LEGISLATIVE ECHOS.

As Condensed From The Wilmington Messenger.

The state treasurer Monday made the following summary of the special appropriations made by the late legislature: Deaf, dumb and blind institution, $23,000; to fix state line between North Carolina and Tennessee, $300; the university, $5,000; state normal and industrial college, $12,500; institution for the blind, $34,500; colored normal schools, $4,000; colored agricultural and mechanical college, $5,000; white agricultural and mechanical college, $5,000; colored normal and industrial school at Elizabeth City, $5,000; Western hospital for insane, $90,000; Central hospital $55,450; Eastern hospital, $40,000; department of criminal insane, $3,000; purchase of Moore's Creek battle ground, $200; executive mansion, $600; portrait of Senator Vance, $500; extra physicians of deaf-mute and blind institution (colored), $750; contested election case in house, $1,591.

Dr. Monroe, of Davidson college, who was named by Governor Russell as superintendent of the Western hospital at Morganton, declines. Inquiry was made of a leading republican why it was that Governor Russell, after some plain intimations that he desired Dr. Murphy to remain in charge of the Western hospital, had named Dr. Monroe. The reply was that Burke county was one of the few which declared for Governor Russell and that the pressure for Dr. Murphy's removal came from the Burke republicans. To the inquiry why the reply was made that it was simply and solely because they wanted 'pie.' That is now in North Carolina, the universal term for "office." "The wonder is that a man of Governor Russell's common sense should listen to such a plea," was the comment of the republican above alluded to. The republicans wanted all the minor places at the hospital. Dr. Monroe, as has been said is a democrat.

The regular populists are deeply disgusted with the republicans, and have cast the bolters into outer darkness. They are now talking plainly about the need of getting in line with the democrats, but they want the latter to drop the name "democrats." Leading populists give assurance of startling changes in the next two years.

The legislative clerks departed Monday having completed their work on the books and journals. The laws will make two large volumes.

Raleigh, N. C., March 16.—The assertion is now made that the legislative act, which was drawn, is understood, by Governor Russell's own hand, to take the control of the three hospitals for the insane from the democrats, is defective and does not really repeal the former charters of the hospitals, but re-enacts them and gives the officers the same duties and and rights as before. The old boards of directors have retained counsel and all will act in concert, it is understood. Among the counsel are James E. Shepherd, F. I. Osborne, Busbee & Busbee, W. C. Monroe, C. B. Aycock, Isaac T. Dorch and F. A. Daniel. The new boards of directors are called to meet next Thursday. The act of the republicans and bolting populists in grabbing the hospitals is everywhere condemned.

S. S. Patterson, H. B. Battle and J. VanLindley, the commission created by a recent act of the legislature to extirpate San Jose fruit scales, met today and considered a plan to prevent the spread of this dreaded pest as already got a foothold in this state. An expert will at once visit all nurseries and infected spots. Vigorous measures will be adopted, as the act gives full authority. A registration of all nurserymen, dealers and agents will be required.

It Speaks for The Town.

A gentleman of another State with whom the editor of the REFLECTOR met on his recent trip south, and who was told that Greenville was a town of only about 3,000 inhabitants, is kind enough to write us as follows:

"I have received with pleasure the copies of THE DAILY REFLECTOR which you so kindly sent me, showing illustrations of the battleship Texas and scenes on the wharf at Galveston, also the old Alamo at San Antonio. The illustration of the old historic Alamo, the battleship and the wharf scenes are perfect, and allow me to congratulate you on the same. THE DAILY REFLECTOR is bright and newsy and right up-to-date, and would reflect credit on a city of 30,000 people. It is truly a wonder for a city the size of Greenville, and clearly shows that Greenville is a hustling place."

The Meeting.

At last night's service in the Presbyterian church Dr. Black used as his text, "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul," and gave his hearers a splendid sermon. At the close there were other requests for prayers.

This morning he made a beautiful talk on grace—grace to save, grace to live, grace to work, grace to die. His talk was full of strength and comfort to the hearts of christians present.

Those of our people not attending these meetings are missing a great deal. They should attend every service if possible. If you have not been out yet, go tonight.

MARRIED.

On Wednesday morning March 17th at 11 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. A. S. Walker, in Beaver Dam township, his accomplished daughter Miss Ella and B. P. Smith were united in holy matrimony, Rev. R. F. Taylor, of Ocracoke, officiating. There were a large number of relatives and friends of the family present.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party left for the home of the groom where a magnificent reception was held.

May their wedded life be long and happy, crowned with God's richest blessings.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1897.

SIGHTS IN MEXICO.

