1 | 1 |
| Minnesota | 7 | 0 | 0 |
| Mississippi | 0 | 7 | 0 |
| Missouri | 3 | 11 | 1 |
| Montana | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| Nebraska | 2 | 4 | 0 |
| Nevado | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| New Hampshire | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| New Jersey | 8 | 0 | 0 |
| New York | 29 | 5 | 0 |
| North Carolina | 3 | 1 | 5 |
| North Dakota | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Ohio | 15 | 6 | 0 |
| Oregon | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| Pennsylvania | 27 | 3 | 0 |
| Rhode Island | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| South Carolina | 0 | 7 | 0 |
| Tennessee | 2 | 8 | 0 |
| Texas | 1 | 12 | 0 |
| Utah | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Vermont | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| Virginia | 2 | 8 | 0 |
| South Dakota | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| Washington | 0 | 1 | 1 |
| West Virginia | 4 | 0 | 0 |
| Wisconsin | 10 | 0 | 0 |
| Wyoming | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Arizona | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| New Mexico | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| Oklahoma | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Totals | 207 | 130 | 22 |

In consideration of the fact that only six gains were scored by the Republicans in the recent congressional election against a total of forty-six made by the Democrats and Populists combined it is evident that the loss of the Republican party in Congress has been considerable, and that much of the ground which the Democrats lost in the heavy reversal of 1892 has been regained.—Atlanta Constitution.

STRANGE SHIP STORIES.

Odd Occurrences Related by Old Sailors.

Painful Afflictions and Deaths Brought About Among Searfaring Men in Mysterious Manner.

While a reporter was talking with some idle tugboat men who were sitting on the stringpiece of a South street pier, where tugs lie while awaiting orders, the conversation turned on "strange, true stories of sailors' adventures, and the reporter asked the men to relate each the most remarkable story that he knew to be true. The first one said:

"When I was working in Philadelphia, several years ago, the Italian brig Leonore came in at the capes, after a passage of 54 days from Lisbon. We got the tow and the mate passed us his hawser. I took a couple of turns with it and sung out to him to make fast. At that a couple of men started to do so, but they had only got one turn around the windlass when one of them dropped and grasped his arm as if he was going to scratch himself. But the moment he did this he gave a yell, and then the other man began to scratch his leg and yell, while the mate reached for the back of his own neck and howled as bad as both the others together. Then the man at the wheel seemed to catch the infection from forward, for he dropped on the deck, leaving the brig to steer herself; but what astonished us still more was that the captain, a portly, solemn-looking man, deliberately put his glasses down on the top of the cabin, clasped his hands across his stomach, leaned over the rail and groaned as if he were dying.

"It looked as we'd a crew of crazy Dagoes in tow and no mistake, but after a minute they all got quiet again, and then we learned the trouble. They had sailed out of Lisbon with provisions for 40 days. When only a few days out seawashed the deck cask of water overboard, and they were necessarily put on an allowance of water. Thereafter they had hard luck in winds, and eventually had to work on short rations. The result of it all was that some kind of rash broke out on every soul of them, and it was a rash that itched beyond endurance, and yet made them so sore that when they tried to relieve the itching they hurt themselves so that they could not help yelling. They had been suffering that way for a couple of weeks when they passed us that line."

"You would think that a ship was about the best place in the world for pure air, wouldn't you?" asked another. "Well, I was shipmate with two men who were suffocated in their bunks for want of pure air. It was on the British steamer Deerhound at anchor off Locust Point, Baltimore. Chief Engineer William Kirkley, Second Engineer John Hull, Third Engineer George Quinton and Dick Weber, a boy, all turned into their bunks in the engineer's cabin one frosty night for an all-night sleep. Next morning when the steward came to call the boy he found Mr. Kirkley lying face down on the floor, with his head near the door, and unconscious. The rest were in their bunks. The boy was dead and the rest were supposed to be; but when they were carried out on deck Kirkley and Quinton revived, while Hull, whose heart was still beating, died. They had been suffocated by gas from a leaking coal stove."

"We towed the Norwegian bark Donna Zoyca into the Erie basin one day," said a third, "and when we got her there we had to call on the 'longshoremen to help make her fast, because there was not one man on board of her fit for duty. The ambulances carried them—ten in all—to the hospital, where one soon died, but the rest got well. She'd sailed with that crew to Cadiz, and there she got a cargo for Rio Janiero. On the way the captain and ten men took sick and at Rio they were sent to the hospital, where the captain got better and returned on board. Then the vessel went to Aracaci, where the captain had to be left in the hospital and the mate, with the cook and eight men, undertook bringing her to New York. During the whole voyage no one had known what ailed the men, but the health authorities over in Brooklyn found they had all been poisoned by white lead used in painting a water tank."

"I was working in Milwaukee one summer," said a fourth, "when the captain sent me around to the hospital to inquire after a friend of his who was there. As I reached the door a couple of grain trimmers that I knew were just lifting a man out of a grocer's wagon. They carried him into the hospital and said he had been landed from the fishing tug Belle and she had steamed out of the harbor as soon as he was clear of her rail. The man seemed to be dead at first, and he was almost. For two weeks he was delirious with brain fever and spent most of his time cursing somebody for leaving him to drown."

