WHERE'S MOTHER.

Bursting from school or play,
This is what the children say:
Trooping, crowding, big and small,
On the threshold, in the hall—
Joining in the constant cry,
Ever as the days go by,
"Where's mother?"

From the weary bed of pain
This same question comes again;
From the boy with sparkling eyes,
Bearing home his earliest prize;
From the bronzed and bearded son,
Perils past and honors won:
"Where's mother?"

Burdened with a lonely task,
One day we may vainly ask
For the comfort of her face,
For the rest of her embrace;
Let us love her while we may,
Well for us that we can say:
"Where's mother?"

Mother with untiring hands,
At the post of duty stands:
Patient, seeking not her own,
Anxious for the good alone;
Of her children as they cry,
Ever as the days go by:
"Where's mother?"

Hanna's Money in Evidence at Last.

We have information which we deem thoroughly reliable that large sums of money, running up into the thousands, have been offered for a single Populist vote for Fritchard.

Hanna's agents have resorted to open bribery to buy a seat in the Legislature and now emboldened by that success are trying to buy members who have been fairly elected like sheep at the shambles.

Efforts will be made by the aid of detectives to unearth this nefarious business, and punish the actors.

The complexion of the United States Senate and the fate of the nation must not be determined by the use of dollars furnished by Hanna's trusts and combines.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Collector R. C. Hill, in Vance township, lost his ginhouse by fire Tuesday morning before day. He lost his ginhouse, gin press, 100 bushels of oats and ten barrels of corn. There were ninety bales of cotton within ten feet of the ginhouse, but most of it was saved by hard work. Six bales caught on fire and some of them were badly damaged. About three bales of cotton were lost. There were 500 bushels of cotton seed in the house, but only the top of these were burned. The fire was perhaps incendiary, as there had been no ginning done in three weeks. There was no insurance.—Kinston Free Press.

Sparks from the forge ignited the roof of the John Flanagan Buggy Co.'s blacksmith shop Saturday afternoon. The fire was extinguished before any damage was done.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Condensed Report of Proceedings.

THIRD DAY.

HOUSE.

Speaker Hileman called the House to order at 11 o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Dixon, of the House, offered prayer.

Sutton rose to a question of parliamentary inquiry, stating that his resolution of yesterday was for 2,500 copies of the Governor's message, twenty to each member. Schulke's amendment was to reduce to 250, which would not give the twenty to each member. The chair announced that the proper way to correct was upon a motion to reconsider at the proper time.

Sutton offered a resolution to require State Printer to furnish an index book so as to keep full record of all action taken on all bills, as a check that would show the action of all bills.

Sutton introduced a resolution to request our Congressmen to support a resolution in favor of Cuban beligerency.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Lusk, to repeal chapter 466, Laws of '95—the assignment act.

Ormsley, requiring the Secretary of State to furnish certain books to Forsyth county.

Peace, to take Vance county out of the criminal circuit of Eastern North Carolina.

Sutton, to repeal chapter 453, Laws of '63, and chapter 466, of '95, in relation to assignments; in regard to actions of covearrantor; to regulate fees of Sheriff of Cumberland in securing special venire.

White, to establish a juvenile reformatory for boys.

Alexander, to revise the jury list of the State.

The chair announced several committees.

SENATE.

Called to order at noon by Lieutenant-Governor Doughton.

Prayer by Rev. Milton McNeill from Wilkes county.

McCaskie moved the adoption of the rules of the Senate of '95.

Clark moved that after the present session the seats be drawn for as in the National House of Representatives.

Grant submitted a list of committees, as agreed upon by the Republican and Populist committee appointed by their respective caucuses for that purpose.

A message was received from the House that a resolution to keep an index book had passed.

House resolution favoring Cuban independence was received.

Abell moved to refer to Committee on Federal Relations.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

McCaskie, to provide for counting the vote of 1896 (provides for counting of the vote immediately after the ratification of the bill).

