Some who were not present at the Chanksgiving Service at the Methodist church, will doubtless desire to contribute to the Masonic Orphanage, at Oxford, N. C. They can do so by handing the money to me, or to Mr. Jarvis Harding at the post-office, any day befere Dec. 8th. N. H. D. WILSON.

Walking Money.

We heard a man say that one day last week he found a nickle tied up in a handkerchief walking up from the wharf, and on Sunday he found a cent going home from church. We didn't know meney had got to walking around like that. The cent in question ought to have got in the contribution plate instead of walking away from church after the service was over, then it would not have been caught loafing on the street and pulled in.

Make Way For Ramsey.

Mr. J. L. Ramsey, the editor of the Progressive Farmer, has announced himself a cardidate for the United States Senate to succeed the Rt. Hon. Jeter Constant Pritchard, a former printer's devil. We are for Ramsey. We are for him hard. We never heard of anybody else who is for him, but that cuts no figure with us. We have a soft feeling for any man who has ever been tinkering around a print shop, and it Jeter, who once carried water and pied type for a country weekly must step down, we, at leaast, would like to see him succeeded by some other fellow who has smelt ink, even though he did nothing more than write the wholly foolish editorials of the esteemed Farmer.

But Ramsey has other points in his favor, which just at this time are weighty. He belongs to the opposition. He was born on the opposite side. It doesn't make a bit of difference what it is, Ramsey is agin it. He stream. When he was born the signs were all in the heel and Ramsey can't help kicking. On the natal day the heavenly bodies were not singing together, their mus ic was a monstrous discord. The star of Ramsey's nativity is the lost pleiad, which shoots about alone, and has nothing to do with the other six. Even so does Ramsey stand in isolated but fitful grandeur from his companions. Cynical old ...lex. Pope said: "Whatever is is right." Ramsey says "whatever is is dead wrong." To him the earth is flat, the sun moves and lack is white. Ramsey wants free silver, but he won't have it unless Saturday J. R. Rucker aid not own it comes by his route. He is for the agreed with anybody in his life.

Let it be Ramsey. The Senate needs a good, all-round opposition. Ramsey is the man. He would rip sentorial dignity up the back and run senatorial courtesy down at the heel .-Monroe Journal.

FAKIRS AND THE FAKED.

It is strange, but true, that hundreds of people in an enligetened age and country can be taken in daily by fakirs. It is always safe to follow the road of truth and when you turn from that road you are apt to be caught in a trap. The saying that the best is always cheapest is well worth remembering. This is a day of cheap things. On the corners of our streets stands the licensed physicians ready and willing to give you good service if you are sick. While he stands there and waits for a call he sees in the streets of the city a crowd around the fakir. The fakir has his oily It has been stated on authority tongue and great diarrhoea of that out of 100,000 children who words to convince the able bodied received kindergarten education man that he needs a tonic in the in one of our largest cities many shape of some pleasant liquid or some small palatable pill; to the rested, and that he was dischargweak man or weak woman he can administer drugs that will be pleasant to take and certain to cure, for the small sum of 25 the time can go on a mission of the world. The papers in a town may write and advise, the preach exhort the people to beware of security to society. the fakir, but the fakir still comes and goes enriched by the money of the innocent. The skilled phy sician with his superior training and years of experience cuts no figure when the fakir comes around. That is the curse that pervades our country. Beware of the fakir. Your friends are the ones to stand by and they will not fake you. It you need a doctor call on a man who is trained and skilled. Call on the man who has come among you to make a living for himself and to be of service to you. Don't spend your money on stuff that you know nothing of. If we were all doctors by hard study and investigation then we could purchase the "pain killers" found on the streets. But we are not. Everybody cannot be skilled in the art of administering medicines, that is left to the learned men and women who are devoting their lives to the study of the human body and its needs. So the best thing for any man or woman to do, who feels the need of medicine is to go to a physician that is known personally or by reputation. You will gain by that process where you lose by patronizing a fakir. This applies not only to medical fakirs, but it should apply in wished to buy a farm, a horse, a see? The man for him to see take a little energy to move along be plead in bar of recovery. would be a first class farmer in to more safe and comfortable This 24th day of October 1896.

the section where he wished to purchase the land, etc. It would be a piece of superb folly for him to go to some little merchant who never lived in the country. So it is about a suit of clothes. Go to the fakir and get a cheap suit and you will suffer from the mistake, Go to the merchant that you know is honest and buy the suit at as low a price as he cap sell it and if it does not come up to expectation the merchant will make it good.