Scenes and Customs—Street Cars and Little Mules—No Ghost Story, but Things the Editor Saw.

Monterey is the capital of the State of Nuevo Leon (New Lion) one of the northern States of the republic. It is 168 miles from the border and has a population between 75,000 and 100,000. It is said to be perhaps the most American city in Mexico, that is more of our people are numbered among its inhabitants than in any other city the same size. This is no doubt due to its nearness to the border and its accessibility to Americans. Yet the visitor is impressed with the fact that the customs of the city are decidedly un-American, and Mexican life and customs are seen here in all phases.

As stated previously we reached Monterey about midnight on Saturday night. Embarking from the train and passing through the station out to the street, for a while things sounded like we had dropped down among the tower builders of Babel. They had caught on to the American idea of having that intolerable nuisance, the hollering hotel runner to meet trains, and numerous of this gentry with a horde of hackmen were lifting up their voices with one accord. It was all "Dutch" to us—or rather Spanish—and never a time out of the hubbub could we catch such a sentence as "Everybody goes to the King House, right on Main street" or "Hotel Macon, best house in the city." Relief from such a clatter as this came quickly, as the approach of a gentleman speaking a pretty good specimen of "United States" readily caught the eye and ear of our party. He was connected with one of the best hotels in the city, had learned of the coming of our party and came down to capture us. And he wasn't long doing this.

In order to keep us together and prevent a possibility of any one getting lost, our whole party boarded the same street car for the trip up to the hotel, two miles distant. When all was in readiness our chairman gave the signal to the driver, and a "scoot, scoot" blown through the latter's teeth started the little mules in front of the car off in a trot. By the way, mules are the sole motive power for the street cars in Monterey. The city has an electric plant and is lighted by electricity, yet this power is not applied to the cars. There are two mules to each car, usually hitched tandem. It is not infrequent that these little mules receive rough treatment at the hands of the driver who invariably carries a long lash and seems to pound the brutes from force of habit. The fare for riding on the street cars is seis centavos, (six cents, Mexican, of course) but, after 10 o'clock at night the charge is doubled.

That ride up town at midnight made impressions not easily forgotten. The rays of the full moon and glare of electric lights falling upon the long rows of low white buildings made them look weird indeed as the car rolled along the narrow, crooked streets, sometimes so near the buildings that the passenger could put out a hand and almost touch them. Here and there a blanketed pedestrian moving noiselessly along was met, barely having room on the sidewalk to keep clear of the car. Again in some corner, on a curb stone, or piled on a bench in the plaza, would be a weary native asleep, for the Mexican of the peon class has no fixed abiding place but falls down to rest wherever weariness overtakes him, and sleeps peacefully with his blanket drawn over his head. Standing out in front as if a sentinel on guard, and through the haze looking as though it rose from the heart of the city instead of being 4 miles away, was Mount La Silla, "The Saddle," its summit being almost the exact outline of a Spanish saddle. Blending all these together one could imagine such a feeling as being in a graveyard at night, though we've never been there to see just how it felt.

These pictures and reveries suddenly change, for turning next to a beautiful plaza facing which was Hotel de Monterey, we were invited to alight, walk in and partake of the best the house afforded. Welcome invitation! and one which to a crowd of tired, sleepy, dusty travelers needed not to be repeated. The rooms are large, airy and splendidly furnished, and getting rid of two days' accumulation of dust and having the opportunity to change from the limited space allotted in a car to full stretching-out room on a comfortable bed, 'tis no wonder that we dreamed that night of having wings and flying through space to view the beauties of the world. And Thad Manning, our bed fellow, he dreamed—but no, we promised not to be telling tales on Thad. Well, this is Mexico, not Alabama, but we'll take a rest here just the same.

PROF. T. C. MANNING MARRIED.

Eighty Covers Were Laid For The Occasion and the Menu of Dainty Dishes Was Elegant.

The event of the season in local society took place at Hotel DeSoto last evening, the occasion being the wedding in which Mr. T. C. Manning, of Jacksonville, and Miss Effie Carpenter of this city, were the high contracting parties. The parlors were lavishly and elegantly decorated with evergreens, flowers and mosses, and presented a charming appearance as the hundred guests assembled to witness the ceremony that should bind two hearts and souls for life.

Mr. H. L. Bethel, best man, and Miss Gretta Holmes, of Charleston, S. C., bride's maid, entered the parlor from an adjoining room, closely followed by the bride and groom and all took their proper places. Rev. Mr. Osborne then pronounced them man and wife, after the solemn but beautiful rites of his church, and the happy young couple received showers of congratulations from their many friends.