McNeill, for the relief of A. M. Vanoy, ex-Sheriff of Wilkes; Barringer, for the relief of ex-Sheriff Morrison, of Cabarrus.

Cut His Wheel.

Mr. L. H. Pender rode his bicycle to the Methodist church Sunday night, leaving his wheel in the vestibule during service. When he started to return home after service he found some one had cut one of the tires, letting all the wind out. It was a rascally trick and the one who cut the wheel ought to be found out. Not a great while ago a northern judge sent a man to the penitentiary for two years for just such an act as this.

A NEW FIELD FOR THE FARMERS.

The People of the United States consume upwards of sixty pounds of sugar annually per capita, which at the rate of five cents per pound for the manufactured product, costs the consumers upwards of $200,000,000. Of this amount we produce less than 800,000 tons and import in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 tons. That is, we purchase from South America, the West Indies and the beet sugar countries six pounds or more of sugar for every pound we produce. What is more, the cane sugar production of the United States cannot be greatly extended owing to the fact that about all the cane sugar producing territory is now under cultivation. Even if we possessed Cuba, we should still have to buy sugar from from other countries as the largest crop yet produced in that island did not exceed 1,100,000 tons. We should need another Cuba at this rate to supply our wants unless we could make two canes grow where one grows now.

If we would turn our attention to the production of beet sugar we have the soil and climate to supply all our own needs in this direction without Cuba. Already the world's production of beet sugar exceeds that of cane sugar by more than one million of tons, but while the United States produced, in 1895, 290,000 tons of cane sugar, only 30,000 tons of beet sugar were produced. The cane sugar area of the country is fully occupied, but the beet sugar area has scarcely been entered upon at all. The 4,239,000 tons of beet sugar produced in 1895 were grown in Germany, Austria, France, Russia, Belgium, Holland and Sweden and a few smaller European countries, and yet in none of these are the conditions of soil and climate for sugar beet culture superior to those to be found over a large area of the United States.

Here is a field for the farmers who have been growing more wheat and corn than they could sell at a remunerative price. They would not need to look abroad for a market for beet sugar. The home demand would absorb two million tons annually, and until this amount was exceeded the beet sugar farmers would have their market at their own doors. At the low price of two cents per pound, or forty dollars a ton, this would keep eighty millions of dollars at home that are now sent abroad for sugar. As a matter of fact, the country has been paying more than one hundred millions annually for raw sugar for the last five years, and as we increase in population this sum will increase in a like ratio. Why not occupy this field and thus add a most valuable and extensive article of agricultural production to those we now have.

The 30,000 tons of beet sugar grown in 1895, while a relatively small amount compared with the product of Germany and the other sugar-growing countries, is sufficient to constitute a guarantee of successful sugar culture when the farmers of the country once turn their attention to the cultivation of this staple. There are now three beet sugar factories in California, one in Utah, two in Nebraska, one in New Mexico, a small one in Virginia and one just established in Wisconsin. Within this belt extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific beet culture is possible, and when the nine factories now in operation have been increased in number to twice the 402 factories now in operation in Germany, the greatest beet sugar country in the world, we shall only have reached the capacity of supplying our own wants in sugar.

There should be as much enterprise, ingenuity and science among the farmers of the United States as among those of any country in the world, and attention is called to this industry as one capable of definite expansion. Give beet sugar an exhaustive trial. It will help to secure higher prices for corn and wheat, besides making us independent of other countries for our sugar supply.

Are All Safes Unsafe.

Under the above caption the Chicago Tribune tells some interesting facts showing that the mechanical ingenuity of man cannot cope with the safe cracker. One Samuel Rodman, Jr., who formerly belonged to the United States Engineering Department, but recently is an expert in high explosives, has been chosen to test the power of various manufactures of safes and has proven to be superior to any one yet presented. He needs few implements, and if he should choose to lay aside his useful and honest occupation there is probably not a vault in the land that he could not relieve of its contents in from 30 minutes to 2 hours. Nor is Mr. Rodman alone, professional crackerers are up to the tricks.