There has gotten to be a great deal of selling below cost and the like. Sometimes men wishing to go out of business do sell below cost. When a man makes a habit of buying bankrupt goods at low figures he can sell goods below the original cost, but to see a man selling out below cost every now and then, he is a bad man to buy from. The thing to do is to trust your merchant. Stand by him through thick and thin. If he bites you he will make it good. Don't try every new thing that you see and desert your former friends. Honest goods bought with honest money, from honest merchants by honest customers is always the best. Keep your eye open and watch the sellingout stores. Don't buy goods from a store that is selling out, just because "it is selling out;" you may get bit. Stand by your friends and they will stand by you.—Charlotte Democrat.

Results of the Kindergarten.

The results of kindergarten education in the older kindergartens in this country have been noble harvests from good seed. years ago, only one has been ared. This is the education of the whole mass that educates.

Any one who has means and cents. So it goes, the money humanity in this way. It offers flows easy and the fakir's mind an open door where the need is runs loose; all in a day. The the greatest, and the influence the medicine is taken home by the longest and the most evolutionpurchaser and stored away to ary. Every street in America evaporate. That is the way of where there are friendless children needs a kindergarten school to offer such little ones sympathy, that there are but few diseases er in the pulpit may warn and protection, a home, and to bring

> The old nations which are surprising the world by new progress, as Japan, Mexico, and sev eral of the South American republics, are accepting the facts that "the primary school is the foundation of national character." This is notably so in Japan where a few years ago the first kindergarten school was opened in Tokio, under the patronage of the poets, music, and flowers and now numbers in its branches nearly 10,000 pupils.—From "The Kindergarten Age,"by Hezekiah Butterworth, in December Review of Reviews.

Nothing is taught with greater or more constant emphasis throughout the Scriptures than that God expects man to do something to bear fruit. No man has a right to be useless. There is only one thing to do with the use less and that is to destroy it. And God teaches that the useless shall be destroyed. No amount of mercy will ever, can ever wipe out that trath. God does in the Gospel of Jesus save the useless and worthless, but He saves them by making them useful and worthful. But if He cannot do that He must destroy them. But many men take eternal risks in all business. If a merchant, who being worthless. Trustworthy Friends

The Richmond Times pays a deserved tribute to the fidelity of newspaper people. It is based upon the incident at Jacksonville, Fla., last week, when a reporter went to jail rather than disclose the source of a piece of information about the court which he had got. ten hold of and printed. A member of the grand jury subsequently appeared and told the court that he had given the news items to the reporter, not meaning to do anything wrong, and asked that its censure be directed toward him. The reporter was therefore discharged from custody. This gives our Richmond contemporary occasion that while it is the business of the reporter to print the news, he is the last man in the world to violate confidence. The public does not seem to understand that a reporter has a "si lent ear," and that the only safe way of keeping a news item out of print s to confide it to the reporter. If you try to hide it away from him, the chances are ninety-nine in a hundred that he will "scoop" it. If he receive it forom you in confidence, he will give up his job or go to jail before he will betray you. The Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, who has been active in politics for many years, and who has had to do as much as any man in the State, perhaps, with newspaper men, said some tune ago, in talking on this subject that he had never in all his experience, had a newspaper man to violate his confidence."

There is a silent understandi g among newspaper people that a secret confided to them is sacred. If they print it after having recaived it confidentially, it is ninety-nine times in one hundred because they did not understand hat it was given in confidence; and if they give their promise not to betray the source of an item they never do it. Wise public men quickly learn, therefore, to take newspaper people into their confidence and to deal candidly with them at all times. There are newspaper men in North Carolina to-day who know enough to ruin many a public man in an honr, but they became possessed of the knowledge in such a way that those whom it would affect are as safe as if the custodians of these secrets were dead.—Charlotte Observer.

Rheumatism, the greatest enemy to mankind is never found among the savages. At the first warning of its presence; the child of nature goes to the woods and digs up an herb which he industrially uses until the enemy disperses and disappears. The secret of this herb and its curative powers are becoming known to the whites who are effecting cures little short of the miraculous. Cases of twenty years standing have been permanently cured and when taken in the early stages it completely eraditcates the disease from the system.