Dinner was announced and the guests filed slowly down stairs, through the hallway and into the large dining room. The table was set in the form of a hollow square, with the side next to the culinary department left open for convenience of servants. The decorations here were also elaborate, the walls being decorated profusely with evergreens and the table with flowers. The bride and groom sat at the centre of the front section, with the guests of honor to the right. In front of them was the bride's cake, which was a large and beautiful work of the baker's art, the stand being set in the middle of a large mirror. On both sides of the square all round eighty covers were laid for service of the guests of the evening. The menu was elaborate, and consisted of twelve courses of the daintiest dishes prepared after the most approved style of the culinary art, and more than one and a half hours were consumed in its serving. A flash light picture was made of the scene by the Manhattan View Co., which will be out today.

After the dinner was over the guests repaired again to the parlor where they spent the remainder of the evening with music, vocal and instrumental, and lively conversations. Prof. Manning is a most worthy gentleman who has held a prominent position in the schools of the city of Jacksonville and his fair bride is the daughter of Mrs. Hugh Williams, and a most accomplished young lady. The Tribune joins their host of friends in extending most hearty congratulations, and in wishing the young couple all the happiness and prosperity there is in life for the good and the worthy.—Tampa, Fla., Tribune.

Goy. Russell.

He will become more desperate, and his four years of official life, unless he can be persuaded by a longer term and greater pay to retire, will probably be distinguished with all of the unfortunate characteristics and qualities that have prevented an intellectual man from being a blessing to his race and an ornament to his native State. He will return to his old bad ways and will throw to the winds all intention of serving well North Carolina. Leastwise, it looks that way now. He is only kind and fair when unopposed. Dare to thwart his plans or to oppose his plans and at once all the abounding evil of his nature is aroused into defiance and he loses all sense of what is right and proper.

MADRE MAKRINA.

The "Story of the Sole Survivor of the Minsk Persecution."

Cardinal Antonelli obtained an order for Mr. Augustus J. C. Hare and his sister to visit the Madre Makrina, the sole survivor of the Polish nuns who were martyred for their faith in the terrible persecution at Minsk. In "The Story of My Life" Mr. Hare says:

The nuns were starved, flogged to death, buried alive, subjected to the most horrible cruelties. Three escaped and reached Vienna, where two of them disappeared and never were heard of again. After a series of unparalleled adventures and escapes the abbess, the Madre Makrina, arrived in Rome. Pope Gregory XVI received her kindly, but made her tell her whole story once for all in the presence of 60 witnesses, who all wrote it down at once to insure accuracy, and then he shut her up for fear she should be turned into a saint and object of pilgrimage. It was not generally known what had become of Madre Makrina—it was a mystery in Rome—but we were able to trace her to the tiny convent of the Monache Polacche, which has since been destroyed by the Sardinian government, but which then stood near the arch of Gallienus, nearly opposite the Church of St. Eusebio. When we rang the convent bell and had shown our permit through the grille, a portress from within drew a bolt which admitted us to a little room—den rather—barred with iron and with an iron cage at one side, behind which the portress, a very fat old woman, re-appearing, asked us many questions about ourselves, the pope, the state of Rome generally.

At last we got tired and said, "But shall we not soon see the Madre Makrina?" "Iosono la Madre Makrina," said the old woman, laughing. Then we said, "Oh, do tell us the story of Minsk." "No," she replied. "I promised at the feet of Pope Gregory XVI that I would never tell that story again. The story is written down. You can read it, but I cannot break my promise." "How dreadfully you must have suffered at Minsk!" we said. "Yes," she answered, and going backward, she pulled up her petticoats and showed us her legs, which were enormously fat, yet, a short distance above the ankles, were quite eaten away, so that you could see the bones. "This," she said, "was caused by the chains I wore at Minsk." The Madre Makrina, when we took leave, said: "I am filled with wonder as to how you got admittance. I have never seen any one before since I came here, and I do not suppose I shall ever see any one again, so I will give you a little memorial of your visit," and she gave me a tiny crucifix and a medal off her chain. I have it still.

When the Emperor Nicholas came to Rome he went to pay his respects to the pope, who received him very cordly. "You are a great king," said Pius IX; "you are one of my servants, but I cite you to meet me again, to meet me before the throne of the Judge of the world and to answer there for your treatment of the nuns at Minsk."

Nat Goodwin's Joke With Sullivan.

When Sullivan was in his prime and was supposed to be the invincible champion of the universe, he came to Chicago to play an engagement. Nat Goodwin was playing here at the same time. Goodwin, like every other man with a drop of sporting blood in his veins, admired Sullivan. He knew him very well, as the great actor and the great pugilist both came from Boston. Sullivan was standing near a fancy bar at one of the hotels when Goodwin entered. The usual circle of admirers were at a safe distance from the mighty warrior, admiring him in awe-stricken silence. Goodwin pretended not to recognize Sullivan. He strolled over to the bar and asked in a loud voice: "Who is that big duffer?"