It is now stated that any electrical expert with a wire to connect with an electric line can, with a stick of carbon, burn through any safe in 30 minutes and empty it of its contents.

The time is fast approaching when the vigilant eye of an honest man will probably be the only safeguard. It is now the chief dependence of safety for the national vaults.

With the progress that we are making in the direction of vanquishing darkness and obliterating night it may not be long till business will not close its doors as the earth revolves. The sunshine will either be bottled up and used on the shady side of the earth or the forces of nature will do the sun's work in his absence and the safe-cracker's business will be spoiled more effectively than can be done by safemakers.

Prices for windows on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, on inauguration day are rising rapidly. Latest quotations: Single window, $75 to $100; single rooms with two or three windows, $300; suite with eight windows, $1,000 to $5,000. These prices will be paid for the privilege of seeing Grover Cleveland and William McKinley ride in the same carriage and witnessing the longest parade ever known at an inauguration in the Capital city.

A New Year Text.

Paul advances the theory: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Here, a text for the New Year—a text to make the New Year a really happy one. How shall you carry it out? By splitting up the burdens into fragments—you take part of mine and I take part of yours, and each one will take part of the other's, and so we will fulfill the law of Christ.

One of the ways towards this end is encouragement.

Encourage the merchant. If he has a superior style of goods, tell him so.

Encourage the newspaper men. Be affable to them when you have no ax to grind.

Encourage mechanics. If one has done a job well, tell him it is splendidly done.

Encourage the farmers. There is no class of people in the country who want your sympathy just now more than farmers.

Encourage the doctors. You praise the doctor when he brings you up from an awful crisis of disease, but do you praise the doctor when through skillful treatment of the incipient stages of disease he keeps you from sinking down to the awful crisis?

Encourage the lawyers.

Encourage the teachers in our public schools.

Encourage all invalids by telling them how many you have known with the same ailment to get well.

Encourage all starting in life by yourself becoming rememiscent.

Such is happiness and the road to a happy New Year.—Durham Sun.

What Causes the Hard Times.

Judge Hubbard, of Iowa, says it is the existence of corporations.

Geo. Gould says the hostility to corporations.

The farmer says it is the low price of farm products.

The silver men say it is the action of Wall street.

The Wall street men say it is the action of silver men.

The manufacturer says it is the fear of free trade.

The consumer says it is tariff.

The debtor says it is the creditor.

The creditor says it is the debtor.

The Democrats say it is the Republicans.

The Republicans say it is the Democrats.

The Populists say it is both.

The Prohibitionists say it is whiskey.

The preacher says it is the devil.

Now what is your idea?—Ex.

An Observant Youth.

"Now, Bobbie," said the teacher, "spell pipe."

"P-I-P-E," said Bobbie.

"That's right. And now tell me something about pipes. What do people do with them?"

"Well," said Bobbie, thoughtfully, "boys blow bubbles with 'em; plumbers put 'em in; Scotchmen blow music out of 'em; and men like pa smoke 'em. It all depends on the kind of pipes you want me to tell you about."—Harper's Round Table.

A Persistent L...

An aged lady complained to a London magistrate that because she was a little behind in her rent her landlady followed her to church and asked for it there. The landlady came into a pew alongside of her and when she was joining in the responses was constantly whispering to her about the rent. When it came to the response, "Incline our hearts," the landlady would add, "To pay our rent." The magistrate said that it was very annoying, but there was nothing illegal in it.

S. F.

A Scotch clergyman named Fraser claimed the title and estates of Lord Lovat. He tried, on the trial of the case, to establish his pedigree by producing an ancestral watch on which were engraved the letters S. F.

The claimant alleged that these letters were the initials of his ancestor, the notorious Simon Fraser, Lord Lovat, beheaded in 1747 for supporting the young pretender. The letters, engraved under the regulator, were shown to stand for "Slow, Fast," and the case was laughed out of court.—Youth's Companion.