"He had been a sailor on a schooner that left Milwaukee for Chicago two nights before I was sent to the hospital. It was a rough night and a wave washed him overboard. He would have drowned quickly, but a mate had been quick witted enough to heave over a pine fender as he saw the man go over the rail. The fender was washed with in the reach of the man, and he had taken his belt and made himself fast to the log so that his head was sure to be kept above water. He floated about all night and the next day. He saw a number of vessels, but was unable to attract the attention of anyone. As night came he thought he was dying and gave up all hope, and the next he knew was when he came to in the hospital. He had been picked up by the fishing tug about 36 hours after he was washed overboard. He had floated unconscious for about 14 hours."—N. Y. Sun.

AN INVOLUNTARY HERO.

Two Pieces of Hot Ham Won an Officer's Promotion.

A Polish officer, now dead, who came to the United States soon after the Russians suppressed the Polish insurrection under Gen. Chlopicki, in 1831, used to tell with much zest the story of his promotion from the ranks. He was a private of cavalry when Chlopicki's retreat began. The troops had made a weary night march, and were in bivouac for breakfast when scouts brought word that they were almost surrounded by a Russian force. Instantly the Poles hurried to their saddles, mounted and sought a way of escape.

The young cavalryman had been boiling some pieces of ham for himself in a camp kettle. Anxious to "save his bacon," he dumped the half-boiled meat into his saddle bags and joined his companions. Two minutes later his horse became restive, at a most inopportune moment, for on surmounting a ridge the Poles had found themselves confronted by a Russian force of infantry.

There was but one thing to be done. The Russian line must be broken through at once. It was being rapidly reinforced. If the Poles should fail to cut their way out at the first charge they must be all captured.

On they rushed at the order to charge, and now our young trooper's horse had become fairly frantic and quite uncontrollable. He sprang away far in advance of the charging line. The rider, determining to make the best fight he could, swung his saber, took a stronger grip with his knees and gazed hard at the face of the Russian he expected to be launched against.

Just then a volley hurled into the charging line, but the foremost horse and rider escaped unharmed. A few moments and they were upon the enemy. Usually a horse refuses to leap at bayonets, but this one jumped furiously at the kneeling front rank, and such was the momentum and fury of the beast that the Russians just in his front lost their nerve, broke and gave him entrance.

Through the gap thus made other Poles sprang a moment later. Striking right and left, they widened the breach, and in ten seconds the Russian infantry was demoralized. The Poles escaped with slight loss, and it was not long before their young leader quitted his steed, dismounted and found a chance to examine his half-cooled ham.

A few hours later the Polish general of cavalry rode up to the captain of the troop that had so distinguished itself, complimented him and said: "By the way, captain, who was that splendid young officer who led you all in?"

"He wasn't an officer; that was only one of my boys."

"Not an officer! May the bullets strike me if I don't make him one! Call him out here at once."

The general shook hands with the youth, promoted him to the lieutenantcy then and there and gave him a place on his staff.

Some days later, when the captain called at headquarters, he sought out the new lieutenant, whom he found dolefully contemplating his unsaddled horse, which had a huge, raw sore on each side.

"What on earth is the matter with your horse?" asked the captain.

"Oh, nothing much!"

"But what made these terrible sores?"

"The same thing that made me a lieutenant," said the hero. "A big chunk of hot ham in each saddle bag; but for the love of the saints, don't tell the general or the boys."—Youth's Companion.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—The oldest national flag in the world is that of Denmark, which has been in use since the year 1219.

—Among the earliest specimens of alphabetical writing are the inscriptions given on the monument of King Eshmunnezer, which rival in importance the Moabitic inscription of King Mesha.

—The oldest Jewish alphabet is supposed by some scholars to have been an adaptation of the Egyptian ideographs. Its earliest use in a monument is supposed to be the Siloam inscription at Jerusalem.

—Astronomers calculate that the surface of the earth contains 31,625,625 square miles, of which 23,814,121 are water and 7,811,504 are land, the water thus covering about seven-tenths of the earth's surface.

—Size for size, a thread of spider silk is decidedly tougher than a bar of steel. An ordinary thread will bear a weight of three grains. This is just about 50 per cent. stronger than a steel thread of the same thickness.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS

Monthly Illustrated

AN INTERNATIONAL

Edited by ALBERT SHAW

"If only one magazine can be taken, we would suggest the REVIEW OF REVIEWS, as covering more ground than any other magazine."—Board of Library Commissioners of New Hampshire, 1896.

THIS magazine is, in its contributed and departmental features, what its readers, who include the most noted names of the English-speaking world, are pleased to call "absolutely up to date," "thoroughly abreast of the times," "invaluable," and "indispensable." It is profusely illustrated with timely portraits, views, and cartoons. Its original articles are of immediate interest, by the best authorities on their respective subjects. The Editor's "Progress of the World" gives a clear, rightly proportioned view of the history of the human race during the current month. The "Leading Articles of the Month" present the important parts of the best magazine articles that have been written in every part of the world. The newest and most important books are carefully reviewed. Indexes, chronological records, and other departments complete the certainty that the reader of the Review or Reviews will miss nothing of great significance that is said or written or done throughout the world.