"Sh-sh! That's John L. Sullivan," said the bartender.

"Well, what do I care?" demanded the actor, and with that he walked over and brushed against the fighter.

Sullivan glared down at Goodwin and roared: "Say, who are you pushin'?"

"Oh, keep still, you big bluff," replied Goodwin.

Two or three of the spectators fainted, and others pushed forward to save the actor's life. Before they could interfere Goodwin was driving right and left at the "big fellow," who was backing away apparently frightened out of his wits. Most of the people who had been looking on ran for their lives, and never came back to find out that it was all a joke.

It is said that Goodwin made it a practice to assault Sullivan whenever he saw him, and the big fighter thought it was the funniest thing the comedian ever did.

It should be remembered that no newspaper is printed for any particular individual. If it pleases a majority of readers it does all that can reasonably be expected.

"FROM FROST TO FLOWERS."

California or Mexico?

Both are such desirable objective points for a Winter trip that it's perhaps hard for you to decide where to go.

Let us Help You to a Decision.

A trip via New Orleans and the Southern Pacific to either Mexico or the Pacific Coast is one you will never forget.

It's a Transition from Frost to Flowers.

And the service is so luxurious that people who have rested "sun-baked" call it incomparable.

If you are Thinking of Going, Write Us.

We have a book entitled "Through Storyland to Sunset Seas," a handsome volume of 205 pages, fully illustrated, which we will send on receipt of 10 cents in stamps to cover postage. We also have a delightful little guide to Mexico, which we will send on receipt of 4 cents to cover cost of mailing.

You Really Ought to Read them Both.

Shall we put you down for a copy? If so, or if you want any special information, it will be cheerfully furnished by a dressing.

P. G. Mayo, of Falkland, has located here and will open a brokerage business.

A bell has been put up at the public school house in Forbestown. It rang for the first time this morning.

It looks like March is not going to give us any good weather at all. So far there has been rain every day since the month came in.

A. Heilbrouer, wife and child, of Tarboro, spent last night here with Mrs. M. R. Lang. They are removing to New York and came by here to tell their relatives goodbye.

ECHOS FROM THE FIGHT.

Corbett not only met Fitz but caught fits.

The report comes today by wire that Corbett is dying from the injuries he received in the fight.

What little betting on the prize fight we have heard of as taking place here was at odds in favor Corbett. And the odds lost.

The telegraph service in giving the bulletins of the slugging mill was admirable. In just 7 minutes after the fight closed the full news had been received and bulletined in Greenville.

The fight is over, and the country has witnessed one more spectacle of beastly brutality. Let us hope another will never take place in our nation. Every State should have stringent laws against such.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR was among the first papers to publish an account of the fight and gave it to our people more than 25 hours ahead of any other paper. Getting in the entire fight by rounds after it closed (1:37 P. M. at Carson, which was 4:37 here) necessarily delayed the paper some, but it was eagerly sought after and copies went rapidly.

Found After One Year.

About a year ago a man went to the livery stable of J. F. King and hired a horse. The man and horse both disappeared and nothing could be heard of them, notwithstanding diligent search was made and a reward offered. Recently Mr. King received information that a man in Duplin county had a horse resembling his lost one, which had been purchased from a stranger in March of last year. Upon this information Mr. King went to Duplin county last week and readily recognized his lost animal. Steps are now being taken to find the thief.

Postmasters to Serve Out Their Terms.

Washington, March 15.—Postmaster General Gary has made an announcement of interest to democratic postmasters whose terms expire on various dates under the new administration. He says he has decided to adhere to the four year tenure of office policy for postmasters except in cases where such officials should be removed for cause.

Miss Stella Ward, aged 16 years, of Rowan county, was bitten by a pet dog last September. The wound was so slight that no attention was paid to it, even the scar had nearly disappeared. Last Wednesday the girl was stricken with hydrophobia and two days later she died in terrible convulsions.—Monroe Inquirer.

White Lang's CASH HOUSE Goods, Embroideries,

LACES.—We have a handsome collection of new White Goods, Embroideries and Laces, which we have placed on sale and invite an early inspection. In White Goods we show a great variety of dainty patterns for little folks, such as fine dimity checks and stripes, sheer linen lawns, Persian lawns, English nainsooks, etc. Our line of Embroideries are very attractive and quite moderate in price. In Laces we are showing full lines of Valenciennes and Torchons, from the tiniest width up to the wide.