Alex. Poor Motorman.

A motorman's life is not a happy one. While the self satisfied conductor is chinking the coin in his pocket, jangling the register, pulling the bell cord or blithely mispronouncing street names, the motorman is silently grinding out his life at the brake, his mind strung to its utmost tension, and his hands and arms never for a moment idle. Yet he's the one to be blamed whenever an accident happens, without a thought being given to the many calamities which have been avoided through his alertness and precaution.—Boston Transcript.

W. H. RAESDALE,

On the 21st of December, 1835, Admiral Dundas gave up the command of the fleet and returned to England. He was succeeded by Admiral Lyons, between whom and Dundas a signal parting took place which will long be remembered as a standing joke in the navy.

As Admiral Dundas left the fleet at Kamiesch the crews of both English and French ships manned the yards and gave him a parting cheer. At the same moment, by the desire of Dundas, a signal was run up to Sir E. Lyons on board the Agamemnon, "May success attend you," to which Sir E. Lyons ordered to be hoisted in reply, "May happiness await you."

But though in real life hanging and happiness are generally considered to have no very close connection, yet in the signal code they are very much alike. Unfortunately, in the hurry to reply to Admiral Dundas, the flag for the former instead of the latter was hoisted, and what was supposed to be a blunder was not discovered until it had sailed down till the whole fleet had seen and read it. — Pearson's Weekly.

Ancient Bracelets.
Among the Greeks bracelets were worn only by women, but among the Romans they were regarded as a military decoration, and in monumental inscriptions the number of bracelets conferred on the subject is often stated. They were of thin plates of bronze or gold. Sometimes gold wires spirally wound were used. Some bracelets weighing 20 ounces have been found.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS
Monthly Illustrated
AN INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE
Edited by ALBERT SHAW

"If only one magazine can be taken, we would suggest the REVIEW OF REVIEWS, as covering more ground than any other magazine."—Board of Library Commissioners of New Hampshire, 1896.

THIS magazine is, in its contributed and departmental features, what its readers, who include the most noted names of the English-speaking world, are pleased to call "absolutely up to date," "thoroughly abreast of the times," "invaluable," and "indispensable." It is profusely illustrated with timely portraits, views, and cartoons. Its original articles are of immediate interest, by the best authorities on their respective subjects. The Editor's "Progress of the World" gives a clear, rightly proportioned view of the history of the human race during the current month. The "Leading Articles of the Month" present the important parts of the best magazine articles that have been written in every part of the world. The newest and most important books are carefully reviewed. Indexes, chronological records, and other departments complete the certainty that the reader of the Review of Reviews will miss nothing of great significance that is said or written or done throughout the world.

The Reflector Book Store
has a nice assortment of these Fountain Pens, also a beautiful line of Pearl Handle Gold Pens, You will be astonished when you see them and learn how very cheap they are.

The cravat was once the name of a great military nation, the Croats, or Cravates, of the Balkans. It was their fashion to wrap large shawls or pieces of cloth around their necks and shoulders. About the middle of the reign of Louis XIV he uniformed several regiments in the Croat fashion, with huge shawls about their necks. The fashion took, and the shawl diminished in size to the slight strip of cloth we still have with us.

An Amateur Postmaster.
A member of the government was visiting the other day at a hall in the neighborhood of Doncaster. Having a pretty wide correspondence and there not being any postal delivery in the village, the lady at the hall took a bundle of letters to the church on the Sunday evening and gave them to the churchwarden, thinking he would be able to get them sent to the Doncaster post-office.

He, not catching what she had said about them, came to the conclusion that they were something for him to distribute in the church. The lady took her seat at the organ. Then the churchwarden commenced to take them from pew to pew as far as they would go.

One young person, looking at hers, said to him that it was a stamped letter and did not belong to her. He said: "Hold thee noise and put it in thee pocket and read it when thee gets home. There's something in it that will do thee good." — Pearson's Weekly.
